CHICAGO WATER SYSTEM SPUR TO CITY'S GROWTH

Supply Is Abundant and Rates Low.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

From Lake Michigan a billion or more gallons of water a day flow through tunnels which form an underground river system to Chicago's homes and industries. An abundant supply of pure water at low prices—city engineers say Chicago's rates are lowest of any great world city—has been one of the great builders.

At noon today Mayor Edward J. Kelly, pressing a button in his city hall office, will touch off the last dynamite in a new tunnel. It is an engineering feat of large dimensions, but in Chicago it makes little stir, although in many another city it might be the occasion for a fête and much speechmaking and noise.

150 Feet Below Street.

The new tunnel is cut through the Niagara limestone 150 to 200 feet below the streets. It will have cost $13,600,000 when the water is turned in next July.

It is 16 feet in diameter and begins with a new intake crib, adjoining the Carter Harrison crib, some three miles off Chicago avenue. It runs under the lake to the foot of Chicago avenue, thence westward 5½ miles before branching into extensions 10 feet in diameter. It will carry 700 million gallons of water in 24 hours, and it will supersede some old tunnels.

The new water tunnel is 11½ miles long. The Simplon railroad tunnel between Switzerland and Italy is twelve miles long.

From Primitive Beginnings.

A hundred years ago peddlers dipped water from Lake Michigan and conveyed it in wooden barrels to customers in Chicago. The first waterworks, at Lake street and Michigan avenue, later piped supplies through wooden mains of cedar logs, bored. In 1851 the city took over this private company and started a new system. First of the water tunnels was built in 1864, running two miles through the clay. It attracted world interest. It is still carrying water from the two mile crib to the Chicago avenue pumping station.

Now the system has six intake cribs, with another one, the William E. Dever crib, nearing completion. It has 12 major pumping stations, 65 miles of tunnels, 3,600 miles of pipe, and over 427,000 service connections.

More than a billion gallons a day are pumped. The maximum day was July 1, 1931, when the system delivered 1,287,000,000 gallons. At 8 o'clock that evening, with Chicago sweltering, the system was pumping at the rate of 1,466,000,000 gallons a day.

Supplies 35 Suburbs.

The system is operated by the city on a nonprofit basis and supplies 35 suburbs. The [depreciated] value of the plant is 130 million dollars, created almost entirely out of revenue. It would cost 240 million dollars, however, to reconstruct the plant. Revenue last year was $13,149,000.

Average per capita consumption daily is figured at about 272 gallons, one of the largest found in engineering statistics. But about one-third the pumpage, it is estimated, is used by industries. The stockyards and Packingtown alone consume 35 million gallons a day, or as much as many a big city.

In rates Chicago is said by City Engineer Loran D. Gayton to have all the great world cities beaten. Where New York, for example, charges 20 cents a thousand gallons, the metered charge in Chicago is 6.8 cents per thousand gallons, or about one-third New York's rate.

One Rate for All.

The metered rate of 6.8 cents a thousand gallons is a flat one, applying to big metered users and small ones alike. It has been an attraction to industries. On frontage rates the prices for small users are lower, a typical two flat building paying about $20 a year.

In estimating the supply used in fire protection, the engineers gave the figures for the stockyards fire last May when 100 engines pumped at the rate of 73,000 gallons every minute, or 105,000,000 gallons a day.

The water is chlorinated and filtering plants are being considered. The typhoid fever rate in Chicago is one of the lowest.

Lake Michigan, too, has left its impress on the personal habits of the world. Abundant water made Chicago bathtub conscious long ago, and it became a plumbing supply center. Chicagoland salesmen sold bathtubs to the world, helping popularize them in England, Europe, and the orient.

Predicts Days Month Long, Due to Moon

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The moon, it is said, very gradually but surely is applying brakes to the earth's spin.

The gravitational pull of the earth keeps one side of the moon turned toward it. The pull of the moon is slowing the earth's rotation on its axis. One of these days the earth will keep one side turned toward the moon.

Means Day Month Long.

When that time comes the earth's day will be forty-seven times as long as it is now, astronomers calculate. The month is also lengthening, but more slowly, and eventually the month and day will be the same.

The earth and moon now revolve about a common point and the length of time it will require the earth to journey about that orbit then will govern the length of its day.

Dr. Seth B. Nicholson, astronomer of the Carnegie institution's Mount Wilson observatory tells of this in the current leaflet of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

Earth to Follow Moon.

"Tides on the moon were no doubt responsible for the fact that it always keeps the same side toward the earth and eventually, after many billions of years, the earth will keep the same side toward the moon," he wrote.

"The day is now lengthening at the rate of one-thousandth of a second per century, and the calculations indicate that when it has increased to forty-seven of our present days, the day and month will be equal."

Dr. Nicholson wrote chiefly of tides, which he described as "next to the succession of day and night and the march of the seasons, influencing life on the earth more than any other astronomical phenomenon unless it is the changes in the intensity of moonlight at different phases."

Great Tidal Variations.

The astronomer presented a table showing the range of the tides caused by the moon to run from 1.5 feet at Honolulu to 29.6 at Anchorage, Alaska, and 32.5 at Magellan strait. He added that when the pull of the sun is added to that of the moon, near new and full moon, the range is about 20 per cent greater.

"The earth is not perfectly rigid," Dr. Nicholson wrote, "and small tides as large as 9 inches are present even in its solid crust.

"A great amount of energy is presented in the rise and fall of the tides and many efforts have been made to use it commercially, but with little success except on a small scale."

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24.—By order of the federal board of education in the state of Yucatan, teachers in federal schools there must renounce their religion. They are being compelled to sign the following pledge:

"I hereby declare myself an irreconcilable enemy of the Catholic religion and disposed to combat the clergy wherever it shall be necessary. I also declare myself disposed to take part in the campaign against fanaticism."

The teachers must also promise to end all religious practices in their homes. The circular prohibits all religions for the teachers.

SOUTH AMERICAN SWIMMER QUITS AFTER 258 MILES

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The brass band that accompanied the Argentine swimmer, Pedro Candioti, on the final stages of his 299 mile endurance swim to Buenos Aires quit last night, and a few hours later Candioti did likewise.

Around 3 o'clock this morning, having covered 258 miles in 87½ hours of continuous swimming, the Argentine gave up and crawled exhausted out of the water at Zarate, on the Plata river, only forty-one miles from his goal.

The brass band, of the jazz variety, accompanied Candioti for a while last night, playing lively tunes for the tired athlete from a launch that followed his progress. The swimmer entered the water at 11:50 a. m. last Wednesday at Santa Fe.

ROBBER KNOTS TROUSERS OF 3; FLEES WITH $50

Chicago's "pants robber" continued his activities yesterday in the loop and walked unconcernedly out of a United Cigar store at 50 West Washington street with $50 loot secure in the knowledge that his victims would not follow him. While the invader was removing the trousers of Norman Boettge, 25 years old, 4711 Belmont avenue, the manager, in came two customers, Arthur Peters, 1845 North Halsted street, and Gilbert Palmer, 2109 North avenue. Off came their essential garb, too. The pantaloons were all tied in knots by the robber, who was 25 years old and well dressed.

Swiss Vote to Extend Army Training Term

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Peaceful little Switzerland voted today to lengthen the period of compulsory military service by a narrow margin in a nation-wide referendum.

A cannon salvo of 22 rounds announced the result—506,845 for to 431,902 against.

The parliament building was illuminated in celebration of the victory for the government measure. It becomes effective as soon as parliament passes an enabling act.

Fear Tax Boost.

Eighty per cent of the electorate voted. In addition to Socialists and communists, who forced the referendum after parliament had approved the measure, many vineyardists voted against the proposal, officials said.

They were described as in an "ill humor" because taxes were recently increased. Others were afraid the increased military service would jump their taxes.

Opponents in the campaign argued that longer training of recruits would be valueless because "the next war will be fought in the air."

Has 26,000 in Training.

Under the program the infantry, artillery and engineers will train for 88 days out of the 365, cavalrymen for 102, and air and motor units for 74. This means 23 more days of service for the infantry and 13 and 12, respectively, for the artillery and cavalry. It applies only to the first year of training.

Switzerland now has approximately 46,000 men in training, between the ages of 20 and 40.

Taps Maple for Sap and Whisky Flows from Tree

Perry, N. Y., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Imagine Elmer Sweetdew's perplexity when a thin trickle of whisky ran from a spout inserted in a maple tree to draw sap. Hardly trusting his senses, he went around to the other side and found his drill had bored through a cork in a jug placed in a deep cavity in the trunk. Then he remembered a hired man he discharged for drunkenness several years ago who habitually took a jug of liquor into the woodlot to lighten his labors.

Girl, 13, Saves 4 in Fire and Then Dies of Burns

Cuba, N. Y., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Edith Laymay, 13, died tonight of burns received in the rescue of four younger brothers and sisters from their blazing farm home. The girl, one of five children trapped on the second floor, calmly stood at an open window and urged the others to jump into snow as flames scorched her from head to foot, and then jumped last.

100,000 DEMAND BIGGER BRITISH DOLE FOR IDLE

Urge One Day Strike to Force Change.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—One hundred thousand persons participated in country-wide demonstrations against dole restrictions today and heard proposals for a one day protest strike as rumors continued of an impending shakeup in the British cabinet.

At the largest meeting, at Aberkenfig, Glamorganshire, 60,000 approved a resolution urging that workers consider a day long strike in an effort to force the government to withdraw all existing dole regulations and create new scales of payment.

More than thirty assemblages were held in South Wales, including one at Tonypandy, where 20,000 were gathered. In London James Maxton, Labor member of parliament, addressed crowds in Hyde Park.

Oppose Means Test.

The protests were directed against the family means test, the new regulation which cuts payments to unemployed heads of families if their dependents are earning anything, and vice versa.

The government recently restored general cuts in unemployed assistance as the result of vehement protests, but the unemployed contended this was only a start and demanded elimination of all existing dole regulations.

Regarding the possible cabinet shakeup the Sunday Pictorial offered a new forecast, declaring it would be "no surprise" if Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary; Sir John Gilmour, home secretary; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, colonial secretary, were kicked upstairs into the house of lords to make room for new blood.

See Cabinet's End in 1936.

The publications of Lord Rothermere, who owns the Pictorial, are satisfied that the present parliament will live out its constitutional life, ending in September, 1936.

The pepper pool financial scandal is the latest inspiration for an attack on the government. Former Premier David Lloyd George and others in political speeches yesterday laid the blame for the financial crash squarely in front of the cabinet.

Despite the government's overwhelming majority in parliament its friends admit they are no longer certain whether the present cabinet still commands a real majority in the nation.

The Labor party has increased its strength in bye-elections, and many neutral observers consider the Laborites now have at least an even chance of victory in a general election.

COST WORRIES FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The terrific drain of more than $100,000,000 a year upon the French treasury to feed the unemployed was calculated today as unemployment figures topped 500,000, unprecedented in France. During the last year unemployment has gone up 44 per cent.

The government is seeking to increase jobs by diverting part of the unemployment funds to employers who take on additional help.

Three Sources of Help.

The man down on his luck in France can look to three main sources to take care of him in illness, to feed him and his family when he is out of work or to provide him with a new job. These are:

SECOND—Direct unemployment relief—the dole—through funds provided by the government and municipalities.

THIRD—A huge public works program calling for expenditures of up to 12,000,000,000 francs [$800,000,000] over a period of six years.

Unemployment in France is far from what it is in most of the rest of the world, but weighs heavily because of the high cost of living and the small income even of those working.

What Unemployed Get.

Under the dole system an unmarried man or woman draws seven francs [about 47 cents] a day, a married man ten francs, and a man with a family up to 20 francs, depending on the number of children.

As a far reaching measure of social aid in times of trouble, France created a social insurance scheme in 1928 which makes even the office boy's toothache a matter of concern for the government.

Participation in this insurance is obligatory for all men and women earning up to 15,000 francs a year or 18,000 francs in cities of more than 200,000 population. The employer and the employé both pay equally on a sliding scale up to 4 per cent of the salary.

Snow Blankets Chicago; Cold Snap Forecast

Driving eastward across six western states, a blinding snow descended on Chicago last evening. Colder weather was promised in the wake of the snow, prompting a forecast for Chicago of 10 above by tomorrow morning. Two women were killed last night and a man suffered serious injuries in automobile accidents blamed on the snow.

The dead were Miss Jennie Smith, 50 years old, 1549 North Kedzie avenue, and Miss Jennie Strand, 48 years old, 11335 Stewart avenue, a nurse who served overseas in the Augustana unit of the Red Cross.

Struck Boarding Street Car.

Miss Smith was fatally injured when an automobile struck her as she was about to board a street car at 6472 Milwaukee avenue. Emory Van Tine, 28 years old, 3209 North Keating avenue, the driver, told police that wet snow on his windshield hampered his vision. He was held for the inquest.

Miss Strand was killed when she drove her automobile into the path of a passenger train at the crossing of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad near Princeton avenue and 113th street. Witnesses asserted the crossing gates were not lowered.

Normal Bengler, 32 years old, 1757 Roscoe street, the man injured, was struck as he crossed Lake Shore drive at Schiller street. Dr. Ervin H. Barr, 36 years old, 1626 Lunt avenue, a dentist, driver of the car, said he failed to see Bengler because of the blinding snow.

Transit Lines Fight Drifts.

When the storm first hit the Chicago area shortly after 5 o'clock Forecaster C. A. Donnel notified the Chicago Surface Lines, the Chicago Motor Coach company, the Rapid Transit Lines, the department of streets, and the Public Service company that the snow probably would be heavy. Snow fighting equipment was made ready.

During the midnight hours, however, rain was falling, turning the snow to slush, so that the services of plows and shovelers were not needed to keep the streets open to trafic.

Air line service was crippled by late afternoon when the last plane left the Municipal airport at 5:45 o'clock bound for Detroit. An hour previously three inbound transports, one from Miami and two from the east, were forced to land at the Lansing airport in southern Cook county after circling the Chicago airport and being warned away.

Service westward as far as Omaha, Neb., stopped early in the day with pilots reporting "no ceiling, no visibility" in the path of the storm. Nebraska highways were piled high with drifts, while in places biting duststorms whipped along the snow.

From Colorado Eastward.

These duststorms and destructive gales raged along the edge of the snow area, which extended from Colorado and Wyoming east through Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, and Missouri. Six communities in the tri-state corners of Oklahoma, Missouri, and Kansas were struck by tornadoes which killed one woman, injured twenty-one other persons, and caused several thousand dollars' property damage.

Des Moines, Ia., reported one of the worst snowstorms of the year held Iowa in its grip, with temperatures in the low twenties and steadily falling. In most of Nebraska temperatures hov-

RECOVERY AND INFLATION FATE HELD AT STAKE

5 Billion Program at Issue.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—A mighty battle is raging over President Roosevelt's 5 billion dollar work relief project which administration leaders abruptly withdrew following the defeat sustained by the administration in the senate last week.

Developments today indicated that it is the storm center of numerous conflicting powerful forces, the outcome of the clash of which will have a profound bearing upon the race between recovery and inflation.

The President and the liberals of his administration who conceived the plan are striving to resuscitate it under more favorable auspices, as the best means, in their opinion, of ending the dole and at the same time continuing the priming of the business pump with gigantic government expenditures.

Regarded as Wasteful.

Endeavoring to bury it permanently are organized business and conservatives generally, in and out of congress, who regard it wasteful, impractical, and certain to retard recovery and lead to eventual inflation.

At the same time states and local communities threatened with the loss of prospective allotments of the 5 billion dollars of government have turned wrathfully upon organized labor and its senate supporters for putting over the prevailing wage amendment which compassed the fiasco of the administration measure.

On Thursday William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, triumphed over the President of the United States when the senate adopted the McCarran amendment to the work relief bill providing that relief employés on public works should receive the prevailing wage of the community. Mr. Roosevelt proposed to pay such employés an average of $50 a month in order not to attract workers away from private enterprise. Mr. Green contended that a $50 average wage would bring the wages of private industry down to that level.

Tables Turned on Green.

On Friday the administration turned the tables on Mr. Green by sending the bill back to the appropriations committee to be shorn of the work relief project and confined to a straight relief program costing not more than 2 billions. Mr. Green's prevailing wage, Mr. Roosevelt contended, would swell the cost of work relief to 6 billion 300 million, an expenditure that Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] said would strain the credit of the nation to the breaking point.

The recommitment of the bill to the committee was moved by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], the majority leader of the senate, after a consultation with the White House which confirmed the prediction of Senator Glass that the President would veto the bill if it should come to him with the prevailing wage provision.

Considered Program Dead.

Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], White House spokesman in the senate, said that, inasmuch as the President wouldn't have the bill with the McCarran amendment and the senate wouldn't have it without the amendment, he considered the work relief plan dead for the remainder of this session of congress.

This development dismayed the pork barrel contingent in the various states that was looking forward to the distribution of five billions of government money on a multitude of public works with the contracts and political patronage pertaining thereto. For the last forty-eight hours senators who voted for Mr. Green's prevailing wage have been deluged with telegrams from pork barrelers back home counseling surrender to the President in order to get the government money.

Mr. Green, having won his fight with the President, now finds himself in a fight with the pork barrel brigade. Some think that the administration foresaw this development and returned the bill to the committee in the belief that the pressure of constituents would work a change of votes and save the work relief project.

Other Troubles Encountered.

The truth is that the fiasco of last week was the result of more fundamental difficulties than the prevailing wage amendment, which proved to be merely a means to an end. The work relief scheme, as developed by the President and his liberal advisers, was the product of the pump priming theories of John Maynard Keynes, the British economist whose economics the British government rejected, and of the thesis that the dole is demoralizing and must be terminated.

But neither the President nor Relief Administrator Hopkins nor Public Works Administrator Ickes nor any of the other liberals was able to make the plan convincing to the senate appropriations committee which was even unable to find out who wrote the bill. Members of the committee threw up their hands in disgust at what they called the vague, impractical, and visionary notions of the administration officials on the contemplated expenditure of the vast fund. Not only the Republicans but many Democrats were unwilling to give the President the biggest blank check in history for a purpose so vaguely explained by the administration. There was also the factor of disillusionment by the results of the 3 billion 300 million dollar public works expenditures as a means of large scale reëmployment.

Few Defenders on Floor.

As a result there were few defenders of the work relief program when it reached the floor of the senate. Nearly all the Republican and many of the Democratic senators embraced Mr. Green's prevailing wage provision with the double barreled purpose of currying favor with organized labor and at the same time defeating work relief by making the bill unacceptable to the President.

The opposition to work relief has the backing of organized business which is bringing its influence to bear to keep the plan shelved. From the start the leading manufacturers and other business men of the country have opposed the work relief project. They contended that it would mean the construction of an enormous number of public works that are either useless or beyond our means in the present state of our finances. They contended that work relief costs are not less than 50 per cent more than straight relief. They objected that work relief undertaking would put the government into further competition with private enterprise.

Greater Deficit Seen.

Organized business asserted that the scheme, by its competition with private enterprise and its enormous cost, which would greatly increase the treasury deficit, would retard business revival. Not until the balancing of the budget is within sight and the danger of inflation there dissipated, they said, will industry, particularly the capital goods industries, be able to finance a resumption of large scale operations.

Representative groups of business men submitted figures to the White House to demonstrate that by confining relief to the dole and effecting various economies it should be possible to balance the budget before the end of the next fiscal year. If such an assurance could be held out, they asserted, business would go ahead by leaps and bounds.

Want to Balance Budget.

If Senator Byrnes' prediction of the abandonment of the work relief scheme should be fulfilled the development would be hailed by most industrial leaders as an important step in the direction of balancing the budget, allaying fears of inflation and restoring confidence generally.

The American Liberty league, which is greatly concerned by the danger of inflation, states in a booklet issued today that total credit inflation possibilities under existing law exceed 100 billion dollars. The league congratulated the Roosevelt administration on rejecting currency inflation schemes up to date, but expressed apprehension of future developments.

Three Threats of Inflation.

"Today in the United States," said the league, "there are three avenues through which inflation of a devastating character may come. These are:

"1. Treasury deficits which unless ended speedily will lead inevitably to unsound financing methods.

"2. Printing press currency proposed to be issued to finance specific projects or general expenditures.

"3. Credit expansion policies under recent and proposed monetary and banking laws permitting a concentration of political control, and offering a foundation for disastrous inflation."

In a discussion of credit expansion, as distinguished from fiat currency inflation, the league comments as follows:

"The administration is pursuing a policy of credit expansion with a view to a stimulation of industry. So long as new credit no more than anticipates a healthy increase in business, the results are beneficial. If there is a wave of speculative activity which leads to an undue use of credit, inflation develops.

Power of Credit Cited.

"As an engine of inflation, credit is much more powerful under our banking system than currency.

"At no time in our history have the potentialities in the way of credit expansion and, therefore, of inflation been so great. The reason may be found in the monetary legislation enacted during the past two years. The pending banking act of 1935 broadens the powers of administrative authorities to promote an expansion of credit and by the same token increases the danger of inflation."

The league points out that much of the present demand for inflation has its origin in the plight of agriculture and in a desire to enable farmers to pay their debts more easily.

"Individual citizens who are taxpayers are the real debtors in the case of the obligations of governmental bodies while individuals who are stockholders are the real debtors in the case of the various classes of corporations," says the league. "Many farmers come within these classes. Except in instances such as agriculture, where the producer of raw materials benefits very greatly from increased prices, higher prices are apt to increase rather than lessen the burden of debts.

Investments Are Cited.

"The creditor classes include individuals, business concerns, and institutions owning bonds, mortgages, and notes. Funds of the life insurance companies are invested in bonds and mortgages. These companies have held nearly one-fourth of all outstanding farm mortgages and nearly one-fifth of all outstanding urban mortgages. The banking institutions have invested deposits of the citizens in bonds and mortgages. The building and loan associations are large mortgage holders. The endowed universities, hospitals, libraries, and welfare foundations have extensive investments in bonds and mortgages.

"As the value of the dollar becomes less through inflation there is a decline in the value of all savings deposits, life insurance policies, annuities, and endowments. The cheaper dollar may help one relatively small group of debtors, but all creditor classes are injured."

JAPAN CLEARS CREW OF AMERICAN TANKER SUSPECTED OF SPYING

TOKIO, Feb. 25 [Monday].—(AP)—The captain and crew of the American tanker Elizabeth Kellogg were cleared today of all suspicion of espionage after a further examination by army officers. Authorities announced the tanker, now at Yokohama after getting clear of a sand pit at the mouth of Tokio bay on which she was grounded, is free to depart.

Prior to her refloating groups of Japanese army officers, marine police and gendarmes boarded the stranded tanker and shot questions at the vessel's master, Capt. N. T. Henderson, and other officers as to why the Kellogg managed to become trapped on a sand bar just where her crew could get an exceptional view of the fortified peninsulas flanking the entrance to Tokio bay. Army officers indicated the innocence of espionage probably would be established.

Sergt. Koganal of the Yokohama marine police said the Kellogg's skipper told him he had been celebrating Washington's birthday and hence the ship was in command of the third mate, H. F. Spear, at the time of the accident. The Kellogg's crew consists of twenty-one Filipinos, ten Americans, one Englishman and a German; none of them belonging to the United States naval reserve. The vessel was under charter to the Mitsui company of Japan.

Woman's Pistol Shot Into Air Starts French Rioting

PROTEST GERMAN BID TO BUILD FOUR BRAZIL WARSHIPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Because a German firm has tendered bids for the construction of two cruisers and four destroyers for the Brazilian navy, the British, French, and Italian governments today protested to Rio de Janeiro against what they claim is an infraction of an article of the treaty of Versailles. That article forbids Germany to build any warships other than those sanctioned for her own use. The Germans, it is said, are willing to construct the vessels on a barter basis, but London, Paris, and Rome fear that if the Nazis built warships for other nations and war broke out Germany might seize the vessels and strengthen her own fleet.

POLICE GUARD 2 AUSTRIAN CHIEFS ON LONDON VISIT

A contingent of the unemployed marched past the station without disorder, following a meeting in Hyde Park where it adopted a resolution demanding Schuschnigg's "expulsion" from Great Britain.

All was quiet at the Austrian legation, but detectives and police were placed about it. While here the Austrians are expected to confer with Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, on financial matters.

The Austrians were greeted at the station by Sir John Simon and French Ambassador Corbin. They arrived from Paris, where they reached an understanding on methods of insuring Austrian independence with French leaders.

KEYS TO U. S. CHURCH IN BERLIN ARE SENT TO CONSUL GENERAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The fate of the American church in Berlin is uncertain. The keys to the church were delivered today to Douglas Jenkins, American consul general, by the governing board which has resigned. The question arises as to whether the governing board and committee have a right to resign and place the responsibility on the consulate.

The board and committee were constituted according to the provisions of the German "inscribed association" several years ago under the guidance of Miles Bouton, legal adviser of an American newspaper man. Bouton has left Germany because of difficulties with the Nazi régime.

Before resigning, the board and committee failed to consult the consulate or its legal experts. American lawyers believe the board and committee, representing the "American Foreign Christian union," must continue their responsibility until the church is dissolved or reorganized. Consul General Jenkins has invited the committees to confer with him tomorrow. James Lee, the chairman of the governing board, sailed for the United States today to take up work entrusted to him by his father, the late Ivy Lee, publicity man.

30 Sentenced in Germany for Gossiping About Nazis

HANOVER, Germany, Feb. 24.—The emergency court here has its calendar filled to overflowing with cases against gossips. Yesterday it sentenced thirty persons from the Emden district to prison sentences of one year to eighteen months, or to fines for gossiping about the Nazi party or the government. Remarks made about the provincial governor in private houses, restaurants and beer halls accounted for most of the heavier sentences.

GERMAN PLEDGES TO BE INVIOLATE, HITLER DECLARES

Will Sign No Promises Reich Cannot Keep.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 24.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler tonight served notice on the world that he never will sign any document which will mean the voluntary surrender of Germany's honor and equality.

"The world can be satisfied that when we sign anything we will hold to it," the dictator shouted. "When we cannot hold to it we will not sign."

Hitler's words drew a roar of applause from Nazis gathered to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the day he proclaimed the Nazi gospel in a Munich beer cellar and founded the National Socialist party.

Fight for Freedom.

The fuehrer in his speech in the famous Hofbrauhaus spoke strongly of Germany's determination to achieve freedom.

"We have one noble will at present—the freedom of our people," he said. "We must achieve it. We cannot wait for that to be accomplished by those who follow us. Not our children, but we must make Germany free. Our generation failed. We must make good.

"We demand a guarantee of equality, freedom, and self-maintenance. With it, German honor rises again. We only know a 'No' and 'Yes'—always 'Yes' for peace and always 'No' for disregard of German honor. The world must recognize our 'Yes' remains 'Yes' and 'No' remains 'No.' We are ready for any work that is consonant with the honor and freedom of a free and independent nation."

The audience rose and shouted "Heil Hitler."

Criticizes Past Governments.

"We are determined to stand alone if the world demands anything dishonorable from us," the reichsfuehrer continued. "We regard as dishonorable any attempt to limit our rights differently from those of other nations. The nations of the world must learn again to forget the thirteen dishonorable years and cast their minds back to the previous hundred years.

"Present day Germany is identical with eternal Germany. The disgraceful interregnum is past. The nation is united in its efforts for peace and determined to defend Germany's freedom. We want nothing more than to live honorably among other nations. We threaten no other nation's freedom. We declare to any one, however, that if he would take away the liberty of the German people he must do it with force, and every man of us will spring to arms against force.

"Never will I nor any government after me sign a document derogatory to our honor. What we sign we keep. When we cannot hold to it, we will not sign.

"I have smashed democracy through its own insanity. The fight is ended for many centuries to come. Our living opponents will not believe it simply because they do not wish to hear it."

Take Oath of Allegiance.

Hitler stressed that the coming generation is ignorant of the past, and that, imbued with the spirit of the new state from infancy, will fulfill in the next two or three centuries what floats before our mental vision."

Tonight's ceremony was preceded by the taking of oaths of absolute personal obedience to Hitler by new Nazi functionaries.

Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, warned the officials as follows:

"You must swear to obey the commands of the fuehrer. You must swear always to act in his spirit. Be worthy of your fuehrer that he may be proud of you. I'll give you time to consider. No one shall suffer for it if he doesn't raise his hand and swear. Pity that man, however, who swears and doesn't keep his oath."

Earlier Adolf Wagner, Bavaria's minister of the interior, spoke at a festival in the Tonhalle. He declared that the 25 points in Hitler's program, as proclaimed in 1920, still stand.

"No word has been added, no word struck out," he said. "They will remain unaltered. The history of the Nazi movement, the history of Germany is the history of Adolf Hitler. Without him we were nothing and Germany was nothing."

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in an address claimed that even grumblers and critics could not deny that the Nazis had given the nation new courage and faith.

"If we fail there is no way in which we can escape blame," he said.

PRESIDENT HAS RIDE IN SLEIGH; HANDLES REINS

Daughter and Son-in-Law Accompany Him.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today found relief from the physical and mental strain of his high office in a brisk sleigh ride along winding roads of snow blanketed Dutchess county.

Behind a roan mare the President clenched the reins and flicked the whip of the old sleigh. As a boy he had held reins back of the gulding hands of his father in the conveyance.

Beside him his daughter, Anna, echoed her father's pleasure as the galloping feet of the horse sent packed snow thwacking against the floor boards. Perched behind in the coachman's seat was her husband, John Boettiger, former newspaper man.

Old Sleigh Ordered Out.

The President ordered the old sleigh out of the barn as he arrived at his Hyde Park home at 8:30 this morning. Looking from the window of the presidential special which had carried him on a sentimental journey to Harvard university to attend the initiation of his son, Franklin Jr., into the exclusive Fly club, the President remarked that the day was perfect for a sleigh ride.

After he was greeted in his home by his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, he ordered that the sleigh be dusted and brought around to the front door at 2 o'clock. At that hour he emerged from the home with the Boettigers.

The President settled himself in his seat. His daughter climbed in beside him and tucked a red and black blanket about them. With a grin the President motioned Boettiger to the coachman's perch, known by the family as the "Mare's nest."

Ordered to Perch.

Boettiger eyed the sleigh rumble seat and then turned to his wife with, "Move over Anna." The President laughingly checked his son-in-law and with mock firmness directed him to the perch.

A whip flicked over the mare, Duchess, and the party was off. For an hour the President guided the conveyance through the country-side his face ruddying in the crisp air. On his return he said he had never had a better ride.

Rest was in order throughout the day. The President threw aside the cares imposed by the rebellious senate and the New Deal. He decreed that one day at least of his short vacation should be one of complete rest.

Tomorrow he will continue work on his shipping message which he hopes to forward to congress before he returns to Washington Thursday morning. The message is part of his general transportation program.

May Map New Program.

During his stay he is expected to map a campaign to bolster his 4 billion 880 million work relief program, which the senate had given a mortal blow in the opinion of administration leaders. The senate sent the bill back to the appropriations committee last Friday for rewriting.

Observers predict that the revised bill will slash the amount to be appropriated and take away the broad powers granted the President in the bill's present form.

U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Speeds to Aid of Jap Ship

Seattle, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Chelan was dispatched today to aid the Japanese motor ship Taihei Maru, disabled in the north Pacific by a broken crank arm approximately 250 miles northwest of Cape Flattery. The Salvage King, powerful ocean going tug of Victoria, B. C., was also sent to the assistance of the freighter. The Taihei Maru was outbound from Port Ludlow, Wash., to Yokohama.

JINGLE BELLS, JINGLE BELLS FOR THE PRESIDENT

SECLUDED MONKS PERILED BY FLU GET CHICAGO AID

Alexian Brothers Sent to Nurse Trappists.

Two members of the Alexian brothers, a Catholic nursing order, arrived in Bardstown, Ky., from Chicago last night to nurse the twenty-three influenza stricken members of the Trappist order in the monastery of Our Lady of Gethsemane.

They are Brothers Lubentius and Rigobert, dispatched from the Alexian Brothers' hospital here in answer to the plea of Abbot Frederic M. Dunne of the Trappists and Bishop John A. Floersh of the diocese of Louisville.

Six Dead; Many Stricken.

Six of the Trappist monks have died since the outbreak of the disease in the monastery near Bardstown, and with the majority of the members stricken, it was feared that this chapter of the rapidly thinning order in America might be wiped out.

Most of the monks are elderly men, since their rigorous life, due to their vows of obedience, poverty, and silence, has attracted but few novices in recent times. There are only three monasteries of the Trappist order in the United States.

Women Nurses Forbidden.

They are, in addition to Our Lady of Gethsemane, the monastery of New Melleray, near Dubuque, Ia., and Our Lady of the Valley, at Valley Falls, Rhode Island.

The Trappists are essentially a contemplative order, confining their activities, outside of regular devotions and meditation, solely to agriculture and manual labor.

Only male nurses may aid the sick in the abbey at Bardstown, since the strict rules of the Trappists forbid women to enter the monastery under any circumstances.

1,188 Die in 3 Weeks in Madrid Flu Epidemic

MADRID, Feb. 24.—(AP)—City authorities reported today that 1,188 persons died of influenza in Madrid during the first three weeks of February. The current epidemic, however, is not as grave as that of last year. In the same period of 1934 there were 1,214 deaths.

NEW SOCIAL DISORDER IS FACED BY NATION, SAYS DR. C. C. LITTLE

Boston, Mass., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Unless a "radical transformation" in the policies of the nation's political leaders takes place the United States is "well on the way, not to a new social order, but to a new social disorder," Dr. Clarence C. Little, former president of the University of Michigan and noted scientist, declared today in an address at the weekly service of he Community church of Boston on the subject "Is the New Deal Leading to a New Social Order?"

Answering his question in the negative, Dr. Little warned: "It will be well for the great mass of Americans to pause and consider the possible consequences if they continue to its logical completion the existing tendency to regiment, to encourage representation without taxation, and its converse, and to favor government by the average."

"The social body of the country will have no rest while a differential birth rate in favor of public dependents is coupled with an economic policy that attempts to give these people what they cannot earn," he declared.

"It may be argued that any decrease of expenditure of public funds will produce unrest and drive hordes of people to false prophets. Granted that this is true, it would be healthier to bring about the result and remedy it than to continue to try to buy 'fair weather' loyalty by making money and artful jobs."

7 British Bombing Planes Forced Down; 4 Wrecked

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Seven Royal Air force bombing planes of the eight which set out on two flights were forced down today in a blinding snowstorm and four were wrecked. No one was injured. The planes met mishap between Edinburgh and Newbeggin-on-the-Sea, northern England. Five ships of a squadron under the command of the Marquess of Clydesdale, were near Edinburgh when the blizzard broke. One crashed into a ploughed field, another bounced into a haystack, a third landed in mud at Firth-of-Forth, and the fourth overturned in a farmyard.

STATE WILL TRY EMBLEN NEXT IN DAICHES MURDER

Early trial of Arthur Emblen, Gary hoodlum, who confessed to the grand jury his complicity in the plot to murder Eli Daiches, but refused to testify at the trial of Irving Weitzman, is the state's next objective in the Daiches murder case. Weitzman was found guilty and given a sentence of life imprisonment Saturday by a jury in Judge Harry B. Miller's court.

Assistant State's Attorneys John S. Boyle and Emmett Moynihan, in charge of the prosecution for the murder of Daiches, president of the Thomas M. Bowers agency, who was slain last March 3, said yesterday that beyond moving for speedy trial of Emblen their next important problem is to effect the capture of Jack London, fugitive gambling house guard.

London was named in the murder indictment with Weitzman and Walter Murphy [Walter McManamon], who was the state's star witness against Weitzman.

The prosecutors said yesterday they would have no part in the civil suit filed by Mrs. Belle T. Daiches, widow of the slain man, to obtain $100,000 of the insurance money which is tied up as the result of her suit directed against Louis Weitzman.

SOCIALIST ASKS BALLOT BE KEPT OPEN FOR REDS

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Harry W. Laidler, chairman of the New York City public affairs committee of the Socialist party, tonight sent a protest to the senate judiciary committee against the proposed Ostertag bill to exclude the communist party and other such groups from the ballot.

"If such a bill ever was passed," Dr. Laidler said, "it inevitably would be used not only against communists, but against all opponents of those in power and as an instrument to crush all attempts to criticize in any fundamental way the evils of our day.

"The refusal of the state to permit any political group to express itself, through the peaceful means of the ballot, would have but one effect—that of augmenting those forces that believe that little can be accomplished through peaceful political means."

REP. IGOE INVITES 'AN APPRECIATION VOTE' FOR KELLY

Indorsement Tomorrow Is Deemed Certain.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Michael L. Igoe, congressman-at-large, urged three audiences yesterday to give Mayor Kelly a big primary ballot tomorrow as a "vote of appreciation."

"His nomination is a certainty," he said, "but that is not sufficient. And he deserves more than a vote of confidence as to what he will do in the future. The voters should unite in such numbers that the result would be the true vote of appreciation to which he is entitled for what he already has done for Chicago.

"If thousands who really understand the fine record he has made in the two years he has been in office remain away from the polls, they will forfeit the opportunity now theirs [when their votes are not necessary for his political future] to show that he has earned their good will."

New Note in Campaign.

The expression "a vote of appreciation" was a new one in the campaign and it was received with enthusiasm. Other speakers had spoken earlier of a "vote of confidence" but Igoe argued that a mere majority suffices for such a vote.

He, hastening in from his Washington activities, and State's Attorney Courtney, returning from a health trip, reached the city in time to add a finishing touch to the Kelly campaign. The mayor also addressed a number of meetings, but his talks were not pleas for votes.

In an interview he said that he would not issue any "final statement" or resort to any of the usual just-before-the-battle tactics of many candidates. He asserted that the people of Chicago know his record and know him and that he would leave the decision in their hands.

Weather a Minor Factor.

The Democratic leaders refused to be discouraged by weather reports that tomorrow might not be a pleasant day. They considered the forecasts assurances of "Democratic weather" and predicted that neither snow nor cold could cut down their vote materially.

The only other mayoral candidate found to be active was Mortimer B. Flynn, Republican. He addressed several meetings while his only important opponent, Emil C. Wetten was still confined to the Seneca hotel by sinus infection.

From Wetten, however, came a short statement on his platform ideas, which were grouped under two headings. One of these was his declaration that Chicago's needy must be taken off the dole and provided with work. The other was that Chicago must reduce taxes without lowering the standard of government.

TokioPolice Disperse Group Outside of U. S. Embassy

TOKIO, Feb. 25 [Monday].—(AP)—Police dispsersed a small group of patriots demonstrating today outside the United States embassy against anti-Japanese movements in Arizona. Two representatives of the group were admitted to the embassy and discussed the Arizona situation with Edwin L. Neville, counselor of the embassy. Neville said they were orderly and polite.

VOTERS' LEAGUE AIDS HOELLEN BY SPECIAL PLEA IN 47TH WARD

The Municipal Voters' league is sued yesterday a special bulletin urging voters in the 47th ward to support former Ald. John J. Hoellen in tomorrow's aldermanic election. Hoellen, a Republican, is running against Albert F. Schulz, incumbent. The league in its bulletin, signed by Herbert J. Friedman, president, said:

"The league feels that the voters of the 47th ward should have especially called to their attention the insult to their intelligence perpetrated by the ward's Democratic organization in the sponsorship of the candidacy of Ald. Schulz. He is no more suited to be a member of an important governing legislative body than a cobbler is equipped to repair watches. In Hoellen the ward has a candidate who served with credit in the city council for eight years. He is energetic, able and alert."

BROOKS BROUGHT BACK TO FACE BABY HOME QUIZ

Dr. Edward L. Brooks, 65 years old, operator of the Beulah Home and Maternity hospital at 2144 North Clark street until it was closed last May, and als ooperator of a "home" for babies at Beulah, Mich., was returned to Chicago yesterday to face charges of operating a maternity home without a license. Dr. Brooks' wife, who was indicted with him on similar charges, was said to be too ill in her home at Beulah to be brought back by the state's attorney's police.

At the detective bureau Dr. Broooks charged that he had been "practically kidnaped" and brought here. He said that after the governor's warant had been served on him at Traverse City, Mich., yesterday he was immediately turned over to the Chicago police officers and was not given time to apply for a writ of habeas corpus as is directed by Michigan law.

He will be taken to the county jail today to await arraignment on the indictment before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court. Michigan investigators have abandoned their investigation of the deaths of a score of babies who died on the farm at Beulah during the last ten years.

WARNING SIGNS IGNORED AT NO. 2 DEATH CORNER

Chicago Elevated Highway Called Only Remedy.

BY HAL FOUST.

Cicero avenue and 55th street is rated by Leslie Sorenson, city trafic engineer, as Chicago's "No. 2 death corner." The intersection ranks higher than any other in Chicago in the number of automobile crashes resulting in personal injuries, but with three deaths in twelve months it is one lower in fatal accidents than Roosevelt road and Western avenue. Forty-seven persons were hurt at 55th and Cicero last year.

The Cicero avenue and 55th street intersection presents to safety engineers an entirely different problem than at Roosevelt road and Western avenue. The Cicero intersection is rural in nature with all of the accidents resulting from cross-trafic collisions. The Roosevelt "death corner" is more typically urban. Eighteen of its twenty victims last year were pedestrians.

Signals Fail as Remedy.

The problems are alike only in that their solution lies in the construction of an elevated highway system. On an elevated highway there can be neither pedestrian accident nor cross-trafic collision, because there is neither a pedestrian nor a cross flow of trafic on these pavements since they have continuous grade separation.

An investigation of the record of the Roosevelt road and Western avenue intersection, with its heavy pedestrian and vehicular trafic, established the inefficacy of stop and go lights as agents of safety. An investigation of the record at 55th street and Cicero avenue establishes the inefficacy of stop signs and slow signs as agents of safety.

Survey Reveals Violations.

An hour and a half survey last night at 55th street and Cicero avenue, made by the reporter and George Barton, engineer of the Chicago Motor club, showed that 10 per cent of the cars passing through the intersection in 55th street were not shifted from high gear. There are stop signs with flashing red lights for both east and west bound trafic at Cicero avenue.

An additional 23.7 per cent of the east and west bound trafic in 55th street merely shifted into second gear for the stop signs at Cicero avenue. Of 597 cars counted in 55th street, 396 stopped at Cicero. Of the 396 there were 165 that were forced to halt for cross trafic as well as for the stop signs. Those who went through in second gear totaled 144, and those who went through in high gear totaled 57.

Most Accidents at Night.

Slow signs in Cicero avenue approaching 55th street are even more generally disobeyed. A large majority of the north and south trafic passed through the intersection traveling faster than 40 miles an hour.

The study at this death crossing was made at night, because all three of last year's fatal accidents and thirty-five of last year's forty-seven personal injuries happened after dark. Visibility is virtually unlimited in all four directions.

From the police reports it was surmised that a large portion of the mishaps were due to the failure of drivers to obey the warning signs. This applies to the slow signs as well as the stop signs.

Plan to Install Lights.

Cars emerged from 55th street with their drivers expecting Cicero avenue trafic to slacken its pace. Few automobiles have illumination on their sides, and when viewed from a right angle are difficult to see.

The Illinois highway department plans to curb the accidents at this intersection through the installation this spring of trafic actuated red and green lights.

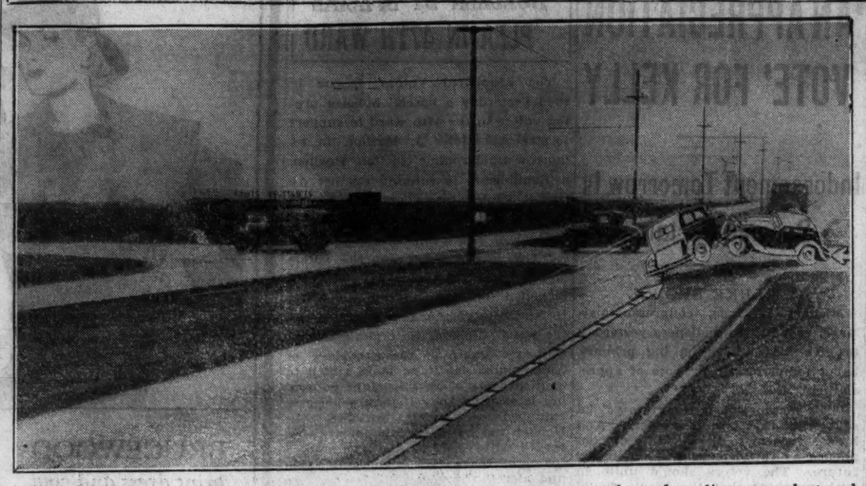
"This equipment should lessen the number of accidents, but it's not the cure," said the motor club engineer.

Not a 100 Per Cent Solution.

"We know from experience that obedience to red and green lights is not 100 per cent, and that the victims of this disobedience include the innocent traveling with the green as well as the guilty going through the red.

"The only satisfactory solution is elevated highway construction with cross trafic collision physically impossible. If the city and the government fail to construct a lake front airport, one branch of the elevated highway system should connect the postoffice and the loop with the Chicago airport at Cicero avenue and 63d street, a mile south of this death corner at 55th street."

THREE KILLED, 47 INJURED AT THIS CORNER



Here is Chicago's No. 2 death corner, Cicero avenue and 55th street, where three lives were lost and 47 persons were injured last year in automobile accidents. TWINS, BROTHER AND SISTER, 8, VANISH IN SWAMP

Sunnyside Road, Md., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Little John and Margaret Miller, 8 year old twins, strolled into Indian creek swamp, near here, this afternoon and hours later had not been found.

A hundred CCC workers joined a score of state police and volunteer firemen in the search.

The twins were with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Miller of Washington, D. C., on an outing when they disappeared at 2:30 p. m.

The swamp into which they were believed to have wandered is 3½ miles wide in some places and ten miles long. Sunnyside road is fifteen miles from Washington.

Shortly before midnight the search in the swamp virtually was abandoned. Some of the searchers claimed to have traced the children through the swamp. There were unverified reports they had been seen along the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

Fear was expressed that unless the twins soon were found they would suffer from exposure.

After directing the search for hours G. C. Johnson, chief of police at Branchville, Md., said:

"We have searched the swamp as well as possible tonight. I believe the children are out."

ered a few degrees above zero. Mounting snow drifts blocked highways in nearly all sections of Iowa and Nebraska.

In discussing the storm Mr. Donnel said:

"In weather parlance we call it a heavy snow. This means a fall of at least 4 inches, and probably more. The snow should continue throughout the day, becoming drier as the mercury drops.

"If the storm center, which tonight is centered near Kansas City, should veer northeast as indications point, the fall here will not be as heavy as it would if the center continued south of us."

INJURED GIRL DIES

Mary May Nelson, 10 years old, 15419 Lexington avenue, Harvey, died at Ingalls Memorial hospital yesterday morning of injuries incurred Saturday night when she was struck near her home by the automobile of Mrs. Margaret McCullough, 15308 Ashland avenue, Harvey. Mrs. McCullough said the accident was unavoidable. She was not held.

The child's death, two trafic fatalities directly attributable to the storm, and three other fatal accidents brought the Cook county 1935 automobile toll yesterday to 136. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, deaths for the year within the Chicago city limits totaled 109 and injuries 2,081. The other deaths:

Victor Fiedler, 72 years old, 3218 Wilson avenue, died in his home five hours after being struck at Western and Foster avenues by the automobile of Percy Godbois, 2354 Ogden avenue, who was not held.

Robert Oliver, 45 years old, said to live in the vicinity of 35th place and Oakley avenue. Found dead in the street at 34th street and Western avenue early today, the victim of a hit and run driver.

Vincent Zedek, 65 years old, of 5047 Eddy street. Died at the Belmont hospital from injuries suffered when he was hit on Feb. 23 by an automobile driven by Carl G. Larsen, 4914 Waveland avenue, at Cicero and Cornelia avenues.

50, STORMBOUND, CHUG OVER HILL TO POOR HOUSE

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 24.—(AP)—More than fifty Nebraskans and Iowans were snowbound tonight at Clearview home—the county poor farm—twelve miles west of Omaha, after taking asylum there earlier in the evening from the winter's worst snow and wind storm.

The poor farm—long shunned as the last port of call for misfits, unfortunates, and aged—stood out like a friendly beacon light to the snow-blinded motorists trapped in the fury of the storm, which reached its greatest intensity about 8 p. m.

Car after car, their drivers despairing of reaching their destinations, swung into the lane that led to the poor farm. There the occupants found a friendly welcome, a warm fire, hot coffee and sandwiches, and finally a haven for the night.

The Clearview home lacked sufficient beds for its fifty uninvited guests, but sufficient were available for the children of the marooned motorists, and after the youngsters were put to bed the elders passed the night in conversation, games, and cards.

Among the Iowans were four couples and their children from Council Bluffs, and a Shenandoah man. Nine Fremont persons also were trapped. The remainder were largely Omaha residents.

DYNAMITE BOMB FIRES GAS CAR; FREIGHT BURNS

Outrage Is Attributed to Miners' War.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb blasted a tank car loaded with gasoline from the track of the Chicago and Illinois Midland railroad today and turned it into a volcano of flame that spurted over eleven other cars of the loaded freight train, destroying them.

Officials took it as an answer to the federal and state roundup of suspected bombers of coal trains and the $200,000 civil suit started last week, accusing members of the Progressive miners' union of the reign of violence.

There was one coal car in the mixed freight of thirty-three cars that was wrecked by dynamiters at Andrew station, eight miles north of Springfield.

Explosion Under Gasoline Car.

The dynamite bomb, set in the middle of the track, could not have been better timed for destructive purpose. It burst under the one gasoline car of the train, and the terrific heat of the spreading flames prevented any attempt to save the box cars and the one coal carrier.

The right of way was burned for a quarter mile and trafic was resumed late today by rerouting trains over switching tracks.

The fire fighters, railroad crews dispatched to the scene on switch engines, had to confine their efforts to saving a small packing plant adjacent to the point where the blazing cars rolled to a stop. Windows in the building were shattered.

No one was hurt. Damage to the cars, right of way and merchandise has not been estimated.

Clews Are Lacking.

Investigators, assuming this to be another attack by one of the factions in the wars between the United Mine Workers of America and the Progressive miners, found, as usual, no clews to the identity of the bombers.

Two other dynamite bombs were exploded last week on railroad switch tracks near mines at Springfield and Du Quoin, roaring defiance to the state, federal, and local investigators who recently examined numerous suspects and arrested two men in efforts to end the long series of bombings in the coal fields.

At Danville, Ill., a $200,000 damage suit was tossed into the fray with officers and some 300 members of the Progressive union named as defendants in an action charging them with responsibility for a number of murders, shootings, bombings and sluggings.

CITY MARKET STALLS SOON WILL REPLACE NEW YORK PUSHCARTS

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—One of New York's mot picturesque sights—the crowded pushcart markets of the Ghetto, Little Italy, and "Hell's Kitchen"—soon may disappear.

The pushcart marts are beloved by artists, out of towners, and thrifty housewives of all nationalities, but Markets Commissioner William Fellowes Morgan Jr. holds they are insanitary and clutter the streets.

Instead, he proposes sanitary stalls which the city will rent to the peddlers at $3.50 weekly. He will try his plans out in a section of the Park avenue pushcart market beginning June 1.

TEXAS BAD MAN ESCAPES TRAP; MAY BE INJURED

McKinney, Tex., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Raymond Hamilton, notorious Texas death house fugitive, escaped a carefully laid police trap three miles from McKinney early tonight, but officers who laid the ambush believed they wounded him.

Hamilton's recent escapades include escape from a police trap in Dallas which ultimately resulted in capture of his brother Floyd. Later Hamilton raided a Texas National Guard armory and there seized sub-machine guns and ammunition.

Two state highway patrolmen, six officers from McKinney and Dallas county officers were in the party that showered Hamilton's car with bullets as he drove slowly along an abandoned highway just after dusk tonight.

The gunman stopped momentarily, then roared away.

Through an informant the band of officers had been tipped Hamilton would be driving along the road late today. They were given the license number.

BREMER KIDNAP CASE WOMAN IS SOUGHT IN EAST

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—New York police tonight, at the request of federal agents, pressed a search for Myrtle Eaton, also known as Ruth Martin, 32. She was indicted Jan. 22 this year in connection with the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul. New York police records show she was arrested "for investigation" in Des Moines on Dec. 29, 1931, under the name of Ruth Martin, but later released.

LEAGUE WAITS TO SEE IF ETHIOPIA CAN DODGE WAR

Fears Result of Giving Orders to Il Duce.

GENEVA, Feb. 24.—In marked contrast with its agitation when the Japanese expansion into Manchuria began, the league of nations is maintaining a policy of watchful waiting with regard to the threatened Italo-Ethiopian war.

The prospect of an official war between two members of the league is not a pleasant one to the Geneva brotherhood, but if the Italians, by actual force or threat of force, can grab off a few hundred square miles of desert without any one noticing it, that will be all right here. The moral encouragement and sympathy which was lavished on the Chinese when the Japanese conquest started is notably withheld from the Ethiopians.

Following the first border clash at Ualual Dec. 5, Ethiopia stated its case to Geneva, charging Italian aggression. Twice more Emperor Haile Selassie made similiar reports to the league and a month elapsed before Ethiopia made an official appeal under article XI. of the covenant which empowers the league to deal with any problem threatening war between members or troubling international relations.

Advises Direct Dealing.

Ethiopia's appeal came up at the January meeting of the league council, but the league limited its action to recommending acceptance by both parties of direct bilateral negotiations—precisely what Japan wanted with China three years before—such negotiations having an advantage for the negotiator with the biggest army.

An agreement between Ethiopian and Italian representatives to hold direct negotiations was announced with evident satisfaction by the British delegate, Lord Robert Cecil, who, with customary romanticism, cheerfully informed the council that both the near belligerents had promised to take all measures to prevent further clashes and settle future differences by arbitration.

The league's greatest hope was that Ethiopia would withdraw its complaint under article XI and that the league could wash its hands entirely of the affair.

[Mussolini repeatedly met Ethiopia's offers to arbitrate with demands for indemnities and apologies. Two weeks after the league council session was adjourned, Mussolini accused Ethiopia of a new attack—Jan. 29 at Afdub. Il Duce ordered a mobilization of troops in Italy without revealing the act to the world until Feb. 11.]

Hopes Nothing Will Happen.

Now that the negotiations appear to have been completely broken off the league is in a bad hole. Pending further appeals from Ethiopia nothing will be done in all probability, but if actual fighting starts, and Ethiopia forces the matter before the council, the league cannot ignore the matter. A special council meeting will doubtless have to be called, and the painful question of stigmatizing the aggressor will have to be taken up.

It is sincerely hoped here that the Italians will not do anything rash, which would compromise the league's prestige, because it is difficult to envisage the Geneva institution taking a strong stand against Italy. The French and British, on the other hand, agree with the Italians that Emperor Haile Selassie I. does not keep his turbulent subjects in good order and there is considerable sympathy with the Italian theory of teaching a lesson to the young Ethiopian "Nazis" who are alleged to dream of founding a pan-African empire at the expense of European powers. Thus, if there is any possibility of doubt, the Italians will get it and the league will be able to proclaim that the Ethiopians have brought trouble on themselves.

Britain Seeks Share.

One of the biggest factors in the league's attitude is naturally the fact that the French support Italy. Even Great Britain is inclined to be severe on the Ethiopians, but the British do not intend to allow the Italians to establish an exclusive protectorate over Ethiopia.

Apparently, however, Great Britain does not mind if the Italians are very liberal with themselves in marking out the frontier. Anything more ambitious would necessitate common action of all three powers, possibly culminating in a partition of Ethiopia.

Define Neutral Zone.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 24.—A report from the Addis Ababa correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph declared a neutral zone is to be established between Ualual and Gerlogubi, the scene of recent clashes.

The Italian minister is reported to have accepted the principle that nomads may cross the zone and proposed definitly that it should be three and three-quarters miles wide, through Afdub and Ado.

The Ethiopian government immediately accepted the suggestion, and while reserving rights in the composition of its own delegation, intimated it withdraws its original proposal, to which the Italians objected, that a Belgian and a Swedish officer should attend the discussions.

Send 2,600 More Troops.

ROME, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Cold official silence and the dispatching of another liner with 2,600 more troops for African service today greeted Emperor Haile Selassie's latest gesture for peace in Ethiopia.

A spokesman for the government said no official knowledge of the Ethiopian communique offering concessions regarding the establishment of a neutral zone had reached Italian officials.

The luxury liner Conte Biancamano left Naples en route to Messina and will be dispatched from there tomorrow with a total of 2,600 troops for colonial service and 100 officers. The contingents included radio and auto transport engineers.

With the sailing of the Conte Biancamano and three smaller troop ships scheduled to leave southern Italian ports today and Monday, it was estimated some 15,000 men will have cleared for the colonies.

'RED' CHARGE AGAINST MRS. ROOSEVELT NOW ISSUE IN D. A. R. RACE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A platform and slate announced here today for Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine of Chattanooga, Tenn., candidate for president general of Daughters of the American Revolution, strengthened the prevailing belief that inclusion of Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt's name in a book called "The Red Network" would figure in the fight.

Several weeks ago the President's wife denied so-called "radical activities" attributed to her in "The Red Network," which bore on its jacket an endorsement by Mrs. William A. Becker, the Daughters of the American Revolution national defense chairman, and a candidate now opposing Mrs. Gillentine.

The New Deal itself, and a large number of administration officials were listed in the book by Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago, which called itself a "Who's Who of Radicalism."

Mrs. Gillentine today gave as part of her platform:

"Oppose injection of partisan political issues into the society and recognize the right of every citizen to hold any political beliefs not contrary to the established form of government of the United States."

Although Mrs. William Russell Magna, now president-general, once reprimanded Mrs. Becker for endorsement of "The Red Network," those two women have continued to be friends. Mrs. Becker generally is regarded as Mrs. Magna's choice.

ITALIAN VESSEL SENDS SOS CALL; PROPELLER LOST

LONDON, Feb. 25.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A new distress signal was flashed early today by the Italian steamer Caterina Madre, without a propeller in the storm lashed bay of Biscay.

"Lost propeller. Urgently need towage by daylight," said the SOS message. "This afternoon will be too late."

The steamer, bound from Genoa to Bremen, first asked assistance Friday. A tug was dispatched to her then.

Five other ships sent out distress calls yesterday as gales continued to lash the North Atlantic and the Bay of Biscay and swept into the Mediterranean. The storm caused ten deaths in France.

A Greek steamer believed to be the Delphoi, drifting helplessly with damaged engines, and the British freighter Hillcroft, with a broken rudder, were reported in trouble in almost the same position, off Cape Finisterre, Spain, in the Bay of Biscay.

The United States shipping board freighter Oakman, out of Mobile, Ala., was reported in distress, though in no immediate danger, from a lost rudder 700 miles northwest of the Azores, with the steamship City of Newport News standing by.

An SOS from the Italian steamer Speitro in the Mediterranean was picked up by Casablanca radio station. The disabled British vessel Ottinge messaged that assistance was "urgent" when the towline to a tug taking her to port parted.

PARAGUAY SHUNS LEAGUE THREATS; FIGHTS TO FINISH

Drives Back Bolivians at Villa Montes.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Unmindful of a league of nations ruling that she will be fighting an outlaw war in the Chaco after today, Paraguay intensified the week-long siege of Villa Montes, doorway to Bolivia proper.

Paraguay resigned from the league of nations yesterday. Unless the league revises its peace formula to meet Paraguayan objections—which isn't likely—Paraguay apparently is determined to fight the war to the last ditch.

Backed by Main Fortress.

Reports reaching the Paraguayan capital from the front lines said Paraguayan troops were dominating the entire Villa Montes sector. It was claimed a raid intercepting a trail leading to one of the principal Bolivian outposts of Villa Montes left the Bolivians with little except a network of defenses in the main fortress itself.

This network extends for several miles in a semi-circle from the north to the Pilcomayo river, and this showed signs of being able to hold out indefinitly.

Geneva's position may be complicated by the unwillingness of some Latin-American states to permit sanctions against Paraguay, although Bolivia certainly will demand them.

Must Include Brazil and U. S.

The league's position concerning further punitive measures was further complicated by the fact that the United States and Brazil, the two nations with major influence on the belligerents, are not members of the league, but still must be consulted in any peace plan if it is to have any hope of effectiveness.

Thoroughly irked by the league, Paraguay, it was understood, would welcome a new peace effort by American nations.

If the league persists in the effort of European nations to apply sanctions it probably not only would encounter opposition from several Latin-American states, but would place Argentina in an embarrassing position. Sentiment here is pro-Paraguayan partly because Paraguayan trade is almost entirely with Argentina, and Argentina has large investments in Paraguay.

"War Over in Two Years."

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Apparently Bolivia was not in the least surprised today at hearing Paraguay had withdrawn from the league of nations. Although there was no official comment, the newspapers claimed disinterest in the matter. "El Diario" predicted the war would be over in two years and "then Bolivia will not have the least interest in whether Paraguay has relations with the league of nations."

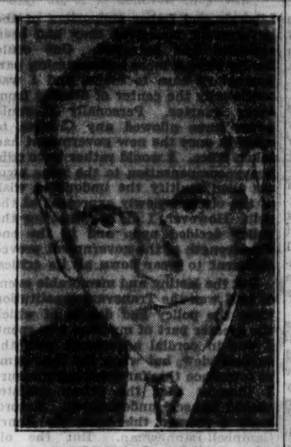
TARGET OF PLOT



EUGENE G. GRACE.

Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The federal government's entrance into investigation of a kidnap plot against Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, was reported tonight by Mayor Robert Pfeifle.

The mayor, named as one of two public officials to be abducted with the steel magnate, said several men are being sought in connection with the plot—apparently nipped by arrest of four men on robbery charges.

Agents of the U. S. justice department are working with state police and Bethlehem detectives, he said.

Details of the case were hidden behind a veil of police silence. State Policeman Marshall Wilhelm disclosed that one of the quartet of alleged robbers revealed Grace was to have been held for $250,000 ransom.

GAMBLERS LOSE JOBS; GAMBLED AT RIVAL CASINOS

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

NICE, France, Feb. 24.—The San Remo gambling casino has just summarily dismissed sixty of its employés including twelve croupiers "for conduct unbecoming casino employés."

According to information current on the Riviera, the casino, through its director, charged that the casino personnel spent their spare time gambling in rival casinos, and gambling is forbidden to casino employés. It is also charged that the croupiers took advantage of unlucky gamblers, buying at low sums their jewels, automobiles, and other property.

The discharged employés filed suit against the casino company protesting the summary dismissals. In the complaint they charge the company with retaining more than half the tips given employés by lucky gamblers.

BORAH SOUNDS A WARNING ON TRUST CLASSING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] today warned Donald Richberg and the administration against any attempt to differentiate between "good" trusts and "bad" trusts in extending NRA.

"You may just as well talk about good kidnapers and bad kidnapers," said Borah, who months ago asserted NRA was fostering monopoly.

The Idaho senator today referred specifically to the speech at Miami Friday night by Richberg, director of the national emergency council, in which the administration's principal advisor on NRA argued for a measure flexible enough to allow a distinction between kinds of trusts.

In his statement, Senator Borah said the argument in favor of such a flexible law reminded him of a "recent argument of a noted lawyer making the best effort possible to steer between extortion and kidnaping."

"Bad trusts and good trusts incorporated into law would simply mean that monopolies were to be permitted to prey upon the people by leave of political favoritism," he added.

ELEVATOR MEN DELAY STRIKE IN N. Y. A DAY

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A 24 hour delay in a threatened midtown New York strike of building service employés was announced tonight by James J. Bambrick, president of the employés union local, after a conference with Francis J. Biddle, chairman of the National Labor Relations board.

In a last minute attempt to avert the strike of 20,000 elevator operators, janitors, and other workers in the garment and fur section skyscrapers, between 40th and 14th streets, Biddle came from Washington and went into immediate conference with Bambrick.

The union leader set the new deadline at Tuesday morning.

LESS NEPOTISM SHOWS IN HOUSE OF NEW CONGRESS

One in 12 Has Clerk of Same Last Name.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—House members nowadays are putting fewer relatives on the house pay roll. At least that is indicated by records of the disbursing office showed today.

The last pay roll of the 73d congress shows forty-three house members, or about one out of every ten, had in their offices employés with names identical with their own. For the new congress, the 74th, the total is down to thirty-four, approximately one in twelve.

There is some reason, however, to believe that some congressmen are saying to others, in order to avoid the charge of nepotism: "You put my daughter in your office and I'll hire you son"—to say nothing of "in-laws." The disbursing office naturally can't go into the ancestry of clerks.

Here's the present list, with the name of the employé with the same last name as the congressman, and the amount of the latter's monthly check:

ASHBROOK [Dem., O.], Paul R. Ashbrook, $93.
BOLAND [Dem., Pa.], Lenore Boland, $255.

U. of Iowa President Orders "Hell Week" Investigation

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 24.—(AP)—University of Iowa social fraternities prepared tonight to alter freshmen hazing methods after their activities during the annual "hell week" just closed were ordered investigated by Dr. Eugene A. Gilmore, university president. One fraternity, Phi Delta Theta, announced it had voted to abolish "hell week" in favor of a "program of constructive nature" to test its pledges of eligibility to initiation.

SWALLOWS ETHER AND DIES.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

The fascination of British politics strong upon him, Churchill becomes a member of the government, absorbed in the problems confronting the empire after the turn of the century. His work as undersecretary of state for the colonies is described in some detail.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

At the general election in January 1906 the Tory party and the Protectionist movement sustained a castastrophic defeat. Hardly one hundred and fifty Conservative members got back into the house of commons. The long reign of Lord Salisbury and his nephew, Arthur Balfour, had come to an end, and with it ended the Victorian system of politics. Several Liberal constituencies invited me to be their candidate. I selected central Manchester as I wished to remain in touch with the Lancashire folk whom I had begun to know, and whom to know was to like. It was also the constituency in which the free trade hall actually stood.

I led the Liberal and Free Trade fight in this great and at that time thriving city. On the morning of the poll Manchester and Salford had been represented by ten Conservative members. When the results were declared, their places were filled by ten Liberals or Labor men. Mr. Balfour himself was heavily defeated. When we got back to the hotel after these astounding results had been made known, I said to the correspondent of the Daily Mail, Charles Hands, a gallant little man who had been badly wounded in South Africa, "What do you think of that?" He replied: "It is a grand slam in doubled no trumps." And so it was.

He Accepts Office.

I had already accepted office in the Liberal government as undersecretary of state for the colonies. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the prime minister, had offered me the financial secretaryship of the treasury which is of higher rank and salary. But the settlement of South Africa was a subject with which, from all I had learned out there, I felt competent to deal, and I looked forward to facing Mr. Chamberlain from the treasury bench upon the burning South African questions which had to be settled.

During the whole of 1906 I was entirely absorbed in South Africa. Although not in the cabinet, I conducted all the numerous debates and made the principal speeches. We had stormy and bitter debates upon the question of Chinese labor for the gold mines. The Liberals had attacked this with the utmost violence during the election and the Tories ascribed their defeat to misrepresentation upon the subject. However, when the new parliament met it was found that the Liberal cabinet had authorized the bringing in of twenty thousand more Chinese "slaves," as they were called, on the grounds that the contracts had been made before they took office and must be respected.

Faces Heavy Attack.

I had to face this awkward situation, where the defeated Tories indulged in triumphant mockery and the ardent Liberals and Labor supporters of the government conceived they had been stultified and betrayed. One could hardly have a more embarrassing parliamentary case to make, and I was continually the center of attacks from every quarter. Personally I would never have allowed any Chinese to come in once the new government had taken office. I would rather have paid heavy compensation to the mine owners than stultify the undoubted wish of the electors newly expressed at the poll. However, I did my best for the policy decided upon and in the end the strength of the government proved sufficient to wear down all its critics.

But the lasting and memorable event of 1906 was the Transvaal constitution upon the policy and details of which the greater part of my time was spent. I was in cordial agreement with the cabinet view, but when the time came to introduce this far reaching measure I thought that the prime minister should himself undertake it. Accordingly I pressed this upon Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. But the old gentleman would have none of it. "No," he said, "you have had the rough and you shall have the smooth. You have had the work and you shall have the prize. Do it yourself and I will stand by and see fair play."

He Introduces Measure.

So I introduced the Transvaal constitution bill in a speech of one and a half hours, and afterward piloted the measure through all its stages. I rejoice to have been associated with the deed which has certainly stood the test of time.

The immediate consequence was to make Gen. Botha prime minister of the Transvaal. I knew that this would be a result, though it was a surprise to many. At first people were staggered, for it was barely five years since he had been in command of the Boers who fought us to the end. When he came over to the imperial conference of 1907 a great luncheon was given to the colonial premiers, as they were then called, in Westminster hall. As Botha was making his way along the tables to his place, he passed me and my mother, sitting at the same table. I introduced him to her and he said, putting his hand on my shoulder: "He and I have been out in all weathers." At this time also I was sworn to the privy council.

Liberal Leader Dies.

During the winter of 1907 Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman fell grievously ill and in the spring he died. As this melancholy event evidently drew near Mr. Asquith was seen in every quarter as the natural successor. When the time came to consider the changes which would be required in the cabinet he sent for me, and after making complimentary reference to my work, asked me whether I would like to go to the admiralty as first lord.

He was determined, he said, that this office should be in the house of commons on account of the serious financial and naval issues in which it was now involved. Alternatively he asked me to consider the local government board [now the ministry of health] as a sphere in which important social reforms were possible.

I chose the local government board although it was at that time only a second class office because my main interest at that time was the condition of the working people, and I saw the opportunity of extensive reforms in housing, health, and other directions. However, when the government came to be formed Mr. John Burns objected to leaving the local government board and in consequence in March, 1908, I became president of the board of trade, replacing Mr. Lloyd George who became chancellor of the exchequer.

USES AIRPLANE TO SPEED FURS FROM FAR NORTH

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Slicing weeks from the schedule of the fur buyer who used to take a whole winter on snowshoes to visit the cabins of Indian trappers in the far north, Joseph Mirguet, Rochester fur trader, landed his ski equipped airplane yesterday at the municipal airport with a $5,000 cargo of valuable pelts he gathered in a week's visit to the wooded fastnesses of northern Ontario.

The 24 year old furrier took off a week ago with vivid memories of a similar excursion that ended in a disaster last year, when his plane was destroyed by fire. But success was his reward this year in the shape of a capacity load of beaver, fox, mink and other valuable furs.

SPANISH ARMY READY TO CRUSH RED DISORDERS

MADRID, Feb. 24.—(AP)—High army officials claimed today they were ready to handle any organized campaign of disorders, said to be planned by leftists for tomorrow or Tuesday.

A decree prolonging martial law for 30 days in several provinces was published today.

Leftists, the government said it was informed, hope to intimidate authorities who tomorrow will consider death penalties given several radicals for participation in last October's costly revolt.

Correspondents throughout Spain reported conditions tranquil except for animated café controversies, especially in workers' quarters, against the death penalties.

U. S. WILL PRESS QUIZ OF MELLON STOCK TRANSFER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Opening the second week of Andrew W. Mellon's income tax hearing, the government tomorrow is expected to delve deeper into the transfer of banking stock to his brother—a deal it contends was but one of many "shadow sales" made with the intent of escaping taxation.

Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, said he will try to show from testimony of Mellon's confidential secretary, Howard McCracken Johnson, that the financier actually retained control of his bank stock after it had been purportedly sold to the brother, R. B. Mellon.

He made one move in this direction near the end of Johnson's third day on the witness stand Thursday in tracing the acquisition of a 50 per cent interest in a large banking management concern, Melbank, by one of the Mellon family's holding companies, Smithfield securities.

Mellon's chief counsel, Frank J. Hogan, announced that the former treasury secretary will go on the stand himself later in the hearing.

STOLEN SECURITY GANG'S DEALINGS BARED BY BAIATA

Ex-Convict Is to Testify Against Barry.

Information which may lead to the arrest of members of a gang of stolen and forged bond dealers was given to the state's attorney's office yesterday by Joseph Baiata, ex-convict, as he amplified his earlier story of the plot whereby he sought to gain control of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill.

It was Baiata's intention, he told Assistant State's Attorney Vernon C. Thompson, to replace the sound securities in the insurance company's portfolio with stolen and counterfeit bonds and to replace other of the company's negotiable assets with "hot" bonds, purchased through the gang.

State's attorney's police are seeking two salesmen of stolen securities whose identity was said to have been revealed by Baiata.

Plot Is Balked in Time.

Completion of the purchase of the insurance company and plot to loot it of its assets was balked by State Insurance Inspector Ernest Palmer, who became suspicious of the transaction last November. The confession of conscience-smitten Otto Van Derck, 24 year old bank clerk, that he had aided in the embezzlement of $55,000 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank exposed the entire plot.

Dave [Long Count] Barry, prize fight referee, and Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, are on trial before Judge Michael Feinberg on charges of embezzling funds of the bank. Van Derck last week testified that at the instigation of Barry, Baiata and Karatz he failed to charge to the account of "Dave Barry, Inc." $55,000 in overdrafts. A portion of this money constituted the $25,000 down payment made to stockholders of the insurance company last fall.

Baiata to Testify for State.

Baiata, who has pleaded guilty, led investigators Saturday to a safety deposit box where a check on Barry's account, endorsed by Harney B. Hill, late chairman of the board of the company, was found. Questioned all day yesterday, Baiata probably will be a witness for the state on Tuesday. Bank clerks will testify when the trial is resumed.

In addition to the $900 check, which is regarded by Assistant State's Attorney Thompson as tangible evidence that Hill, who committed suicide Dec. 1, knew that he was dealing with Barry and not with a syndicate of brokers, $1,250 in stolen bonds were found in the vault. These were to be checked today by state and federal authorities in an effort to link Baiata and the persons who sold him the $1,250 securities for $325 with bank or mail robberies.

Members of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters were instructed in the latest dance movements yesterday in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. Jack Manning, dancer, came here from New York to show the forty young women instructors all the new tap dance rhythms. They in turn will pass on their knowledge to young dancers seeking stage careers.

JUDGE RESTING WHILE HIS SON STAYS IN JAIL

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer permitted his 19 year old son, Phil, to remain in the Pawnee county jail today without making immediate efforts to provide $25,000 bond for his release. The youth was sentenced yesterday to 25 years in prison for manslaughter. Judge Kennamer, ill and exhausted after his son's trial, rested today at a resort near Tulsa.

A. Flint Moss, chief counsel for young Kennamer, said he planned to start action tomorrow toward providing the bond. Young Kennamer sent out a jail trusty for a half dozen Sunday newspapers this morning and spent the day comparing the stories of his conviction of the killing of John Gorrell, dental student.

COCK FIGHT SPECTATORS ROBBED.

Coshocton, O., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Patrons of a cock fight in a dance hall near here reported to police today they had been held up by a gang which took from $6,000 to $10,000 in cash and valuables.

ITALIANS BUILD ODD PLANE TO TRY DISTANCE FLIGHT

Wings of "Flying Fish" Shaped Like "M."

ROME, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A strange "flying fish" was being tested out in secret today in the hope of adding a long distance flight record to the speed and altitude marks already set up by the national aviation corps.

The "flying fish," or P16, as it is known in official circles, is said to look like a huge letter "M" against the sky. Its wings slant forward and back from the fuselage like the feelers of some giant insect.

Can Alight on Sea.

Official circles indicated the ship probably will attempt a distance record late in March or early in April.

Although it is a land plane with landing wheels, its wings give the big ship stabilized floating capacity and make it as safe for sea landing as a hydroplane or seaplane, say air officials who have seen it.

Powered by three "Piaggio X" motors with double compressors, the P16 is credited by its engineers with a speed of 250 miles an hour and a range of 7,500 miles. They claim it also has stratospheric propensities and can cruise comfortably at heights greater than 30,000 feet.

Flying Aces as Pilots.

It is hoped that Maj. Attilio Biseo, a key pilot in Gen. Italo Balbo's trans-Atlantic flights, and Renato Donati, holder of the world's altitude record, will man the ship in an attempt to beat the world's distance flight record now held by the Frenchmen, Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi.

If they do, it is believed they will attempt to fly from Rome to the Straits of Magellan via Buenos Aires. This would be several thousand miles longer than the Frenchmen's distance record.

FINDS FILIPINOS WANT TO RETURN TO NATIVE LANDS

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Approximately one-third of the 60,000 Filipinos in the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain areas want to return to their native land.

This was disclosed tonight by Edward W. Cahill, United States immigration commissioner, on the eve of a congressional inquiry on the advisability of appropriating funds to repatriate islanders weary of their struggle in the United States.

Years ago, when labor was relatively scarce, the Filipinos got along fairly well at menial jobs that held little appeal to white workers. But when job-hunting white men took to fruit and vegetable harvesting work, the lot of the Filipino became increasingly hard, Cahill said.

Finally thousands of them petitioned President Roosevelt asking that they be returned to the Philippines at the cost of the United States.

IN ADDITION TO the added protection, economy and service your American Auto agent or broker gives you
By buying American Auto Insurance through a professional insurance agent or broker, you get protection to meet your needs—not those of the "average" motorist. As a result you run no risk of getting just "auto insurance" that may fail you when you need it most.
Your American Auto representative is an auto insurance specialist, able to save you money on your auto insurance costs without sacrificing protection. More than that he is an accredited agent or broker—not a mere insurance peddler or premium collector. He is on hand when you need him—guarding your interests and saving you needless worry and expense when there's trouble.
Before you buy auto insurance, or before you renew a present policy, consult an American Auto agent or broker. Let him show you how the company he represents gives you MORE.
American Auto was the first company to issue all the automobile insurance coverage in a single policy. It is still the largest stock company writing automobile insurance exclusively.

WOMEN'S FORUM ON PROBLEMS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Conference to Hear Club Leaders of Nation.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

It's only a matter of hours now until the fourth floor of the Palmer House will be teeming with activity incident to the Conference on Current Problems, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The opening session of the event, heralded for weeks through the ranks and in the bulletins of women's organizations, is scheduled for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Already some of the distinguished women who have traveled to Chicago to participate, are conning the program in its final form and visiting with friends from other cities. One of the earliest to arrive was Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson of New York City, beloved and highly respected counselor of feminine groups for many years, who will give the keynote address tomorrow evening from the conference platform.

Mrs. Richardson, director of the Good Citizenship bureau of the Woman's Home Companion, is on her way east after a lengthy business tour of the country, during which she has conferred with scores of women's clubs and associations. Her talk, based on these and prior experiences, is titled "Organizations and Objectives."

Federation Chiefs to Attend.

In addition to the national president of the General Federation of Women's clubs—Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Washington, D. C., who will arrive tomorrow morning—eight heads of state federations will be among those present.

Springtime may be hovering [and shivering] in the wings as this great assembly convenes, but it won't be Easter bonnets or wavering skirt lengths that will monopolize attention this time. These women, representative of many other thousands in the midwest, are intent on learning as much as possible during the two days of addresses about trends in our national, civic and economic affairs, that will help them to understand current and future developments in many fields.

Thus, in the initial session, they will hear about legislation now pending or in prospect, which eventually may intimately touch their own lives. Cultural trends will be the theme of Tuesday afternoon's discussions. Social welfare will be the general topic on Wednesday morning, and phases of economics on Wednesday afternoon. Tuesday evening will be occupied with four addresses on subjects unrelated in themselves, each of which, however, is important and of general interest. Prince Hubertus Loewenstein of Germany will take the program at this time into the field of international problems, in his analysis of "The Tinder Box of Europe."

Dr. Phifer to Attend.

Another topic on the same session which will attract particular attention is "A Medical Summary," to be presented by Dr. Charles H. Phifer, president of the Chicago Medical society. Dr. Phifer will outline the avenues of research and experiment medical science is now pursuing to improve the health of women and to decrease mortality among them.

Musical interludes will bring before the conference five of the best known singers in the country, representing the worlds of opera, concert and radio. In order of their listing, they are: Berenice Taylor, prima donna of W-G-N; Lawrence Salerno, Neapolitan baritone of W-G-N; Sara Ann McCabe, coloratura soprano of the Edgewater Beach hotel; Mario Fiorella, opera and concert star, and Mark Love, featured basso of W-G-N.

At noon, tomorrow, the Chicago Woman's club will honor Mrs. Poole and other celebrities of the conference, with a luncheon in the main dining room of its clubhouse at 72 East 11th street. Mrs. Ozora S. Davis, president, will preside.

Delegates to See Film Preview.

Wednesday evening the theater of the clubhouse will be the scene of the final feature of the two day program—a film preview of Charles Laughton's most recent vehicle, "Ruggles of Red Gap," by courtesy of the Better Film Council of Chicagoland. The film is hailed by critics as the greatest film achievement of recent months, and a distinct departure in motion picture technique, with practically a perfect cast.

Prior to the film showing, groups of conference visitors will be escorted through the plant of THE TRIBUNE, to see this newspaper in the process of publication. Reservations are limited to those securing tickets.

Because of the large number of requests for conference tickets arriving after the supply was exhausted, arrangements have been made to accommodate a large group in the Exhibit hall of the Palmer house, half a floor below the ballroom, to which the program will be amplified through loud speakers. No tickets will be required for this room, and all speakers and singers will be introduced there.

STABS PATRON IN TAVERN.

Martin King, 32 years old, colored, 553 East 31st street, was stabbed to death yesterday morning by another colored man in a tavern at 451 East 31st street. The slayer escaped.

Club Leaders to Attend Conference

MRS. THOMAS MOHN, [MINNESOTA.] | MRS. ROBERT A. HICKS, [INDIANA.] | MRS. F. H. CLAUSEN, [WISCONSIN.] | MISS ELIZABETH HAYMAKER, [OHIO.]

MRS. EUGENE HENELY, [IOWA.] | MRS. W. F. FARRELL, [ILLINOIS.] | MRS. D. C. CHASTAIN, [MISSOURI.] | MRS. SEARS R. McLEAN, [MICHIGAN.]

These eight presidents of state federations of women's clubs will be present at the Conference on Current Problems, sponsored by The Tribune, which is to be held tomorrow and Wednesday in the Palmer House.

MRS. FIERMONTE MEETS HER BOXER MATE'S EX-WIFE

ROME, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The two Mrs. Fiermontes, one American and one Italian, met for the first time today and sat right down to talk about a subject dear to their hearts—the handsome Enzo. Mrs. Madeliene Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, a member of one of America's wealthiest families, now second wife of the former pugilist, really entertained at tea in her luxurious hotel suite two other Mrs. Fiermontes.

One was Enzo's mother and the other the fighter's sturdy, black haired first wife, Tosca, who comes from Italian peasant stock.

"My son's wife is a dear," said Enzo's white haired mother, after returning to her humble apartment in a congested quarter. "I am sure they are going to be happy together as soon as his passport is returned and they can go back to America."

The mother said Enzo and Mrs. Astor Fiermonte and the Naples lawyer, which the latter retained, had discussed a further financial settlement on Mrs. Tosca Fiermonte and her baby son, Giovanni. They tentatively agree, she said, on $10,000 at the time of the divorce (which Enzo got in America) and 500 lira (about $42.50) a month. Enzo has been providing for the child all that was necessary for the present.

MAYOR IS GIVEN 15,000 PLEDGES IN SAFETY DRIVE

At a community meeting held at the Hubbard Junior High school yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Lawn Civic association Mayor Kelly was presented with 15,000 safety pledges in connection with the Keep Chicago Safe committee's drive to reduce automobile accidents.

The pledges were obtained at parochial and public schools, churches and community organizations, William S. Stelzer, chairman of the affair, informed Mayor Kelly.

Members of the school board, the Parent-Teacher association and the West Lawn Improvement association took part in the program. More than 1,200 persons attended.

SEEK WOULD-BE ROBBERS.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Federal authorities and police today were investigating the holdup of B. P. Triplett, 67, United States mail messenger, by two would-be robbers who released him last night when they discovered there was no mail in his truck.

WOMAN STABBED TO DEATH.

Ruth Robinson, 22 years old, colored, 849 West 14th street, was stabbed to death in a tavern at 1300 Washburn avenue by another colored woman who escaped.

CORRECTION . . .

In the Chicago Tribune of Saturday, February 16th, we ran an advertisement on Donegal Tweed Shirts.

It appears that the words "Donegal Tweed" are usually applied to a wool fabric and refer to materials of Irish and not of Scotch origin as we inadvertently mentioned.

While the shirts advertised were cotton and not advertised as wool, if any customer is dissatisfied, we invite a return of the shirts purchased for refund.

RIO DEATH BARES CAPONE OFFER IN LINDBERGH CASE

Gangster's 'Aid' Refused in Kidnaping Hunt.

Following his death Saturday in Oak Park, where he had lived in seclusion with his wife and two children at 1000 Bellforte avenue for a year or more, hitherto undisclosed details of the part played by Frank Rio, notorious gangster of prohibition days, in presenting Al Capone's offer to assist in running down the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, were disclosed yesterday.

This new chapter for the obituary of the gunman who was Capone's bodyguard and served one year in jail with Capone in Philadelphia, was revealed by A. P. Madden, head of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue office here.

Offer Refused By Madden.

Madden was at the New Jersey home of the Lindberghs, shortly after the kidnaping on March 1, 1932, when Rio appeared to tender his and Capone's services in the hunt for the kidnaper. The offer was turned down.

When Rio arrived at the Hopewell estate, according to Madden's account of the episode yesterday, he carried credentials purporting to be signed by Chicago politicians, identifying him as "Frank Ross," who had "contacts" with the underworld and "might help Col. Lindbergh in dealing with kidnapers." He was turned over to Madden.

Madden recognized "Ross" as Frankie Rio, whom he knew to be one of the close associates of Capone, and the underworld emissary forthwith was ejected from the Lindbergh estate.

It was at this time that Capone was being held in the Cook county jail following his conviction and sentence to serve ten years in federal prison for income tax evasion, and was known to be boasting that he could recover the Lindbergh baby if given the opportunity. Rio's futile mission was considered a move on the part of Capone to bargain with the government.

Once Picked to Succeed Capone.

Rio, who died of heart disease, had managed to keep out of the limelight of gang activities since the departure of Capone to Atlanta and Alcatraz island prison. Rio once had been considered the likely successor to the throne of the gang czar and was known to have retained control of Sicilian underworld elements and to have had important interests in cafés, night clubs, and gambling houses.

His death attracted the interest of police when the body was taken secretly from the Oak Park home to the Rago undertaking establishment at 624 North Western avenue in Chicago. This was in violation of an ordinance which requires notice of intention to move a body.

Announcement was made at the Rago establishment yesterday that a lavish funeral was planned for the one time Capone guard and that burial probably would be made Wednesday in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Jack McGurn in Hospital.

Jack McGurn, another well known Capone gangster, has been in a serious condition at the Mount Sinai hospital since last Tuesday, it was learned yesterday. Dr. H. A. Gussin, who operated on the gangster for an abscess yesterday reported that his condition improved following the operation.

McGurn's wife, the former Louise Rolfe, known as his "blonde alibi," has been a constant visitor at his bedside, it was said.

RUSSIANS TRACE CHILD SKELETON BACK 30,000 YEARS

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R.—Feb. 24.—(AP)—The richly ornamented skeleton of a small child found near Irkutsk in an archæological field thought to date back 30,000 years was studied today by the soviet Academy of Science.

Around the neck of the skeleton was a necklace of carved bone beads from which was suspended a plate, made from what was believed to be a mammoth bone bearing a design of three snakes. At the feet of the skeleton, found under a tombstone, were large pointed weapons made of similar bone, as well as the image of a small bird.

Nearby were 20 bone images of women, thought to be figures of goddesses. A plate believed to be made from a mammoth tusk, on which was cut a picture, was among other articles unearthed. A farmer digging in his cellar stumbled upon the find.

Rob Delicatessen Owner of $2,000 Kept in Safe

Theodore Domicki, 45 years old, was robbed of $2,000 yesterday in his delicatessen and sausage factory at 5930 Lawrence avenue. Domicki, who lives in the rear of the store, told police three men forced him to open his safe and give them the money.

U. S. COLLEGES FACING SERIOUS MONEY PROBLEM

Carnegie Report Tells Scarcity of Gifts.

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Many American colleges will lose ground and some will disappear in a struggle for existence in which even the well endowed may suffer, the Carnegie Foundation of Teaching predicts in its twenty-ninth annual report, made public today.

Two factors in the struggle for existence are discussed in the review of the year by Walter A. Jessup, president of the foundation. One is the shrinking of educational endowments, together with a scarcity of new gifts and a reduction in tuition. The other is what Mr. Jessup calls "the deflation of the rah-rah boy of yesterday."

"The student on the campus is no longer the blasé, sophisticated student of the 'twenties,'" Mr. Jessup says. "He is a hard working, serious minded person who demands more of the college library, the laboratory and the instructor than did his brother of a decade ago. He is increasingly a patron of the seminary, the serious lecture, the art gallery, the symphony concert. This student is deflating the 'rah boy' of yesterday. He has a different attitude toward scholarship, research, athletics, fraternities, and student activities.

University of Chicago Praised.

"It is a fact that every serious minded experiment in part of educational institutions to attain a new level of educational effectiveness is now being met by the students with serious minded and intelligent coöperation. This has been notably true at Chicago, Harvard, Minnesota and Princeton. It is altogether likely that the students will do their part in maintaining colleges as 'seats of learning' if the colleges—executives and staf—can forget the educational fantasies of the nineteen twenties and face the present in the spirit of reality."

As to the "struggle for existence," Mr. Jessup says there are more than 800 institutions of high education in the United States, of which 100 receive aid from the public treasury, contrasted with the fewer than twenty-five such institutions in England, Scotland and Wales.

This multiplication of institutions, he adds, was due to the ambitions of a boom period in which institutions undertook what they were not equipped to carry out.

Money Not Whole Issue.

"In the acute struggle for academic existence many colleges will no doubt lose ground and some of them will disappear," Mr. Jessup declares. "The survivors will not necessarily be the ones with the most money nor will the failures necessarily be those with the least money.

"Survival will be conditioned by intelligent leadership, high morale, and the courage to be sincere with the students by selecting and educating them only in the field of institutional competency and in that field doing a genuine and significant job.

"An honest inventory of resources in view of the obligation to students might well suggest to some institutions the wisdom of narrowing their field. Some institutions bearing the name of college have so little to offer that they should disband."

The smaller colleges should take note of the fact that many of the older and larger institutions are placing more emphasis upon student housing, tutorial devices, recreation and study. These have to do with the acceptance of institutional responsibility for student personality, the report concludes.

His physician said there is no skull fracture and expressed the belief he would recover.

REVEALS OUSTED PREMIER PLOTTED AGAINST RULER

SOFIA, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Bulgaria's army ousted the régime of Premier Kimon Guerguieff in January because it failed to show the proper respect for the constitutional rights of King Boris, Gen. Petko Zlateff, the new premier, said today in a speech explaining the change in government.

The last straw, he asserted, was Guerguieff's attempt to give himself certain powers rightly belonging to the king.

"The question of monarchy or republic was never officially raised by suppression of newspaper articles favorable to the king and equivocal statements by the irresponsible made it imperative that the situation be cleared up," the premier declared.

1 KILLED, 3 HURT IN CUBAN SCHOOL STRIKE BOMBING

Students Fight Troops; 15 Injured in Clash.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—Cuba's school strike, which has paralyzed education throughout the island, flared into tragic disorder today. A bomb was hurled in Camaguey, killing a woman and injuring a child and two adults. Previously a bomb wrecked the front of the Camaguey governor's home. None was hurt in that explosion.

The disorders followed a clash at Camaguey city yesterday between troops and students. Fifteen were injured. Last night a bomb, said to have been placed by communists, damaged machinery of the Central Soledad sugar mill. The number of casualties is unknown. The damage will prevent further grinding there this year.

Cigaret Workers Strike.

The student strike, aimed at ousting the government of President Carlos Mendieta, gained headway when workers of the Romeo and Julieta cigaret factory at Havana began a sympathy strike last night. It is reported other workers and even some government departments intend to walk out.

The strikers claimed a major victory when seven prominent officials and educators refused to accept the portfolio of secretary of education in Mendieta's cabinet. They advised the president to resign. They warned the strike would last indefinitly until the government is replaced "by a genuine revolutionary administration."

Mendieta named Secretary of Communications Pelayo Cuervo as acting secretary of education and Secretary of Sanitation Rafael Lorie acting secretary of commerce to fill the vacancies caused by resignations as a result of the strike.

Demand Mendieta's Resignation.

With about 300,000 students on strike, political opposition factions are making the most of the agitation to bombard the government with their own manifestos demanding the resignation of Mendieta and Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the staf of the army.

Col. Batista has ordered the arrest of 400 persons connected with the revolutionary movement.

Guillermo Belt, mayor of Havana, said he was going to demand the immediate removal of American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery "because of his staunch support of Mendieta and Batista, despite ever increasing opposition which is about to set the island again into a volcano of fratricidal warfare."

"As long as Caffery supports Mendieta and Batista, the revolution is inevitable and peace here is impossible," he said.

DR. ROBERT G. AITKEN, LICK OBSERVATORY'S DIRECTOR, TO RESIGN

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 24. — (AP) — Dr. Robert G. Aitken, whose astronomical discoveries during 40 years have brought him international renown, will retire July 1 as director of the Lick observatory on Mount Hamilton.

President Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California said Dr. Aitken's resignation has been accepted. William H. Wright, for 38 years a member of the university staf, will be his successor.

Notable among Dr. Aitken's achievements was his discovery of 3,100 double stars. The Academy of Sciences of France conferred the Lalande prize upon him in 1906, and in 1926 he received the Bruce gold medal for distinguished services to astronomy.

ROBBERS CURB AUTO; HOLD UP TWO COUPLES

Three robbers in an automobile early today forced a machine in which two couples were riding to the curb at Millard avenue and 15th street and robbed the occupants of $31 in cash and jewelry valued at $600. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Vancura, 1801 Highland avenue, Berwyn, and Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Jelinik, 1934 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn. The robbers flourished pistols and forced the men to give up their money and watches. From Vancura they took a $200 ring.

A well dressed robber and his blonde companion early today held up a Yellow taxicab driver at Elston and Kentucky avenues and took from him $8 and his cab. The driver was Weber Larsen, 5722 Ridge avenue. He said the couple, who had hired his cab at Elston and Crawford avenues, refused even to allow him carfare, despite the inclement weather.

"You have been riding all day and walking will be good for you," the blonde told him as she laughed at his predicament and drove away.

OLSON PROGRAM FOR MINNESOTA APPEARS LOST

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Legislative opponents of Gov. Floyd B. Olson's coöperative commonwealth claimed today the ambitious program was doomed.

By an overwhelming 87 to 39 vote the state house of representatives last week refused to submit a constitutional amendment to the people designed to win approval for the administration's $50,000,000 power bill. It was regarded as a first test of strength.

With anti-administration forces dominating the senate as well as the lower house, Olson foemen now assert he killing off of the proposal to allow the state to issue $50,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness to engage in the power business presages similar adverse treatment for other coöperative commonwealth planks in the Farmer-Labor party platform.

A warning from the governor that the people should be permitted to determine the issue was ignored by the house in its vote.

Wounds 3 Ejecting Him from Room; Hangs Self

Samuel Farro, 57 years old, was arrested Saturday after he stabbed two men and injured another when they attempted to eject him from a barber shop at 905 South Laflin street, where he occupied a rear room. Yesterday he hanged himself in the Maxwell street police station.

100,000 FORMER IOWA RESIDENTS AT PICNIC IN LOS ANGELES PARK

The picnic celebrated the 16th anniversary of the founding of the Iowa Society of Southern California to commemorate Iowa's contribution of hundreds of thousands of individuals to the population of this area.

Singing "Out Where the Tall Corn Grows" to open the rally, the picnickers greeted old friends and listened to speeches and entertainment. Polk county's registration of 4,000 headed the list. Ninety-nine Iowa counties were represented.

Gov. Frank Merriam of California was the principal speaker. After he spoke a message was read from Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa.

THE FUTURE OF NRA.

The President has asked congress to give the National Recovery Administration another two years of life but, contrary to his usual practice, he has had no bill prepared incorporating his ideas.

Politically, the problem of what to do with NRA is a difficult one. The NRA failed to produce recovery; but to let NRA die would be to advertise the fact. Candidates for office try to avoid calling attention to their mistakes.

How congress will carry out the recommendation remains to be seen, but meanwhile it can be said with considerable assurance that regardless of what congress does, NRA is dead. Nothing so heartening has happened in the last two years. The collapse of NRA is the collapse of as vicious a tyranny over its citizens as our government has ever sought to impose. The scheme fell to pieces and ten thousand pay rollers couldn't save it.

The outcome was certain from the moment NRA tasted defeat in its campaign to license and censor the press. The great majority of editors and publishers of all shades of opinion were found united in defense of the constitutional guaranty of a free press. They carried the day. So long as the press remains unmuzzled, the recovery administration knows that all its crackings-down must be exposed to public view.

Arbitrary, unfair and unreasonable restrictions on output and prices which were incorporated in many of the codes could be maintained only by star chamber proceedings and the use of force. These devices might subdue Russians, Germans, and Italians, but Americans have shown that they will not tolerate them.

The administration did venture to prosecute a few humble victims like Fred Perkins, the battery manufacturer of York, Pa., but Mr. Perkins had not been in jail many days before he was no longer an obscure citizen. The whole world had learned that he had been tried by a code authority consisting of his competitors and that he had never been given the name of the person who complained against him. The storm of protest that arose in his behalf was too powerful for the government to face again. In consequence, tens of thousands of complaints of alleged code violations are said to be on file in Washington, but the government is afraid to prosecute them. Without prosecution there is no NRA.

One way to make men do what their common sense tells them not to do is bribery. That is the way of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Another way is the application of brute force. That is the way of the NRA, and it has failed because the American people will not stand for it. The government dares not apply it.

In a time of doubt and hesitation, the collapse of NRA is something to ponder upon. It proves that the spirit and habit of liberty are still strong in this country. Bunker Hill remains our highest peak.

THE DYING LAKES.

The dying lakes of Wisconsin are the unexpected results of an unbridled passion for doing something political for the farmer which has afflicted most states for three or more decades. In the hopes of fitting additional if unneeded acres for agriculture there has been a mania for draining away surface water just as soon as it fell.

The dying lakes are some of the beautiful recreational spots from which water has been receding for years, leaving them dismal mudbanks and little more.

The current trend of legislative thought is toward the realization that the public waters, wild life and the recreational appeal of woods and lakes are a greater asset to Wisconsin than the doubtful value to agriculture of the unsuitable acres brought into production by ill advised drainage projects.

Wisconsin is now studying a conservation bill to construct channels for draining flood waters into chains of lakes and to impound them there under the control of the public service commission.

By diverting the flood water from rivers into the upper lakes of chains the conservation commission is hopeful of raising the levels of perhaps a third of the many beautiful lakes in the state. The purpose is to restore them as vacation spots, prevent flood damage, stop soil erosion, and decrease the danger of drouths. It is an effort to restore the status quo of nature.

Many of the most attractive northern lakes as well as some in Waukesha and Walworth counties in the southeastern section have been receding. Scarcely any drainage project has been too fantastic to lack the approval of sympathetic politicians. These schemes are not to be confused with need of tiling and draining of lowlands by individual farm owners but are the huge enterprises undertaken to change the natural characteristics of large areas.

It is no doubt desirable to take what action is needed to store the flood waters, however it is to be done. It is apt to involve the spending of more millions to undo the work done by the ill considered public spending of a previous generation of leaders who thought they were helping the farmers.

The Wisconsin forests and lakes are the natural summer playgrounds of all of the middle west, and it is to the general interest of all people as well as to the people of Wisconsin that they be restored and maintained.

They will bring to the state many times the income of the marginal farm lands into which they might be transformed.

FOUR YEAR ALDERMEN.

Members of the city council elected tomorrow and in the supplemental election on April 2 will be chosen for four year terms. In view of this fact, voter interest should be even more acute and more active than it was when aldermen were elected for only two years.

Lethargy toward nominations for the offices of mayor, city clerk, and city treasurer should not lead to neglect to vote in aldermanic contests. This is especially true in wards in which seats of minority members — in this instance Republican members—are at stake. An essential of the two party system is an alert, watchful minority; and, at best, the indications now are that all the Republican winners in the two elections may be counted on the fingers of two hands.

Not all of these are to be regarded as probable restraints on a powerful majority, but in several wards there are experienced and tested candidates in danger of being engulfed by an extreme preponderance of the Democratic over the Republican mayoralty primary vote.

Such men are Ald. O. E. Northrup, 19th; Ald. Joseph C. Ross, 40th; Ald. John A. Massen, 48th, and John J. Hoellen, a former alderman, in the 47th. All four are capable, energetic, and faithful.

EXPLAINING THE GENEVA CONFERENCE.

The appearance of William B. Shearer at a hearing of the senate committee investigation of munition supply raises again a question we have asked more than once and have not heard answered. How was Mr. Shearer able to bring about the breakdown of the Geneva conference on naval limitations in 1927 as alleged?

The question takes us into the strange world of pacifist mythology. It assumes that one professional press agent, a private individual without official or political status, was able by some means unrevealed to prevent the authorized delegates of two great governments from coming to an agreement on matters of high public concern, namely, the limitation of their respective naval establishments. The delegates who were thus bemused, perverted or paralyzed were all men of note, diplomats of reputation, naval men of high rank, all selected by their governments for integrity and competence to deal with the special matters before the conference. Yet we have been asked to believe that the hired agent of certain private enterprises, shipbuilders, without official status or public influence, was able to abort their counsels and bring to futility a conference upon which the anxious attention of the world was directed.

To the rational mind this calls for a good deal of explanation, but it has had none. To the irresponsible or ignorant mind it implies in plain English that the delegates were purchasable and purchased by cash supplied by private enterprises alleged to be interested in the results of the conference. Perhaps there is an alternative implication, that the delegates were so feeble-minded as to be molded to the will of this malign and potent individual. The alternatives are equally incredible except to pacifists or witch hunters. Yet the myth remains current. The only fact we have is that Mr. Shearer was at Geneva, drawing pay from certain shipbuilding companies, and while common sense would suggest that he was there to get information for possible business use, he has been charged with bringing down in ruin an international conference.

Editorial of the Day

A TENNESSEE BAYARD.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The purpose of the bill in congress to retire Sergt. York with the rank of major and a salary of $2,250 a year patently is to provide the world war's most famous soldier with a becoming pension.

Congress long since awarded him the congressional medal of honor.

When Marshal Foch decorated York with the croix de guerre he said of the achievement which earned that distinction: "What you did was the greatest thing ever accomplished by any soldier of any of the armies in Europe."

At the head of the remnant of a platoon that had been decimated by a German machine gun nest in the Argonne, Corporal York, as he then was, started out for revenge. Taking cover in a ravine, York picked off the machine gunners one by one with his automatic pistol. When a German lieutenant with seven men tried to rush his position York killed all eight of them. Then he stumbled onto a German battalion headquarters and bagged the major and his staf. Apparently willing to call it a day, York headed for his own lines, wiping out a few more machine gun nests on his way home. When his prisoners were counted they numbered 132.

When he returned to the United States Sergt. York was lionized and, as is the custom in this country, all sorts of offers were made to him to appear on the stage or in the movies or otherwise to commercialize his fame. They were all repulsed.

Going back to his native hills in Tennessee, York interested himself in an agricultural school for mountain boys and girls and in 1929 was made its president and manager.

Alvin C. York has proved himself in war and peace sans peur et sans reproche.

CULTURAL THOUGHT for the Day: Feb. 25. Gen. Wallenstein assassinated 1634; Robert, Earl of Essex, beheaded 1600; Frederick I. of Prussia died 1713. Quite a cheerful day this, but we must pick out one these gay items and squeeze some erudition out of it. Count Wallenstein intrigues me most because he was bumped off or taken for a ride or something, which makes the event seem as familiar to us as though it had happened yesterday. Wallenstein was a great general and fought nobly and well for Ferdinand of Austria, but after he had cleaned up a lot of Ferd's enemies and stood up against Gustavus Adolphus and done some chores for Austria, the emperor grew distrustful of him and called in some of the other generals and hinted that he would just love to go to Wally's funeral. And here is the chief lesson we get from Wally. He would have retired to his old home town in Bohemia where he had a private army of his own and been snug as a bug in a rug, but he listened to a fortune teller or astrologer or something, who assured him he wasn't in the slightest danger of being given the double cross and bumped off by his own gang. Which shows how much good it does to pay fifty cents to have your fortune told. For the boys surrounded Wally in his own house and stuck him, and not for the drinks either. So when the fortune teller says for you to look out for a dark woman who is going to steal your loving husband, you tell the fortune teller to go wash her dirty face and grab your four bits back.

DEATH OF THE FRIEND OF GOD.

The lapping sea of death before his feet
Crept near; the wind was wild;
But he, who knew the One he came to meet,
Saw it and smiled.

Stepping without a hesitating word
Into the icy tide,
As if he saw the footprints of his Lord
Gleam at his side,

Borne up by Love that gave as he had given,
He crossed the midnight foam
Like one returning home.

MENDIETA has announced he will remain president of Cuba during the present year at least. That's good news to us cross-word puzzlers. It's hard to keep up with "Horizontal 23, First Name of President of Cuba," when we don't even know his last name, there having been three presidents of Cuba since the last time we looked. Presidents of Cuba ought to hold the job for three days, anyhow. Or anyhow fifteen minutes. Write your congressman today!

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW is announced all set for another visit to the United States. George has probably thought up some more insults that came to him after his first visit and he's coming back to get 'em off his chest. When the rest of us think too late of some good hot ones that we might have shot off, we simply have to keep on mourning over 'em. They're gone forever. But George Bernard always gets another chance. The U. S. just loves to be insulted by George Bernard, whether it's a brand new wise crack or one that he thought up too late to pull at the right time.

NEWSPAPER HEADLINES tell of one boy of fine family, well educated and generously taken care of by his fond parents, being found guilty of murder; of another pretending to be kidnaped and attempting to extort money from his own father; of another admitting on the witness stand that he stole fifty-five thousand dollars from the bank in which he was teller; and others caught as leaders or members of auto theft or bandit gangs. This Flaming Youth thing seems to be flaming a trifle too high; it's getting out of control. We of the older generation can't understand it. Maybe it's because our Flaming Youth of today weren't raised the way we were. We were usually raised with a barrel stave or sometimes our stern parents used a baseball bat or a hickory club. But we were well raised. And how! And it seems to have done us a lot of good.

WHAT ARE BACTERIA?

BACTERIA are extremely tiny living things, much too small to be seen with the naked eye. Our knowledge of bacteria really dates from the time of Pasteur, although a Dutchman, Leeuwenhoek, with his primitive microscope, first saw living animalcula moving about in water. These were not bacteria, but comparatively large forms of animal life. Pasteur showed that bacteria cause putrefaction in meat broth, and that they are responsible for the foul odors of decomposing foods.

There are thousands of species of bacteria, but only three general forms: spheres called cocci, rods called bacilli, and spirals called spirilla. The spheres may be relatively large or small, and they may group themselves in pairs, in clumps, or in long chains like strings of beads. The rods may be slender or thick, and certain types have blunt or rounded ends; some of them are capable of motion, as they are provided with hairlike projections [cilia] attached to the ends or sides that act as propellers.

One distinguishing feature of bacteria is the rapidity with which they grow. They multiply simply by dividing. For example, one coccus divides into two, these two into four, the four into eight, and so on ad infinitum. A single cell may reach maturity and divide in from twenty to thirty minutes. Hence in two days one coccus, if the division took place but once an hour, would yield 281,500,000 organisms.

Bacteria are really plants and they grow luxuriantly in most body secretions. The mouth, the intestinal tract, and the mucous membrane of the nose contain tens of thousands, perhaps millions, of these tiny plants. Most bacteria grow best at body temperature. They must have moisture and most of them require oxygen, although there are a few that cannot grow in the presence of the free oxygen of the air. Bright sunlight stops their growth, and many species are killed when exposed to the sun's rays. For example, the typhoid bacilli are killed by strong, direct sunlight in an hour and a half. Although few can survive a temperature as high as boiling, spores [similar to seeds] formed by certain species of bacteria are quite resistant to heat, and temperatures higher than boiling are required to destroy them.

There are many chemical preparations [germicides] that will kill bacteria. Among these are carbolic acid, 1 part to 1,000 parts of water; bichloride of mercury, 1 part to 2,000 parts of water; potassium permanganate, 1 part to 800 parts of water; chlorine solutions, etc.

In the body, food particles in the mouth, nasal secretions, lymph, serum from the blood, muscles, and tissues will harbor bacteria and permit them to grow whenever the resistance of the body is low; in other words, whenever bactericidal [bacteria killing] substances are absent.

How are bacteria spread? Wherever there is soil and a favorable temperature bacteria will be found. Air currents laden with dust spread them widely. Much of the advantage of a sea voyage to certain persons is the absence of bacteria in ocean air. On high mountains they are found infrequently. Ground or surface water always contains them. They may be filtered out by sand and very fine gravel, as water percolating through layers of this material will gradually leave them behind. Streams into which sewage or refuse from factories and houses is deposited are loaded with bacteria.

They are also found in milk. This is often due to the presence of dirt in the milk from the animal, the stable, or the milker's hands. Bacteria grow rapidly in milk if it is not kept at a low temperature. Much of the souring of milk is due to bacteria.

Tomorrow's article will deal with a few types of bacteria that cause disease.

PHYSICIAN.

M. W. writes: After reading your article on influenza I decided to write and tell you my experience. When I was taken sick I called a physician, who looked at my throat and felt my pulse. He asked if I had a temperature and I told him I thought I had, but he made no attempt to find out. He told me I had a slight attack of laryngitis, prescribed a medicine, and said nothing about calling again. After several days I felt so miserable I again called him. This time he took my pulse, listened to the heart action, and left without saying anything further. What I needed was good advice on how to care for myself, my diet, etc.

So many persons remark that their physicians have little interest in their illnesses, and my experience bears this out.

REPLY.

All physicians are not equal in training or in manifesting a kindly interest in their patients. Should you again require a physician try to learn beforehand something of the skill and character of the one you select.

MORTGAGE OBLIGATIONS.

Wheaton, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mr. Smith builds a home and gets a mortgage for $5,000. Then Mr. Smith sells the home to Mr. Jones, who pays cash up to the first mortgage and assumes that. Two years later the mortgage matures and Mr. Jones asks for an extension. The mortgage company asks Mr. Smith to sign extension and interest coupons, which he refuses to do, as he has no further interest in the property. The mortgage company extends the mortgage with Mr. Jones' signature alone. 1. Is Mr. Smith liable on the note? 2. Has mortgage company right to extend mortgage without consent of Mr. Smith or his signature? 3. How long would this note hold? 4. If mortgage company has the right to extend note from time to time, how can Mr. Smith ever get clear from this obligation? F. C.

1. There have been Illinois decisions implying that after a sale by the mortgagor the purchaser becomes in effect the party primarily liable for the mortgage, so that the original mortgagor is in the position of a surety. If this theory were followed to its conclusion it would mean that the surety would be discharged by an unauthorized extension granted to the principal, but the negotiable instruments law contains express instructions as to how a negotiable instrument may be discharged and this is not one of the ways listed. Hence we must say that the law is unsettled.
2. See 1.
3. The limitation period is ten years from the maturity date.
4. See preceding answers.

PROPERTY OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mother and father are dead, leaving five children, all of age. Property consists of a house and two lots in La Salle county. Same has not been probated. 1. Can one of the said parties, if he pays taxes each year and has the bills marked paid in his name, claim the property? 2. If so, how many payments must be made? 3. Can property be sold if three of the five sign for it? 4. Can this be done if one refuses to sign? 5. Can it be done if three refuse to sign? R. S.

1. No. It is a general principle that one of several co-owners cannot assert a tax title or a title by adverse possession against the others.
2. See 1.
3. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.
4-5. See 3.

MORTGAGES.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am holder of a second mortgage on a twelve apartment building. The owner has turned the building over to the holder of the first mortgage, an insurance company. I do not know the name of the company. They say they will keep the building for about eighteen months, so he may redeem it after that time if possible. The insurance company wants a clear title to this property, so they want me to sign a judgment note and turn in my papers. Could I hear from you real soon? L. M.

As we understand it, you, as a second mortgage holder, have money coming to you. Your signing a judgment note would mean that you are promising to pay money out. This seems a preposterous settlement. The ordinary settlement would be that you should sign a quitclaim deed and receive cash in exchange. It seems probable that you have misunderstood.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—1. I am American born. In April, 1934, I married a man of English birth who is not yet a citizen. Have I lost my citizenship? 2. My husband came from England in 1924 at the age of 12. Will he have to take out citizenship papers? H. C.

1. An American citizen woman who marries an alien on or after Sept. 22, 1922, does not lose her American citizenship.
2. Under the facts stated, the husband, in order to become a citizen, will have to file a declaration of intention [first paper] and when the same is at least two and not over seven years old, he may apply for naturalization. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

The chief food of the humming bird is insects — not honey. These tiny birds—the only ones which can fly backward as well as forward—dart in and out among flower blossoms, seeking the insects that are feeding on the nectar in the blossoms. Occasionally humming birds stop to sip some of the nectar itself, but their first choice of food is insects.

PRIVACY INVADED.

Byron, Ill., Feb. 22.—I'd like to protest against the farm census.

What right has the government coming to my farm and ask how many bushels of grain I raised, how many hogs I sold, how much garden stuff I raised or put in my cellar, how much milk I sold last year, and a hundred other questions that tell just what my income was last year? Is it any one's business what I raised any more than how much salary a school teacher gets or a janitor of a building?

Do I have to tell just how much I made buying and selling chickens, or selling fruit from my land?

Why not ask the washwoman how much she made last year doing washings? Is it my business as long as she keeps off relief and does not make enough to pay an income tax?

If I am a tailor, must I tell what I made making suits?

All this is just as reasonable as compelling the farmer to schedule all he has done. I for one would forget a lot and that is just what is going to happen, because it is none of any one's business how many chicks and eggs I sold and I'm telling you that about that time I would have been an awful good forgetter. MRS J. M. H.

PLATTVILLE.

Oshkosh, Wis., Feb. 19.—I, too, have it in for Bob Becker. In his writeup a week ago Sunday of the fox hunt on THE TRIBUNE experimental farm, near Yorkville, he says: "Orrin Austin, Dock Grindle, and Capt. Tim Howell of 'Platteville,'" etc.

Now, Hon. Becker, the Plattville of Illinois has no "e" attached to the Platt.

Daniel Platt, whose forbears settled historic Plattsburg of New York, came to Kendall county, Illinois, and founded the village of Plattville 100 years ago—minus the "e."

The town of my nativity is too sacred a subject to be slighted by misspelling. ALERT ILLINOIS.

SCHOOL NEWS.

Riverside, Ill., Feb. 19.—Will you please have more editorials on the school situation? Why isn't the front page favored with at least an occasional article on the subject of schools? Aren't our children the very foundation of the country? Isn't news which affects them sensational enough to rate the front page, in preference to the continued mystery of who murdered Mr. Straub, or the fact that a Cuban carnival parade in Havana was bombed and 40,000 persons thrown into panic? Do you realize that 40,000 children and more in this state are affected by the lack of proper school legislation? MRS. JOSEPH J. KROUPA.

PROBLEM IN ARCHITECTURE.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Please ask Sidney Smith for me just where the room came from in which Mama De Stross is spending her period of self-incarceration. Did Bim build an addition to his original four room home? GLADYS CUNNARD.

HOODLUM BEATS TEACHER.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—With his face cut and his skull fractured a teacher lies in the hospital. He has been unconscious since last Friday, when he was assaulted for asking a ruffian from the street to leave a high school party. This is not a singular case.

The streets are full of young men who spend their time in taverns and in and around school buildings. They upset the running of the schools by ringing fire alarms, roaming in corridors, throwing snowballs at students and teachers, enticing students to be truants, and crashing school parties. They make life unsafe for decent students and teachers. We need police protection in our schools.

If a policeman had been stationed at the door of the school last Friday afternoon that teacher would not have been injured. If there could be a policeman at every school in the city innumerable annoyances and disasters which these vagrant and desperate youths are causing would be prevented. G. M. M.

SLOW TRAINS.

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 20.—Your southern correspondent should inform you that efforts to improve passenger service in the south are purely ludicrous. Automobiles and even heavy trucks continue to speed past the railroad "flyers," while the locomotive engineers do their best to throw the passengers out of bed every time they start the train after their frequent and long stops.

Why Jacksonville should be some kind of international date line I don't know, but I don't believe a single Florida train spends less than three hours in that city.

Yours for the motor or airplane!
DISGUSTED.

ROBES.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—I see that the judges are to don robes in order to command respect.

I have met three of them at different times and, as white hair, the fact of being a widow and mother, and absolutely in the right did not arouse their respect or at least their sense of justice, I am afraid it will take more than expensive black robes to scare up an iota of respect for them from me.

What they need are robes of righteousness and if they have them they will find they can dispense with the black ones.

THE MILITARY HAIRCUT.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Did you ever see a soldier, whether a cadet in a military school or a regular army man, with a haircut such as Skeezix displays? Aren't you afraid he'll lose his cap off the back of his head some of these days?

Better clip that front wisp of hair off or put it under his cap, so he can wear his cap smartly, if you are going to continue to send him to military school, else he'll never win any honors for military snap in his attire. J. C.

Society Folk Build Homes as Spring Nears

BY JUDITH CASS.

With the first snowdrops and crocuses trying hard to push their heads into the sunshine, city dwellers are fondly turning their thoughts to houses in the country, gardens, at least to fresh spring paint. Prosperity or no, a number of new homes are going up in the various suburbs and an equal number of farmhouses are being rebuilt.

Even from far away London comes news of spring remodeling. Mr. and Mrs. Bartle Bull [Rosemary Baur] are doing over their town house—but the inside only, for the exterior cannot be changed because of historical import. The Bulls are renovating the whole interior, however, and Mrs. Jacob Baur, who sailed for London yesterday, will be on hand to help criticize the new wall space and drapes. A new house with an American link is the chalet that Leander McCormick and his French bride are putting up in the Austrian Tyrol. Their English home, the Heronry, burned tragically several months ago.

Chicago Couples Building New Homes.

Nearer at hand are the homes now under construction for Mr. and Mrs. John Dern, the Leslie Wheelers, the Arthur E. Muellers, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Williams.

Although the basement of the Derns' brick colonial house is all that is done, the former Jean MacLeish and her husband hope to be able to move June 1. The house is being built on the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Wentworth avenue in Glencoe, overlooking the lake.

The Wheelers' new home is located at 20 South Mayflower road, Lake Forest, and when completed within two months should take its place among the loveliest in Lake Forest. It is of English country style, and has been under construction a year.

Mrs. Armour's new home on Green Bay road, Lake Forest, directly across from the Onwentsia club, is one of the costliest homes to be built in the last few years—the cost is estimated at $200,000—and also one of the most palatial, for the house will contain thirty-one rooms and eight baths. The home of Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan that formerly occupied this property was razed to make room for Mrs. Armour's home, and recently to the original tract of 12 acres which Mrs. Armour purchased she added five more, to be landscaped to conform with the original purchase. The house is of restrained English country type.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams' new home also is in Lake Forest, at Sheridan road and Crab Tree lane, and should be ready for occupancy soon.

New Home to be Ready When Muellers Return.

The Muellers' new residence is one of the largest to be constructed recently in Evanston. Located on Lincolnwood drive, it is colonial in style. Mr. and Mrs. Mueller are on an extended Mediterranean trip now, but upon their return in April or May the house will be ready for occupancy.

The John R. Hurleys are engaged in moving their home, literally, from one site to another. When the house again is set upon foundations it will form an 800 foot triangle with the homes of Mr. Hurley's brother and sister, Edward N. Hurley Jr. and Mrs. William A. Ryan, now situated immediately to the west and the east of Mr. Hurley in Wheaton.

Moving the home, which is a tremendous, rambling one, is not so difficult as it sounds, for the house originally was only medium in size. Mr. Hurley's father, the late head of the United States shipping board, added a wing for his room and study at one end of the building and built on a breakfast room, a sunroom, and various porches, which are easily removed, for the original walls were not destroyed in these alterations. When the house arrives at its new site it will be considerably smaller, for Mr. Hurley and his bride, the former Gwendolyn Juergens, not needing all of the space, will leave a few of the porches behind. But what will become of the swimming pool that once sparkled so prettily just outside the dining room windows? Will it follow after the house—if swimming pools can be moved—or will it remain as a community one for the three Hurley homes?

Report L. S. Harris Will Build for Bride.

According to a quite authentic rumor, an about-to-be bride and groom, Miss Jean Hyman, daughter of the Robert W. Hymans, and Lincoln S. Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, are contemplating building a home to return to after their honeymoon.

In Barrington the Malcolm E. Shroyers have done over a farm about two or three miles from Lake Zurich with more room in the house and more acreage than they had at their Barrington farm. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Renshaw have rebuilt a farmhouse on Algonquin road, and on the same road, but farther south near Brinker road, the Andrew J. Dallstreams eventually will build a home to be used in the summer only. The Dallstreams have purchased 23 acres of land.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Thurber are others who have succumbed to the charms of Barrington's hills and have bought a farm in the thick of them. The newest home in Barrington is the beautiful one into which the junior William Dodge Hornes moved earlier this winter.

Civic Orchestra Makes Several New Successes

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Civic Orchestra of Chicago created another success for itself at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon. In fact, it created several, the first being a performance of Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun." This organization of young players learns orchestral routine by actually engaging in it, and the delicacy and coloring of this piece showed that there had been some first class training from the conductor, Eric DeLamarter.

Another notable performance came when Florian F. Mueller, first oboist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, appeared to conduct the first performance of his own Passacaglia and Fugue. The work, both parts constructed on the same theme, was written with both learning and warmth, and was excellently played.

Two soloists appeared on the program, both with the same sort of decisive ability that is a marked characteristic of the orchestra. Charles Baker, pianist, played Bach's Concerto in D minor. Oscar Chausow, violinist, who was a soloist last season in the popular series of the Chicago Symphony, played Saint-Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso.

Stell Andersen and Silvio Scionti, who play music for two pianos with extraordinary skill, gave a program at the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon. Several cleverly written works by Chicago composers were given first performances at this time, among them Leo Sowerby's "The Fisherman's Tune," Heniot Levey's "In the Fall" and "Ping Pong," and a transcription by Louis Victor Saar of Padre Martini's ancient Prelude, Adagio, and Fugue. Miss Andersen and Mr. Scionti are alert, mannerly, and wise in their treatment of both the old and new schools of music. They play with fine tone, they know the value of contrast, and they are expert in the art of ensemble.

Another ensemble program of high ability was presented in Curtiss hall when Leo Podolsky, pianist, and Johan Lingeman, cellist, played a series of sonatas written for their two instruments. Works by Brahms, Debussy, and Rachmaninoff made up the program.

Front Views and Profiles

Song—Sign—Singer—Sophist.

"I wish they'd sing a song about Harvard," he commented to her. "Won't they sing a song about Harvard, don't you suppose?"

"Do you mean that 'Shine On, Harvard Moon'?" she inquired.

It was Miss Myrtil, too, who insists she saw a sign on a California place of business:

"Ye Olde Kosher Delicatessan."

The audience that hears Zinaida Nicolina at Curtiss hall next Friday evening will see a tall and charming woman, singing meltingly Russian, Spanish, and gypsy songs. Those who know her well will, perhaps, recall vivid bits of her history they have heard from time to time. That Spanish number, "Granadinos," for instance . . . she once sang that in a drawing room in Paris, and a tall, dark eyed man came to thank her for singing a song of his country so well. He was Alfonso, king of Spain. . . . Long before that she studied piano at the conservatory in Moscow with the teacher of Horowitz. Nicolina never sang publicly in Russia because of her family's objections. It was Prince Michael Tolstoi who encouraged her to sing and urged her to go to Paris. That was after the revolution in Russia, during which she escaped to the Crimea, and thence in disguise to Constantinople. There she was the guest of Princess Rafia, and there are enchanting tales of her life as guest of a Turkish princess.

"Memories of the Past" is the name of one of the gypsy numbers on her program. The program is, perhaps, an index of a colorful life.

"Although questioning your informant's statement that the knitting professor was from Indiana university, I will temporarily grant you the benefit of the doubt. However, the implications contained in the item are too strong, too glaring, and too unmasculine to let pass without protestation. . . . My own deduction is that the knitting professor is actually from Purdue. Following that defeat of 17 to 6 handed to Purdue by Indiana last November, the pride of the Purdues has been shattered. The knitting professor on sensing the opportunity to cast a reflection against Indiana seized the chance by falsely stating that he was from Indiana university."

3 Great Faiths Join in Pleas for Good Will

BY MARCIA WINN.

Clerical and lay representatives of the three great faiths—Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant—observed National Religious Brotherhood day yesterday by gathering throughout Chicago to urge, from pulpit and rostrum, the cementing of interdenominational good will.

Throughout the city pastors, priests, and rabbis exchanged pulpits for the morning and evening services, while two joint meetings of the three faiths were held last night, one at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall and the other in Harris hall on Northwestern university campus in Evanston.

A special message from Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war and co-chairman of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, organization backing the brotherhood movement, was read at Orchestra hall meeting.

"All prejudice," read the message, "cripples the effective operation of the mind and emotions. The vestiges of race and religious prejudice, which remain with us from an earlier and less enlightened time, are a blemish which we must educate and discipline away if we want to make ourselves truly useful and just."

Speakers at the session, attended by more than 2,000, were the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church of Washington, D. C., Rabbi George Fox of South Shore temple, and Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court.

"This community service should make very clear to the nation," said Dr. Sizoo, "that freedom of religion does not mean freedom from religion and that liberty of conscience does not mean liberty from conscience."

At the Harris hall meeting in Evanston, the Catholic faith was represented by the Rev. Francis J. Magner, V. G., pastor of St. Mary's church of Evanston; the Jewish, by Dr. Charles Shulman, rabbi of the North Shore congregation; and the Protestant laity, by Ralph B. Dennis, dean of the Northwestern university school of speech. More than a hundred persons gathered to hear the plea of these three for greater understanding between the peoples of different races and creeds.

DePauw Choir Sings Professor's Oratorio at Midway Chapel

"The Evangel of the New World," an oratorio written by Prof. Van Denman Thompson, for twenty-four years professor of organ composition in DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind., was given for the first time in Chicago yesterday evening by the DePauw university choir, directed by Dean Robert G. McCutchan, in the University of Chicago chapel. The oratorio was written for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Methodist Episcopal church in America.

In addition to the University of Chicago appearance the choir sang last night at the Chicago Sunday Evening club and was heard over W-G-N yesterday afternoon. It will sing tonight at 8 o'clock in the First Methodist church in Evanston. Soloists with the choir are Anna Cotton Tate, soprano; Edna Tyne Bowles, contralto, and Walter Vassar, baritone.

Lace Revived to Take Place with Ruffles, Gored Skirts

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With most of the fashions going feminine with devastating emphasis on ruffles, gored skirts, rib-hugging silhouettes, floating scarfs, miles of chiffon sewed in layers to make fluttering dresses, a revival of lace was inevitable.

The best things to arrive are the lace ascot scarfs for the embellishment of dark clothes and as the top interest of tailored taffeta two piece dresses and suits. The scarfs come in white and all the lovely soft pastels such as yellow, pink, blue, and pale green.

Pastel tinted lace jabots are something else to tuck in the front of your most tailored spring suit jacket.

But the clothes that will haunt you night and day are the lace dresses, especially the shiny black affairs. Gored skirts with as many as eight gores make them fit smoothly to the knees, and then break away into billowing flounces. Lots of the lace dresses have wired flounces that swirl madly as you walk.

Long sleeved models are the most popular buys right now with delicate powder blues, dusty pinks, and the white coming along in succession. The separate jackets of the pastel tinted lace dresses have enchanting high stiffened collars that are extremely youthful and flattering to wear. And nearly all of the lace creations are made with fitted taffeta silk slips that make such seductive music while you walk or dance.

Fashion photograph . . . one of the newest of black dinner and dance dresses, fashioned of cobwebby fine lace made with a tightly fitted skirt and deep full flounces to the floor. The long sleeves and tailored bodice top are contrasted with daring wide collar and cuffs of pale pink ruffled chiffon. The twinkling buttons are of rhinestones. From a collection of lace creations featured in a Chicago shop.

Good Morning!

Constance whams Clark right across his choicest dimple. And Clark, in the guise of one of those strange newspaper men the movies insist are the McCoy, brightly tracks a murderer to his lair and wrings from him the confession which shall redound to his glory in the next morning's headlines.

As you have gathered, "After Office Hours" is something about newspapers. Nothing, I hasten to inform you, that you need take seriously. Mr. Gable is like no managing editor I've ever run across. Constance Bennett, as the society girl music critic, smart doin's reporter, and pretty lady about town, is as synthetic as her smile, which, this trip, is as synthetic as bathtub gin. To my way of thinking, she hasn't an honest moment in the picture.

Mr. Gable doesn't like the lady when the picture opens, but he changes his mind before more than two reels have run their course. A murder committed by her playboy friend—to whom she is violently loyal—brings Clark and Connie together in this, that, and the other way. The finale is what you would expect.

Although the story is far-fetched, and pretty dumb in spots, it has its exciting sequences and is smartly mounted. Mr. Gable is busy, virile, and gosh durned set on getting his own way. Billie Burke flitters and flutters daintily as Miss Bennett's fragile mamma, looking, one avows with admiration, almost if not quite as young as her screen offspring. Harvey Stephens does skilful work in the ungrateful rôle of the playboy. Think you'll like the picture?

See you tomorrow.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron and Baronne Henri de Bellesnaves, Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel. Sarah gathers that Dr. Gilcrest is in love with the baroness.

INSTALMENT XIII.

AN ENCHANTRESS.

The clerk crossed the lounge and was handing Miss Venables a telegram. Sarah saw the nearsighted brown eyes dilate with sudden alarm as the thin hands groped tremblingly for the lorgnette. She hurried to her employer's side.

"Is anything wrong?" she asked quickly.

"No, no!" Miss Venables laughed with mingled apology and relief. "It's just Harry, who says he's had a slight accident to his car, and won't be here till Sunday evening. I'm very stupid to get so flustered. I really must take myself in hand."

"You must, indeed."

It was Gilcrest who said this, his tone soberly firm. Miss Venables excused herself with a deprecatory laugh.

"I know, I know! And I have overcome a great deal of my nervousness. Miss MacNeil will tell you I'm trying hard to be sensible. Sarah, my dear, sit down. This is not a secret conference. I have just been telling the doctor about that latest warning." She had lowered her voice so that

"She and I will soon be friends, I am very sure!"

those about them could not hear. "He thinks—but repeat, doctor, what you've just been saying to me."

He stared down at the cheap Maryland cigaret he was smoking.

"O, my opinion's of no real importance," he muttered, slightly confused. "If the writer of the warnings means business, why in the devil's name does he put you on your guard?"

"He does that, I think," whispered the spinster between drawn lips, "merely to torture me. A cat playing with a mouse. I can quite believe the warnings are deliberately contrived for that purpose. But there, we can't hope to settle anything, can we? Let's speak of pleasanter things. The baroness—when will she be home?"

"She's left Paris for Lyons, so Henri tells me." Gilcrest made this statement detachedly—too detachedly, so Sarah considered. "I imagine we'll be seeing her any day now."

"Lyons! Of course she is spending a little while with that poor bedridden mother of hers; and you, I expect, are doing your best to keep her husband from being too lonely in her absence. I hope, though, you will come on Friday evening to dance with Sarah? I'm sure she loves dancing."

Sarah did but could not well show enthusiasm while Gilcrest was murmuring doubts as to his being able to turn up. She elevated her chin and steered the talk in another direction.

On Friday the doctor failed to appear and indeed for three whole days she and Miss Venables saw no one except the denizens of the hotel. Sunday arrived, a sparkling day, with late breakfast, an excursion to the English church, and at noon the return in massed formation of all those who, according to unbreakable habit, had donned spick-and-span attire to do homage to divine service. Boredly amused, Sarah watched their companions troop into the lobby to consult the barometer, order aperitifs, and wait impatiently for lunch. Miss Venables, who was peering through her lorgnette into the lounge, uttered a glad cry.

"Maddalena! Is it really you? Dear me but this is a welcome surprise!"

Following at a little distance Sarah saw a small slenderly smart figure surge forward with outstretched hands to rise on tiptoe and imprint a feathery kiss on each of the spinster's cheeks. A wave of subtle scent reached her together with a rippling contralto laugh, and at the same moment the sunlight pouring down through the glass dome overhead showed her a face of exquisite contour and coloring. Oval, olive-tinted, it was a Madonna's face, but for the scarlet thread of the curved lips, and the sparkle of animation. The features she hardly noticed, all else being eclipsed and submerged in the magnificence of the eyes—dark, liquid, effulgent, with heavy, black-fringed lids, eyes to haunt one, eyes to dream about, eyes to charm and conquer. Never, thought the girl, had she beheld anything to equal them for sheer, stupefying beauty.

"How delightful! What a long time it has been! You are looking radiantly well—but then you are never anything else. O, I'm forgetting! Let me introduce to you my Miss MacNeil. She has been such a treasure to me and I know you will be as fond of her as I am."

The baroness detached herself inquiringly from her friend's embrace, straightened the tiny hat which perched rakishly over her left eyebrow, and let her dark gaze rest on Sarah.

"So this is she! I have heard about her from Henri." The voice uttering these words matched the eyes in warmth and depth, and like them, one felt, could be caressing, merry or dramatic. "I am so glad, so very glad that she is with you. She and I will soon be friends, I am very sure! Yes," turning again to Miss Venables, "I arrived last night, but so tired, so dirty from the train, that all I could think of was a bath and my bed. That day-journey from Lyons—ugh! But you? Better, I hope? No more of the trouble—here?"

The speaker touched her own slim waist and searched her friend's expression with anxious concern. Her English was nearly perfect, only a trace of accent hard to define.

"Much better, I think, or I shall soon be, now I am under my own doctor again. I am thankful that you and he between you have overcome the shrinking I had for this place. Rather absurd, wasn't it?"

"Perhaps; but then it was so beastly for you last year. I boil over when I think of it. I cannot stop now, indeed I must fly this instant, but what I came for was to ask you two to dine with us this evening. En famille, you know, only ourselves, and perhaps the doctor. You will come, yes?" The baroness looked earnestly from one face to the other. "Please come!"

"It would be delightful," replied Miss Venables, "only we're expecting Harry, you see, some time this evening. I don't quite know——"

"Monsieur 'Arree?" The eyes ran over with indulgent amusement. "But bring him along too, of course! If he arrives late, he can follow. I had not realized that big, so agreeable nephew of yours was coming, but we shall rejoice to see him once more. Ma foi!" She consulted with horror a minute diamond wristwatch. "And the good Brian is waiting for me! Forgive me if I rush."

"What a pretty watch. New, isn't it?"

"Yes, but——" and here the baroness bent forward with a gesture of mock secrecy to whisper, "not real diamonds! Don't give me away, will you?"

Wafting a kiss she sped lightly away towards the side entrance, through which her companions, following, saw her settling herself gayly into the front seat of the doctor's shabby two-seater.

"They can't afford a car now, so Dr. Gilcrest often gives them a lift," explained Miss Venables, raptly smiling. "He's lunching with them, I expect. How enchanting she looks in that smart little coat and hat! I shouldn't wonder if she made them both herself. She's extremely clever, like so many Frenchwomen."

"She must be if she made that coat," said Sarah sincerely. "And she is simply lovely. Didn't you say she was half Italian?"

"On her mother's side, yes. The Italian blood gives her those amazingly beautiful eyes. They are marvelous, aren't they?"

Sarah caught sight of the doctor's face. It was tight-lipped, black as a thunder cloud. She felt he was aware of being watched and was displeased over the circumstance. If her reading were correct then this provocative enchantress at his side did mean to him more than he wished his patient to guess. A queer little stab of emotion darted through the girl's interior. She refused to analyze it lest she should find it to be jealousy.

Franchot Tone Picked for New Movie Comedy

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Franchot Tone made such an impression with his raillery of Gary Cooper in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" that his studio, M. G. M., is co-featuring him in another comedy rôle with Una Merkle, sure fire comedienne. They'll play the two leads in the comedy murder mystery "Order, Please," with Conrad Nagel, Steffi Duna, Nat Pendleton, and Louise Henry.

The opening of "The Good Fairy" with Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall, directed by William Wyler, now the husband of the temperamental Miss Sullavan, brought out a large Hollywood crowd. Lyda Roberti, in a huge, enwrapping white ermine cape, with orchids and camellias, received a lot of attention in the mob about the theater lobby.

Joan Blondell is starting a 20 year scrapbook for her son, Norman Scott Barnes, 5 months old, and expects to keep it secret until she gives it to him on his twenty-first birthday with a complete record in clippings, photos, and mementos of Norman's life and the occurrences about him. Part of her scrapbook will be devoted to autographs; Joan has been promised that of President Roosevelt, and is trying for those of Premier Mussolini and the prince of Wales.

"I can talk about the book now," Miss Blondell says, "because by the time the baby is big enough to talk and read, I will have it under key and everybody else will have forgotten it, so he never will know about it until I give it to him."

Virginia Sale says the characters she and her brother, Chic Sale, portray in their rural comedy rôles are patterned after their uncle, Elgin, and aunt, Abby, of Urbana, Ill.

The sprinkler system on the Radio-R. K. O. stages where Gene Stratton Porter's "Daddie" is being filmed let go, due to the excessive heat resulting from the use of many big sun arcs, and drenched the whole set, all the properties, and the cast, including John Beal, little Virginia Weidler, Gloria Shea and Director George Stevens. Luckily it was a barnyard scene, which at first had been scheduled for shooting on location outdoors. No great damage was done to the chickens, cows, horses, ducks and dog, but the human actors had to take time to undress and don dry clothes.

Bill Gargan was injured during a scene in Joan Blondell's "Traveling Saleslady" when supposed to make an ill-tempered grab for a saltcellar. He overreached the saltcellar and bumped over a wine glass. The stem of it broke and impaled his right palm. Several stitches were required.

BY MARY MEADE.

To quote hazily [or misquote] somebody or other, we Americans are supposed to be reaching that state in which we "won't be able to eat anything that isn't between two slices of bread." Vague as the source of that statement may be, the fact remains that most of us are pretty definitly sandwich conscious.

Our sandwiches have come a long way, too, from that picnic food class to which we used to limit them. Today sandwiches appear at lunch, and even at dinner, as a quite formidable main dish, requiring only the trimming of relishes or a salad and a dessert to chink up the cracks in a square meal.

Here's a substantial one that's charming in that the general idea is just as applicable to chopped cooked for that matter, I suppose the mixture might welcome chopped leftover lamb, or almost any kind of fish with the same warmth. We're giving it with the ham, but remember, you're forewarned about its adaptability.

Supper Sandwich.

2 teaspoons prepared mustard.
2 tablespoons butter or margarine.
4 tablespoons flour.
1 can cream of mushroom soup.

Blend the ham and mustard, and spread thickly on slices of hot, unbuttered toast. Melt the butter or margarine, stir in the flour and, when smoothly mixed, turn in the canned soup and cook slowly, stirring often, until thickened. Pour this hot, thick sauce over the sandwiches. These may be garnished most attractively with slices of hard cooked egg, slices of stuffed olives, or both.

The idea of baked bean sandwiches isn't new, but here's one that's slightly, and becomingly, different.

Boston Sandwich.

1 tablespoon butter or margarine.
1 No. 2 can baked beans.
2 tablespoons tomato catsup
1 teaspoon brown sugar.

Brown the shredded dried beef in the hot butter or margarine. Add the can of beans, the catsup, and the brown sugar, and heat thoroughly. Serve either on hot toast or slices of hot, steamed, Boston brown bread.

Speaking of new enlargements upon old themes, how about calling on the venerable scrambled egg sandwich for an idea? It might go like this:

Scrambled Egg and Sausage Sandwich.

6 eggs.
Paprika.

Cook the sausage and chopped onion together in a skillet until thoroughly cooked and browned. Drain off the excess fat, pour in the well beaten eggs, sprinkle them with the salt and paprika, and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until the eggs are thick and creamy. Finally, mix in the tomato sauce, and serve either between slices of hot, whole wheat toast, or on hot, split, baking powder biscuits.

The grilled open-faced supper or luncheon sandwiches come in for their share of glory, as well. As an occasional variation of the bacon type, which appears to be well to the fore in public opinion, we can recommend one which goes this way: Toast slices of bread on one side. Spread the untoasted sides with a thin layer of chili sauce. Atop this, lay a thinnish slice of baked or boiled ham. On the ham, arrange four cooked asparagus tips, and sprinkle these with two tablespoons of grated American cheese. Place the sandwiches on a rack in a moderate oven until the cheese melts, and serve hot.

Showmen's League Gives Benefit Ball on March 4

The Showmen's league, organization which once was headed by Buffalo Bill, will give its annual benefit ball on March 4 in the Hotel Sherman's College Inn. More than 1,000 theatrical and show people are expected to attend the ball, which will be a combination benefit for sick and needy members of the league and a farewell party for Capt. Lewis Pellisier, motion picture actor and elephant hunter, who will leave this spring for a four months' hunting trip in Africa. At the ball Capt. Pellisier will describe the art of hunting elephants.

Varicose Veins—Emerald Oil

Here's a safe, penetrating oil for surface use that helps nature to nourish and strengthen enlarged vein walls by increasing their red blood flow. Just use with binder for a few days as directed and feel greater comfort.

Try Emerald Oil before resorting to operation or injections. You know your condition because you can see and feel it. You'll also know when and if you're better. No room for doubt. Give Emerald Oil a trial now At all druggists.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

You'll remember the stick mascara that came out a few months back. There was much hoop-de-do about it because it needed no brush. You simply pop the stick under water and set to work. Women went mad about it. This is to inform those of you who like it that it is now about town in a new case that doesn't jam as did the old.

One of the nicest discoveries of last week was a perfectly elegant cologne. It's not new, and it isn't one of those expensively glamorous ones. It's been around quite a while in several fragrances, but we just found out how slick one of them is. It's citron—and it's the smartest, briskest sort of scent for winter use. We have one pal who practically soaks her handkerchiefs with it—and it was she who proved to us that it is unusually lasting.

And now, we think, is the time for us to remind you again of that precious perfume for furs that we're so crazy about. A whiff of it on the collar of your coat will lift you out of the midwinter doldrums. At the first whiff it will seem a little overpowering, so that isn't the test. Put it on fur or on flesh to test it, and you'll see how elegant it really is.

Going the rounds lately, with a little night life thrown in, we discover that all the predictions about hair ornaments have been gospel truth. Smart ladies everywhere are tucking fripperies in their coiffures of an evening. You might look into the matter if you want to increase your chic. They're all over town. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Detriment to Beauty Lies in Being Fatigued

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"A tired person is an inefficient person, no matter what sort of work he is doing or what it is that has tired him."

The above I read in an extract from a medical and surgical journal. For our purposes, which apply to the decorative, the beautiful femme, the above extract might well be paraphrased to read:

"A tired woman is an inefficient beauty, no matter what sort of work she is doing or what it is that tires her."

One may be exceedingly well dressed, be looked after by the professional masseuse and makeup expert. But if she has that tired feeling she is not likely to register anywhere near the top. A good many people simply do not get time out for enough sleep, for a half day or full day's concession to the kind of loafing that restores calm.

The suggestion is made by our medical adviser that relief from the high pressure strain often may be obtained by doing something different for a little while, by merely stepping away from the job and taking a cup of tea or a bouillon, by bathing the hands and face in cold water, or by lying down for a few minutes.

If it isn't possible to lie down then go through the same slumping process as you sit in your chair by relaxing every nerve and muscle in the body. Women need this beautifier.

'Grass' Widow Has Charm Rival in the Modern Girl

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's a "grass widow." The man in the case seemed to be all hers for the asking until a younger woman clapped eyes on him and tagged him with a look he can't forget. The G. W. hasn't been taken around much lately. The man pleads business conferences and customer meetings at night. The G. W. has an idea that the young woman rival consitutes the conference board and customer meetings.

The G. W. asks if a woman who has been married hasn't a better chance of winning a man than an inexperienced young girl.

Has she? It used to be passed about by word of mouth that a widow was a dangerous rival. But that was before young girls went modern and wise beyond their years in handling men.

The widow was supposed to have become resigned, through experience, to all the gentleman's faults and foibles. Because she found he had no end of good qualities to offset the minor faults, she learned to be much more tolerant with the male.

That was as things used to be, however. The modern young woman isn't given to idealizing the male the way her grandma did, for instance.

Then she has youth on her side, which creates rivalry for the older woman. More than that, the woods are so full of widows of the grass variety today that they've lost caste as irresistibles.

pictures of St. Sophia's in Istanbul, is going to lecture on his work at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Oriental institute at the University of Chicago.

Before his lecture Prof. Whittemore will be the dinner guest of Prof. and Mrs. Edgar J. Goodspeed. The Goodspeeds' other guests will be Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson, Dean and Mrs. Frederick Grant, Robert Hall McCormick, and Harold Willoughby.

The interest of Mr. McCormick and various of his friends makes Prof. Whittemore's lecture here possible. Prof. Whittemore is a close friend of the Charles R. Cranes and until his departure for Chicago was a guest at their home in Palm Springs, Cal.

For five centuries, since the Turks conquered Constantinople, now Istanbul, the remarkable mosaics of St. Sophia's have been covered with matting and plaster applied when the Turks converted the church into a mosque. Through Mustapha Kemal Pasha, president of the Republic of Turkey, Prof. Whittemore was permitted to restore them. Mustapha Kemal has now secularized the temple and made it into a national monument.

Display Chinese Robe Given to Antiquarians.

Mrs. Charles W. Brega has just given to that distinguished group, the Antiquarian society, a handsome Chinese robe that belonged to an oriental court official. Gorgeously done in gold and other colors, it represents in design dragons rising from the waves with emblems of the "eight immortals." The robe is being shown as part of a large and valuable exhibit of Chinese robes in gallery H-9 of the Art institute. In the same collection is a velvet with peonies done in gold thread, presumably a border of a throne carpet. This has been loaned by Russell Tyson.

Raymond Leslie Buell, president of the Foreign Policy association, has accepted an invitation to address the Council of Foreign Relations at a 12:30 luncheon Saturday at the Palmer house. Mr. Buell will discuss "Foreign Policy Under the New Deal."

A fashionable audience will gather at the old Auditorium this evening to hear Lotte Lehmann and Gregor Piatigorsky in a program of German songs. The concert is sponsored as a benefit for the Musicians' Club of Women. Some of those who will be in the audience include Miss Ebba Sundstrom, president of the club; Mrs. Henry B. Vanzwoll, Miss Margaret Lester, Mrs. William F. Peter, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Vernon B. Herbst, and Mrs. Orville Thompson.

Vassar Alumnae Observe Restaurant Anniversary.

Any one interested in locating a Vassar alumna this week may as well start her search in the Vassar scholarship restaurant in the Michigan Square building, Michigan avenue and Ohio street. Graduates of the eastern school are going to celebrate the ninth anniversary of their restaurant with a series of parties all of this week.

Most of them will have luncheon at noon today in the grill room of the restaurant and at 1:30 Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, the first president of Vassar house, will cut a huge birthday cake nine stories high. There are to be replicas of this cake each succeeding day this week and they will be cut by other alumnae who have served Vassar house as president or director. Mrs. Eugene Talbot, Mrs. Charles F. Kelley, and Mrs. Harold Leopold are a few of these.

The North Shore Vassar club announces this morning that it is going to have "a small and select" benefit the evening of March 27 at the home of Charles H. Dennis at 1225 Michigan avenue in Evanston. Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, who is soon to leave these parts much to the regret of his many friends, will give the program, speaking on the topic "Going to Sea."

Mrs. Julian Anderson is chairman of the general committee, which includes in its membership Mrs. Carleton Blunt, Mrs. Horace M. Capron, Mrs. Whipple Jacobs, and Mrs. John E. Barlow.

From Palm Beach comes the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Ethel Ogle of that city and Charles L. Daly Jr. of Chicago, which took place a week ago Saturday in St. Edward's church in Palm Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Daly have gone to Nassau on their wedding trip and before coming to Chicago where they will reside at 1120 Lake Shore drive they will stop in Palm Beach for a visit with the bride's sister, Mrs. Jack Butler.

Mrs. Ferdinand A. Bunte, Mrs. William E. Sparrow Jr., Mrs. George N. Oberne, and Mrs. Phyllis Fergus Hoyt will assist Cora Willis Ware as hostesses at the meeting of the Lake View Musical society this afternoon. The meeting will be held in the Three Arts club and will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swarts of the Shoreland hotel are leaving tomorrow for New York and will sail on the S. S. Rex Wednesday for a Mediterranean cruise. On their return they will disembark at Naples and motor through Italy, France, Switzerland, and England. Late in April they will take pasage at Genoa for their return to the United States.

Since Miss Katharine Healy, with her mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Healy, has gone to Palm Beach for a short vacation the publicity for the Bennett school alumnæ benefit has been taken over by Miss Virginia Chapman. The Bennett alumnæ are sponsoring a dance recital by Carola Goya at 3:30 the afternoon of March 3 at Orchestra hall to raise funds for their scholarship fund. Some of those who have taken boxes are Mrs. Edward R. Adams, Mrs. John Walker Thompson, Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, Miss Frances Weary, Mrs. William R. Abbott Jr., Miss Chapman, and Mrs. Alan Brantingham.

Chic for Hours in Kitchen

WOMAN'S AND MISS' KITCHEN ENSEMBLE.

Haven't you a friend who would love to have this pretty dress and apron? It would make an excellent Christmas gift for some busy woman, and it is easy to make. The attractive shoulder yoke is carried down the front into a panel, a youthful detail that creates a lengthened line. The paneled apron also is good. It buttons to the dress and ties in the back. Percale, gingham, and broadcloth are pretty and suitable materials.

The pattern, No. 2614, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure.

English Boy Choir, Clad in Red, Sings in Three Churches

The English boy choir of the London Choir school made its first Chicago appearance yesterday morning in St. Peter's Episcopal church, 621 Belmont avenue.

Wearing cassocks of scarlet, a vivid contrast against the black cassocks of St. Peter's choir, the twelve young choristers, who range in age from 11 to 14 years, sang major portions of the service.

The schedule for the remainder of their stay follows: Tomorrow, 8 p. m., Emmanuel church, La Grange; Wednesday, 8 p. m., St. Martin's church, Austin; Thursday, 8 p. m., Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue; Friday, 8 p. m., Church of Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues; Sunday, 11 a. m., St. James' church, Wabash avenue and Huron street; 5 p. m., Grace church, Oak Park; 8 p. m., St. Bartholomew's church, Englewood.

Startling New Discovery Shows How Ordinary Foods Add Flattering Extra Lbs. When Internal Glands Are Regulated . . . Gains of 15 to 20 Lbs. in Few Weeks Not Uncommon!

Here's the new way science is showing thin, rundown folks—even "naturally" skinny men and women—how to put on attractive extra lbs. of solid flesh. Thousands have tried it and are delighted with results.

By stimulating and regulating digestive and internal glands, Kelpamalt, the new sea mineral concentrate, helps you get the good out of food. Then puts it to work. Its 13 minerals help produce the juices needed to digest fats and starches—the weight-making elements in food. Then Kelpamalt's PLANT IODINE regulates metabolism—the mysterious process by which the body converts digested food to firm, solid flesh, repairs worn out cells and slows down tissue destruction. 3 Kelpamalt tablets contain more iron and copper than 1 lb. of spinach or 7½ lbs. of tomatoes; more calcium than 6 eggs; more phosphorus than 1½ lbs. carrots; more PLANT IODINE than 1600 lbs. of beef.

Try Kelpamalt for a week. You'll be delighted with the results. It costs but little at

"Mother-Deafness" Mode of Self-Protection.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Handle this age in this way—handle that age in another is advice we often give to parents. General principles remain the same, but the way in which we apply them may have to be different at different times in a child's life. He is at a different stage mentally and physically at different ages and so must be handled one way at one age—another way at another.

Our girls and boys of 7 and 9 and 11—that is our "in-betweens"—have been appearing in this column recently in a somewhat general way. Today and off and on for several days after, we are going to attempt to describe more definitly the difficulties of these years between 6 and 12 and to suggest briefly how to cope with them.

The troublous phase we'll discuss today is described by one mother who says: "Sometimes I speak to Grace three and four times and she won't answer. She drives me almost frantic. I lose my patience and scold her but it doesn't make a bit of difference."

Why do children of this age so often not answer when spoken to?

One reason is that they develop a peculiar disease known as "mother deafness," due to the fact that they're talked to so much about their faults and misdemeanors that in self-protection they stop listening. Another reason is that they develop a great power of concentration at this time—in their thoughts, or in reading, or the pursuit of some special interest. And still another reason is that now that they're old enough to do many things to help, they're being constantly called upon or interrupted by the grownups, and either resent it or unconsciously evade it by silence.

The first bit of advice on handling this habit is: don't make too much of it. It isn't serious and is a passing phase. The next suggestion is that you respect your child's concentration whenever possible. The third is that instead of calling and calling and getting irritated at the lack of response, attract his attention first in some way when he seems to be in another world. The last is, don't, on general principles, talk too much.

We have a fully written booklet on this age called "Living With Our In-Betweens." A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

REBIDDING AFTER DOUBLING.

This is undoubtedly the time when you are most likely to be perplexed when you made a distributional double with a strong hand and your partner's response indicates a good major suit fit. Is there game in the hand or not?

After a distributional double when your partner has bid the major suit you hoped he would, and you have a strong four card holding in that suit and perhaps a singleton or K x in the opening bidder's suit, and good stuff in both four card or (4-3) minor suits, a certain chance has to be taken. On rare occasions you will, though the bidding has been opened against you, be able to take him immediately to four in his suit. This is not so uncommon, as the examples showed, when your double was strategic; but when it was distributional, these occasions are rare, especially if the opening bid was made by dealer or second hand. Nevertheless, if you feel that the mere possession of four cards in that suit will give a finesse or drop for game, take the chance of going down one and bid the game. That is, if you still wish to have your partner play a game contract, even if he could not possibly rebid if you invited him to do so by a raise to three. In other words, if the decision is with you, take it and do not expect your partner to do so.

With

Sp. A K J x	Di. A J 10 x
Hs. x	Cl. K J 9 x x

if they bid a heart on your right and in reply to your double, your perfect partner bids a spade, take it to four without further ado. He may be set, but not badly; on the other hand, if he has either black queen—neither of which would in itself justify a rebid by him—you certainly want him to play in a game bid.

Passing the Decision to Your Partner.

With less than this, but still having game hopes if partner can accept a strong invitation, raise him in his suit. If the opponents reënter the bidding, do not let that stop you, especially if they are not vulnerable. Probably they are afraid that you have a game and are bluffing a little or preparing for a sacrifice. When bidding spades over hearts, you can of course issue your invitation by raising spades still at the two level; but if these suits are reversed, do not be afraid to show your raise in hearts at the three level. Such raise says to your partner:

(1) your suit fits like a glove—that's what I hoped you could bid;

(2) you know that my double was distributional, not strategic; since we are playing contract and not auction, you know I have a very fine hand, strong in top cards.

(3) However, I am not quite strong enough to jump to game merely because we have located a splendidly fitting trump suit. I must leave it to you; I can only invite, not decide.

Basis for Partner's Rebid.

You see that to rebid after this the responder does not need much; if his trump suit is K x x x or Q x x x and he has an outside king, he should rebid. With J x x x or less in trumps, he needs an outside trick—an ace or a king and a queen; or, of course, a singleton in one of the off suits. He should rebid or not on the same grounds as he would if his partner had bid his (the responder's) suit as an opening bid and the bidding had proceeded—one in that major suit, two in it, three in it. Would he raise to four or pass? In other words, under these conditions the responder may entirely ignore the fact that the opponents have opened the bidding.

With a minimum distributional double do not feel inevitably called on to give your partner a chance, even though the response suits you very well. The position in which the opening bid was made, and the system played by your opponents, should influence your judgment whether to give a chance or not. Do so fairly freely at the two level, but be cautious if you must do so by a raise to three. I think it is always reasonable to play the partner for a queen and if you think that with four small trumps and an outside queen he is pretty sure to make the contract which your raise would involve, give it to him. If he is weak you may be saving a part score; if he is not so weak, this may be the only way of bidding a game which is easy to make but hard to bid.

A Discovery That's Bringing New Attractiveness to Millions

There is now a way to restore the natural whiteness to your teeth. A way that makes ordinary uncleansed teeth look 5 shades lighter almost at once.

Results are among the most noticeable known to modern dental science. People by the millions are quitting old-time toothpastes and adopting it.

Acts On New Principle

It acts on an utterly different dental theory—instantly banishes that yellowish film-stain from teeth. And, at the same time, destroys bacteria that foster ugly teeth and decay.

Results are quick and immediate. And you notice them at once. A new lightness, clearness, and brightness to your teeth. Sparkling natural whiteness restored—a smile that charms and attracts.

Get Tube at Druggist's

Everywhere men and women say it literally transforms the appearance of one's teeth.

Try it. Get a tube of Kolynos Dental Cream at your druggist's today. You will be delighted and amazed at what it does. You will see the difference in your own mirror. Your friends will see it when you smile.

KOLYNOS DENTAL CREAM

Congressman Sees Huge Loss to Farmers.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Fifty million bushels of corn is being displaced annually through the importation under an infinitesimal tarif of blackstrap molasses from Cuba and its conversion into industrial alcohol in this country.

Such is the contention of Representative Everett M. Dirksen [Rep., Ill.], who is leading the fight against various aspects of reciprocal trade treaties in this congress.

"Just how one can with any degree of self-respect look an Illinois farmer in the eye," Dirksen declared, "and say to him, 'Well, we're going to ask you to reduce your corn acreage by 20 per cent and give you a check for the corn you did not raise but shall permit blackstrap molasses to come in under a negligible duty, even though it is used in place of corn to produce alcohol,' is more than I can fathom."

Alcohol Production Cited.

Dirksen presented figures to show that for the year ending June 30, 1932, there was produced in the United States about 142 million gallons of industrial alcohol. Of this amount, he said, 121 million gallons was made from imported blackstrap, curtailing the amount of the farmers' market by the equivalent of 50 million bushels of corn.

"Can there be any justification for such a procedure?" he asked. "To pay cash out of the front door to a farmer for acreage reduction while competitive products come in the back door is most difficult to understand."

The displacement of corn is "no mere drop in the bucket," the Illinois congressman argued.

"About 85 per cent of our corn crop leaves the farm in the form of meat," he explained. "That leaves about 375 million bushels for industrial and other food and feed uses. Sometimes this available amount for industry is far less, as it was in 1930.

Cash Outlet Decides Price.

"Corn products plants, refineries and food plants were taking nearly 100 million bushels annually, and it is this outlet for cash corn that has much to do with the price of corn. If to this could be added an outlet for the 50 million bushels displaced by imported molasses it would have a distinct bearing on the price and tend to increase prices materially.

"It stands to reason that if a cash buyer for 50 million bushels came into the market to make such a purchase, by the inexorable operation of the law of supply and demand it could not do otherwise than increase prices.

"Continued importations of molasses will continue to have a bearish effect on prices, and sooner or later the farmers must shake off the domination of this sugar group, if this portion of our market is to be restored."

Dirksen said that in answer to the argument that molasses would go to waste unless its importation is permitted, thus working a hardship on Cubans and Porto Ricans, the American farmer came first and the peoples of dependencies and other nations came next.

Give $15,000 Here to Aid Settlement of Palestine

A small cup of coffee and a piece of cake brought $10 a serving last night from 1,200 Jewish leaders at a reception in the Medinah Club of Chicago to honor Zalman Rubashow, labor leader of Palestine. The $10 contributions went into a fund to aid Jewish settlers and workers in Palestine. The reception, sponsored by the Palestine labor committee of Chicago, ended a campaign here in which $15,000, Chicago's quota in the $250,000 national fund campaign, was raised.

Hay Keeper Pays.

Feb. 24, 1935.

THE milk pail has been found the most practical way of testing the value of feed that comes from the new hay keeper installed at THE TRIBUNE Auxiliary Experimental farm near Wheaton. Chopped alfalfa hay, about 40 tons, was blown into the metal hay keeper last summer soon after it was completed. Throughout the winter this hay has been fed to cows in the farm's herd of pure bred Guernseys and has aided in increasing the production of milk.

Jack Kunde, herdsman, who keeps careful production records of all the cows, finds that the high quality of feed coming from the hay keeper has helped in making a new record for these Guernseys.

Cantigny King's Kathryn, a three-year-old pure bred Guernsey, has just completed her year's record, producing about 12,000 pounds of milk containing approximately 600 pounds of butterfat. The figures are being officially verified by the American Guernsey Cattle club of Peterboro, N. H. This three-year-old was fed alfalfa hay taken from the hay keeper. She was also fed silage and a balanced ration of concentrates made up of corn, oats, bran and oil meal.

Mr. Kunde says there is practically no waste in feeding chopped alfalfa from the hay keeper. This roughage is easily handled with a silage fork. The cows clean up every particle of the 15 pounds of cut alfalfa hay given to each Guernsey daily. In addition each cow has 30 pounds of silage. The dairymen at the auxiliary farm find that no leaves are wasted in feeding alfalfa taken from the keeper as is usually the case where ordinary alfalfa hay is fed.

Westview's Suzette, an aged cow, holds the two year old record in this herd, having produced 11,144 pounds of milk containing 652.8 pounds of butterfat in a year. Her record is in class G of the Advanced Registry Record.

Cantigny King's Kitty, another Guernsey in the herd, produced 11,367.4 pounds of milk containing 559.3 pounds of butterfat. She is in class G. A cow must produce at least 359.8 pounds of butterfat to qualify in this class.

'EASIER TO KILL FATHER THAN TO FACE HIM'—SON

Sayre, Okla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Jack Campbell, 14, mourned today in the Beckham county jail the death of his minister father, killed by a shotgun charge after the lad had been threatened with exposure for displaying pornographic pictures on the streets of Carter, a small town near here. Charges will be made against the boy tomorrow.

"It was easier to kill him than to face him," Undersherif K. T. Henson quoted the boy as saying.

The Holiness pastor, the Rev. Earl Campbell, was killed in his home after Press Rogers, Carter City marshal, had warned Jack he would inform his father about the pictures.

"Somebody in Oklahoma City was sending me the pictures to sell here," Henson quoted young Campbell as saying. "I guess I wasn't doing right.

"When Mr. Rogers said he was going to tell, I just couldn't face father, who was very nice to me. He was my buddy." County Attorney Ralph T. Hood said he would file charges against Jack tomorrow.

FIND U. S. WOMAN WAS COMPANION OF SLAIN BELGIAN

CANNES, France, Feb. 24.—(AP)—An unidentified American woman entered the police investigation today of the mysterious death of Arthur Guillaume, 54 year old Belgian, in whose possession the cards of diplomats and other notables were found.

Part of the mystery was cleared when Kees Van Dongen, an artist, said he employed Guillaume 12 years ago and that cards and letters found in the Belgian's possession were those left in his studio by visitors.

A Frenchwoman told police her mother employed Guillaume as a valet and that she was amazed at seeing him at the smart Casino in the company of an American woman while working in the daytime as a valet. Police, saying they were acting on orders from Paris urging secrecy, refused to divulge the American woman's name.

Guillaume's body was washed up on the shore two days ago after about three weeks in the water. He had been shot.

DETECTIVE FINDS SON IS HANGED IN HIS CELLAR

To the address Keefe sped. The home was his own. In the basement he found his 14 year old son, Charles, strangled by a noose dangling from his football trousers.

The boy had choked to death as he chinned himself on a horizontal bar.

The trousers were suspended from the rafter above the bar. A loop of string hung down. The boy's chin was caught by the loop as he lowered himself. Before he could cry out his breath was cut off. He hung there until he died.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The world champion Blackhawks convincingly demonstrated to 11,000 fans at the Stadium last night that they will be anything but a soft touch in the imminent defense of the Stanley cup by administering a thorough 6 to 1 spanking to one of their favored enemies, the Montreal Maroons.

The victory enabled the Chicagoans to take a clear hold on second place in the American section of the National Hocky league and placed them only a half game back of the New York Rangers, who were tied last night by the Boston Bruins.

Fights Are Frequent.

Aside from producing improvement in the league standings the game was one of the most stirring of the season, resulting in fourteen penalties, two of them majors, given to Art Coulter and Baldy Northcott in the last period, when they climaxed an evening of belligerence by engaging in a bout which took all the hands on both sides to halt. Three gendarmes, who had been placed in the Maroon box upon the request of Tommy Gorman, late manager of the Hawks, were not called upon, however.

Hawk customers were pleased not only by the score, which constituted one of the Maroons' worst beatings of the year and evened the season series between the two teams at three games each, but found satisfaction in the way the six goals were apportioned. Two of them were made by Ajex Levinsky, the Hebrew defense man, who has put new life into the champions. They were his first as a Hawk.

Chabot Widens Lead.

The Romnes-Thompson-Couture line also allowed it is ready for the playoffs by getting three goals, Thompson getting the first and Couture the next two. Tommy Cook got the other one.

Lorne Chabot, the Hawk goalie, became a 3 to 5 choice for the Vezina trophy, goal keepers' biggest prize. He now leads Alex Connell of the Maroons, by seven goals. The only item preventing him from getting his eighth shutout last night was a goal

DETROIT, 4; TORONTO, 2

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Detroit's rejuvenated Red Wings trimmed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4 to 2, tonight before a crowd of 10,000.

The game's feature was one of the wildest third periods ever seen on Olympia ice. Duguid and Kelly high sticked each other and began throwing punches. As players of both teams attempted to part them, Cotton and Bowman tangled, falling to the ice and carrying both officials, Smith and Daignault, with them.

Players from both benches jumped over the boards, and fights broke out between Goodfellow and Blair after Bowman and Cotton had been held down. When peace was restored Bowman, Cotton, and Duguid drew majors and Kelly only a minor. Linup:

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LOU GEHRIG and Babe Ruth are far from being close friends, members of the American League All-Stars learned on their tour of Japan. . . . They put on a good front, however, for the benefit of the public . . . Milton Allen, forward on the Kansas basketball team, is a son of Coach Forrest Allen. . . . Shanty Hogan of the Braves is on a diet. . . . He is down to 245 pounds. . . . It is said that Hack Wilson, Pat Malone, and Bud Tinning, former Cub behemoths in training at Hot Springs, packed down the turf so much in their daily golf forays that the course management asked them to wear snowshoes on the greens to spread the load. . . . Joie Ray, former distance runner, now leads a choir and a five piece band at the Seventh Day Adventist church in Gary. . . . Dick Gash, custodian of Dyche stadium, has seen seven Northwestern football coaches come and go in the last twenty-five years. . . . There's a moral in that story. . . . 'Way back when the Cleveland Spiders were members of the National league they signed the famous redskin athlete Sockalexis. . . . In a short time the team became known as the Indians, instead of the Spiders. . . . Later when Cleveland became a member of the American league the name of the club was switched to the Naps because of the presence of Napoleon Lajoie, but in 1916, after a vote by the fans, the nickname of Indians was revived. . . .

The attitude of the British P. G. A. in barring Henry Cotton, British open champion from the Ryder cup team this year, because he doesn't happen to be a resident Englishman, is furnishing golf reporters in Europe plenty of laughs. . . . In winning the open Cotton automatically became captain of the British P. G. A. as well as head of a number of committees, one of which has the power to name the Ryder cup team. . . . Despite the offer of the American P. G. A. to waive the residence rule so that Cotton may play, Samuel Ryder, donor of the cup, and several of Cotton's colleagues are dead set against his playing. . . . George Melinkovich, whose consistent work at right half back helped to restore Notre Dame to a place among the nation's football leaders last fall, will not become a coach. . . . He is planning a business career in San Francisco after his graduation in June. . . . Not one of the eight men who rowed California to its Poughkeepsie victory on the Hudson last year had pulled an oar before reporting to Coach Ebright at Berkeley. . . . Another Martin—Smoky Joe, infielder with the Giants—is bidding for fame in the National league. . . .

Eddie Casey, former Harvard coach, who recently was named leader of the Boston professional team, is a coal merchant. . . . Indiana university has won only nine Western conference football games since 1925. . . . Chicago has won ten in that span. . . . Jim Oldham of Kansas City forty years ago drove Direction to a world's record on the track, but he retired shortly afterward and hasn't seen a race since. . . . Other work kept him busy for several years and when he did find leisure he knew his old friends would not be at the track. . . .

Tonight marks the opening of one of the greatest amateur sporting events in the world, the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium. . . . That may sound somewhat exaggerated, but where will you find an event that reaches out for its participants and its spectators from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border and from central Ohio to the plains of Nebraska? . . . The boys who will appear are the survivors of an original field of more than ten thousand. . . . The event stands by itself in amateur boxing. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—It was rumored that John Ringling, circus owner, would buy the New York Giants ball club. . . . Leo Diegel won the Florida open golf tournament with 286. . . . Jake Schaefer and Willie Hoppe were tied for first place in the 18.2 balk line tournament. . . . Jack Delaney knocked out Tiger Flowers in the fourth round at New York. . . . President Veeck, John Seys, and a vanguard of Cubs left for Catalina Island.

GRIMM BUNDLES CUBS OFF FOR CAMP TONIGHT

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Vice President-Manager Charles John Grimm and a party of young and old gents variously labeled as Cub ball players, a coach, a trainer, and an assortment of authors and affluent fans will take off tonight for Cubs' training camp at Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal. The group will leave the Dearborn station at 9:30 o'clock.

There will be fourteen players in the departing party, exactly the same number that will be in Los Angeles waiting for the Chicago contingent. On the Chicago train will be, besides Vice President-Manager Grimm, Clay Bryant, Hugh Casey, Phil Cavaretta, Woody English, Gabby Hartnett, Bill Jurges, Chuck Klein, Stanley Klores, Freddy Lindstrom, Ken O'Dea, Walter Stephenson, Carl Vaicek, and Lon Warneke, players; Robert Lewis, traveling secretary; Johnny Corriden, coach, and Dr. Andy Lotshaw, trainer. At Kansas City Frank Coleman, a pitcher, and Walter Goebel, a catcher, will join up.

Only Two Games.

Grimm and his protégés are scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles at 8:15 o'clock Thursday morning. They will step from the train to a bus, which will carry them to Wilmington, where they will embark with the waiting athletes for Catalina Island at 10 o'clock, arriving at Avalon at noon.

The training didoes will not follow the time honored prescription, according to Grimm's present plans. For many years intraclub games have been an almost daily feature, an accommodation to reporters who had the notion that fans best realize that the baseball season is under way when they see box scores in the paper. Grimm has said there will be only two box scores provided during the two weeks the Cubs are on Catalina. Scrub games are to be played Sundays on the island.

What! No Fat Men?

Authors who will cover the Cub activities in the early days of the training season also have been heard to moan about another stock subject of other years. In the past it has been the wont of hard pressed authors to set down the statistics anent the miseries of the fat men, or rubber shirt squad. During the winter Grimm has disposed of his outstanding obese persons, what with the departure of Pat Malone, Bud Tinning, and Babe Phelps.

But there will be many other interesting items, it is promised. Owner P. K. Wrigley has preceded the team to California and other officials are hurrying west. It is said Mr. Wrigley will organize a drill team of officials which will stomp through many exciting maneuvers.

Golden Glovers Are Peaceful, at Least Until Bouts Tonight

BY FRENCH LANE.

Up and down Michigan avenue, along State street, around the crowded corner at Randolph and Clark streets at the theater hour strolled the huskies who had arrived during the day from here, there, and everywhere.

The gladiators appeared peaceful enough on their night off, yet the hardened loop regulars remarked to one another that "If you want to find out who is boss of our town tonight start something with those Golden Gloves."

The Sioux City team, one of the first out of town contingents to check in for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, was greeted by Tuffy Griffith, old Sioux City boy who rose to fistic fame in Chicago as a heavyweight battler. Tuffy, now in retirement, will serve as coach of his home town's boxers during the ensuing fisticuffs at the Stadium.

Sport writers who gathered at the Golden Gloves headquarters in the Palmer house yesterday missed a former colleague, one Pete Ellis, genial scribe of the Vincennes, Ind., Sun-Commercial, who for the last five years had brought Vincennes' boxing contingent to Chicago. "Alice of Old Vincennes," as the boys used to call him, had deserted Hoosierland for Pittsburgh. The Vincennes team is in charge of George Beyer, who is ably carrying on from where Pete left off.

Two of Omaha's champions, Joe Matheson, welterweight, and Joe Frayer, light heavy, hail from Herman, Neb., a community of less than 1,000 population. The town is so enthused over its heroes that more than 50 of the burghers will come to Chicago to see the boys in action.

Followers of the Bloomington Pantagraph team are all worked up over Louis [Tiger] Thompson, hard hitting middleweight. The Tiger has participated in 30 fights and has won all but four, most of them via the knockout route. He is a high school student. Other middleweights in the Tournament of Champions have been cautioned to "hold that tiger" by the Bloomington contingent.

Ernest Marin, coach of the Grand Rapids squad, formerly was associated with the Mitchell brothers when they were active in pugilistic circles in and around Milwaukee. Marin was Pinky Michell's chief second when Benny Leonard won over Pinky in a stormy bout in Chicago some 10 years ago.

FIVE BOUTS FOR 1c

Yes, sir, folks who buy 25 cent general admission tickets for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Stadium tonight will see five bouts for a penny—in fact, they'll do a bit better than that, for there are 136 fights scheduled.

The 25 cent tickets will go on sale at gates 1, 3, and 6 at the Stadium tonight at 6 o'clock. There are 7,000 available. None is reserved. They also will be sold tomorrow and Wednesday for the bouts on those nights.

Other seats for this great boxing show are priced at 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. They will be on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, at Tribune Tower, and at the Stadium today, tomorrow and Wednesday beginning at 10 A. M.

Tickets for the finals March 8 at the Stadium, at 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, and $2.20, also are on sale over the counter or may be ordered by mail. Send check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The world's greatest boxing carnival—the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions—opens tonight at the Chicago Stadium. Time: 7 o'clock. The boys who already have won championships in eleven central and southern states will compete in three rings in the preliminaries of THE TRIBUNE'S annual amateur boxing show.

Three rings! Never before has Chicago seen as many, nor has Chicago ever had offered it the caliber of boxing skill that is scheduled on the program for the next three days. From Minneapolis to Nashville, and from Cleveland to Omaha, the boys who have already survived from a field of more than 10,000 contestants will make their bids for the diamond studded Golden Glove, emblematic of boxing's highest acclaim.

Boxing's Greatest Bargain!

For five hours the bombardment will continue. And the price asked for 136 bouts also establishes an exceptional mark. General admission is 25 cents. Five matches for one cent! Unequaled! But if you wish to sit in the ringside section you must pay $1.10, or almost one cent for each battle of champion against champion.

There are other reserved sections at even greater bargains. You may sit in ringside locations at the east and west ends of the Stadium for as low as 40 cents, or you may have your choice of the mezzanine seats for 66 cents and 40 cents.

Four Champions Return.

Enough of the prices. The bouts, any ten or twenty, are worth double the asking figure. Four of the 1934 title holders are returning to the Stadium where a year ago they won their championships. Three of them will fight tonight. They are Jesse Levels and Troy Bellini, Cleveland's flyweight and bantamweight champions, and Al Nettlow of Detroit, winner of the featherweight crown. Big Otis Thomas of Chicago's Savoy A. C., huskier than ever, and punching like a Max Baer, will step into the ring tomorrow night in defense of his heavyweight title which he won in a tremendously exciting match against Max Marek in the 1934 finals.

Now for the facts of tonight's competition. All contestants in the 112, 118, 126, 135, and 147 pound classes will fight through to the quarter-finals of the Tournament of Champions. No boy, however, will box more than twice, and each match will consist of three minutes each.

These boxers will report to the clerks

Perez Also Triumphs in K. of C. League.

Trailing 12 to 6 at the half, St. Cyr staged a second period rally which carried it to a 23 to 19 victory over Englewood at White City yesterday in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league.

Joie Cannizzo led the drive with four baskets. The defeat dropped Englewood into a tie for first place in the upper brackets of the division with Quigley, which won from Calumet, 22 to 11. In the lower bracket, Perez won its sixth straight to knock Tonti from the unbeaten class, 29 to 17.

YANKEE BOY AND SCHOOLBOY WIN IN TERRIER SHOW

Champion Moody's Yankee Boy, owned by John Trotzke, 1530 Wolfram street, won highest honors in the annual Boston terrier show at the Hotel Sherman yesterday. The show was sponsored by the Western Terrier club, and 103 bluebloodied aristocrats of the terrier class were shown.

Yankee Boy had the additional honor of seeing his son, Schoolboy, owned by B. Rosenbloom, awarded three firsts in different classes. Schoolboy also won first prize in Madison Square Gardens last week.

GREATEST SHOW IN BOXING WILL START TONIGHT

at the Stadium between 2 and 3 o'clock. There they will be weighed (one pound allowance is permitted in each weight) and will be subjected to the rigid scrutiny of the attending physicians. Pairings will be made by lot immediately after 3 o'clock.

The other contestants—the middleweights, lightweights, and heavyweights—are on tomorrow night's program which will be staged in two rings. The hour for examination and the starting time of the bouts are the same. Wednesday night will bring the quarter-finals, which will consist of 32 bouts in one ring. From this series will come the boys who will return to the Stadium March 8 for the final tests.

Another Ross or Louis?

From this select group may come, probably will come, another Joe Louis, Barney Ross, or Leo Rodak. But of this you may be certain—that all these amateurs will give their best in a whirlwind campaign. There's no stalling or delay when two highly trained athletes match skill and courage in a Golden Gloves ring.

For Chicago there is an added incentive. Thirty-two boxers, survivors from a field of more than 2,000 novices, will meet in the semi-finals of the Chicago tournament which is held in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions. These boys have won gold medals for qualifying from the north, west, and south sections of the city. Tomorrow night the championships will be decided and to each winner will go a Golden Glove. To each loser in the finals will be awarded a silver glove.

Rasof Needs Two More.

Perhaps no novice is better known than George Rasof, young brother of World's Champion Barney Ross, who is seeking a novice title in the 118 pound class. George never fought until the start of the west side trials Feb. 15, but he has shown a remarkable similarity in form to his famous brother. Two more victories and Young Rasof will have another title for the family to match the glove won by Barney back in 1929.

Following is the list of Chicago novice boxers for tonight's semi-finals:

Perhaps no boy in the Tournament of Champions has a greater ambition than Raymond Stearns, 17 year old Dixie middleweight champion, winner of the Nashville, Tenn., tournament, who lives in Pensacola, Fla. His rise to fame furnishes an idea of the scope of THE TRIBUNE'S tournament not included in the routine fact that 11 states have representatives here tonight.

Battles Through to Crown.

Stearns is a newsboy. For two years he has boxed because he likes the game. His path led him to the Golden Gloves Tournament in Birmingham, Ala. From there, a champion, he entered the Nashville Tennesseean's meet which included winners from Tennessee, Alabama, and Georgia. And Young Stearns took the 160 pound title from George Regitko, the 1933 champion. Now he hopes for a championship in the Tournament of Champions, a step to competition next summer for a berth on the Olympic team which will fight in Berlin.

Incidentally, Nashville has a splendid team, one which will dispute with other more populous centers for the team trophy won last year by the boys from the Cleveland Plain Dealer squad.

Champions Work Out.

Nearly all of the champion teams arrived yesterday. Several worked out briefly in local gymnasiums. A few are scheduled to arrive this morning from nearby centers. The fighters are ready. It remains now only the record list of battles to be decided and the 1935 Golden Gloves winners will be known. Whoever they are, they will have proved their superiority over 10,000 boxers in the eighth Tournament of Champions.

WILLIMAN HITS BALE OF HAY AND LOSES AUTO RACE

Tony Williman, champion pilot, was beaten by Ronnie Householder in the midget races at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night. Williman and Householder raced inches apart for more than 15 laps before Williman forged to the front.

At the twenty-fourth lap he hit a bale of hay used as a rail. Householder dodged Williman's car and went on to win. Williman was beaten twice in previous races by Householder, losing first in the opening event, a dash of ten laps.

Householder set a new track record for 15 laps when he again beat Williman in a close finish. The new time was 3 minutes 41 seconds. Williman held the old record.

UGH-HUH- I'VE OFTEN WISHED THAT I HAD A NICE QUIET HOME OF MY OWN MYSELF.
SO HAVE I.
I GUESS YOU COULDN'T GET AWAY FOR THAT PARTY OVER AT BENNY'S TONIGHT.
NO- I HAVE BEEN GOING HOME FOR THREE NIGHTS NOW.
WELL, I GUESS THAT MADE A BIG HIT WITH LADY PLUSHBOTTOM.
THAT IS WHAT WORRIES ME, MOON. I WON'T KNOW TILL I GET THERE

by Herb Cain in the last 10 seconds of the second period, when the Hawks were short handed.

Plenty of Action.

The customers had no complaint about the action in the first period. Six penalties were called, all of the culprits being sentenced in pairs on charges of unnecessary roughness, and the Blackhawks gained a one goal lead.

The first penalty came at the 12 minute mark, when Levinsky and Blake were sent off after a sparring match. They were no sooner in the bastile than Robinson and Ward rushed Chabot but both drives failed. The Hawks then got down to business. Couture, Romnes and Thompson swept in on Connell with such zest that the Hawks' came up with a goal. Couture shot first, and then, instead of attempting to bat in the rebound, passed it to Thompson, who fired it over the sprawling Connell.

Meanwhile Morenz and Smith had been cooking up a little argument of their own. Levinsky finally took a hand, jarring Smith in midice. The latter responded it with a pass and both were deported. With a minute to go, Coulter and Wentworth indulged in a rassling match and they too were ejected.

Thompson Helps Lolo.

Thompson repaid Couture's first period assist at the outset of the second, when he broke through the Maroon defense along the south boards, feinted at Connell and then passed to Couture, who immediately flipped the puck home. All of this was done within 25 seconds. Less than a minute later, the Romnes-Couture-Thompson line embarrassed Connell again, but it was voided by an offside.

With the coöperation of Smith, however, the same trio made it stick the next time. They harried Connell close up, and in the scrimmage Couture's pass glanced off Smith's skate into the cage. Lolo was credited with the goal and his two associates got assists.

From there on the contest became even more rugged. Five more penalties were called, the last on Cook for unnecessary roughness after a joust with Cain. It was while Cook was doing time that the Maroons scored. Only ten seconds remained when Cain drove home a pass from Robinson.

Levinsky Hammers In One.

The Romnes-Thompson-Couture line came on early in the third period and cashed in again, but it was Levinsky, following them, who got the goal. Alex was skating away from the cage when he took the puck on a combination pass from Thompson and Romnes and lined it between Connell's legs for the fourth Hawk goal of the night. The time was 6:50.

Cook and Trudell then broke over the blue line, Louis passing to Tommy and the latter firing it past Connell in 12:45. The excitement had not subsided before Ward was sent off for checking into the boards. While he was away Levinsky got his second goal of the evening on assists by Morenz and Gottselig. The time was 14:11.

WAKE MAIL BOX.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 24.—Dear Wake: About 1895 I attended a double-header baseball game at the old west side park in Chicago on July 4. Cleveland was playing Anson's team. The crowd was so large it overflowed into the playing field. I stood right at the first base coaching box and saw old Cap Anson catch all kinds of throws to complete the outs at first.

While deeply interested in the game, some one from the grandstand threw a big cannon cracker which hit me in the calf of the leg and exploded at the same time, nearly knocking me down, but fortunately not burning me seriously.

In the middle of the first game two fans in the field started a fight, and in a jiffy the crowd swarmed all over the diamond, stopping the game. Players of both teams got together around the pitcher's slab, then spread out in every direction, shoving the crowd back so play could proceed.

Clark Griffith, now owner of Washington; Bill Hutchison, Bridget Donohue, and Malachi Kittredge were the Chicago batteries. Cuppy and old Cy Young were two of the Cleveland hurlers that day.

Bob Anderson, Beverly Hills, Cal.

In the all-time all-sports selections appearing in this column recently, Helpers overlook the qualification of influence. In baseball, Frank Chance, the Peerless leader, was capable and always square shooting. In football, it was sheer ability, not teammates, which caused Walter Eckersall to outshine all comers and surpass players like Nagurski and Red Grange.

If giving still greater importance to influence, I would even rate Wally Steffen ahead of Eckersall. Wally was not far behind Eckie in kicking ability, a greater open field dodger, but not quite as speedy. He has long been one of our respected judges.

I check with Helper H. K. K. on Bobby Jones in golf and Bill Tilden in tennis, with no opinion on jockies. Bob Fitzsimmons leads the boxing list for gameness and clean fighting.

Joe Louis and Red Barry to Meet on Coast

Joe Louis, Detroit, Mich., heavyweight contender, has told Chicago friends he will meet Donald [Red] Barry, Washington, D. C., in a ten round bout at San Francisco, Cal., March 8. Louis, 1934 CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, may fight at Sacramento before clashing with Barry.

Professional shows will be presented at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, and an amateur program will be offered at the 108th Regiment armory, 3401 Wentworth avenue tonight. Art Sykes and Roy Lazer are paired for eight rounds in the windup at Marigold. They are heavyweights. Supporting matches include the following:

Tony Zale vs. Young Jack Blackburn [6], middleweights; Bob Tinsley vs. Scotty McLean, and Davey White vs. John Mirabel, all lightweights; Bob Stone vs. Biff Bennett, heavyweights, each four rounds.

Two contests at six rounds each will head the Midway show. They match George Van Der Hayden, South Bend, Ind., 130 pounder, member of the Catholic Youth organization's professional department, and Johnny Fitzpatrick, and Sam Scoglio and Joey Bozak, rival junior lightweights. Syl Saleska, Milwaukee middleweight, will clash with Johnny Liston at five rounds. Four round combats will bring into action Fred Cleveland and Popeye Nolan, Minneapolis; Sammy Guidara and Willie Dudlack, and Jack Lohrman and Frank Catanese.

Wonderbolts Capture Cup Match, 4 to 0

The Wieboldt Wonderbolt soccer team yesterday advanced to the semi-final round in western play for the national challenge cup by whipping the Maccabees, 4 to 0, on a muddy field at De Paul university stadium. Lillie opened the scoring two minutes after the start of the contest when he took a pass from Monroe and drove a long shot into the net.

Thirty minutes later Watson cashed in on a penalty kick for the second Wonderbolt goal. Monroe eluded Kemp just before the period ended and slammed the ball past Fisher to enable the Wonderbolts to take a 3 to 0 lead.

Goalie Fisher and Henney put up a remarkable defense for most of the second period until Monroe scored with one of the longest goals seen in Chicago in years. The score was made possible by Lillie's perfect pass, and the ball traveled with such speed from 20 yards out that Fisher had no chance to make a play.

The Maccabees then spurted, and drove deep into Wonderbolt territory. Hjulian was called upon to handle the ball for the third time of the period. Joe Triner, national commissioner, announced after the game that the Wonderbolts will meet the Viennas of Milwaukee next Sunday at De Paul stadium. Lineups:

ST. LOUIS WINS.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A spectacular goal by Bill Gonsalves of the St. Louis Centrals gave them a 1 to 0 decision over the Cleveland Slavias today and sent the St. Louis team into the western semi-finals of the National Challenge cup soccer competition.

MONARCHS WIN 3 GAMES, ADD TO CLASSIC LEAD

The Monarchs last night strengthened their hold on first place in the Classic league at the Gold Coast when they won three games from Edelweiss, while the Budweisers lost one game to Baby Ruth. The Vrbas took two from the Pabst Blue Ribbons, and the La Salle-Windsors won three from the Cardinals.

Curtis Stevens Wins Final Bobsled Event

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Curtis Stevens of Lake Placid, holder of the National and Adirondack A. A. U. four man bobsled titles, today annexed the North American championship by streaking down the treacherous Mount Van Hoevenberg run in the four heat time of 7 minutes and 8.15 seconds.

Marking the end of Winter's competition on the mile and a half run, Stevens' sled finished 1.57 seconds faster than that piloted by Francis Tyler, Lake Placid policeman. The latter's elapsed time was 7 minutes and 9.72 seconds.

Riding with the winning pilot were Crawford Merkle, brake; Stanley Pelkey, and Charles Straight.

Third honors went to J. P. Greene of Plattsburg, whose sled covered the six miles in 7 minutes and 9.72 seconds.

Hubert Stevens, brother of Curtis, finished fourth with a four heat total time of 7 minutes and 16.72 seconds.

Charles Storrin of Keene Valley was cut and bruised when his sled careened into the wall just beyond the finish tape. The brakes were set too suddenly as the sled finished the final heat. It was demolished. The other riders escaped injury. The heavy bob tore a hole six feet wide in the rock wall.

SIR MALCOLM TO WORK BLUEBIRD IN GARAGE TODAY

Englishman May Run Car on Beach This Week.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Bluebird will spring to life again tomorrow, after a week in the garage, and there's more than a possibility that Sir Malcolm Campbell will take a final test run within the next few days before shooting at his own 272 mile an hour record.

Campbell has been here almost a month and though the 11½ mile beach on which he made his record two years ago has deteriorated since his arrival, Campbell wants action.

Bluebird, the streamlined 2,500 horsepower monster, will be tuned up in the garage tomorrow. Any day thereafter may see it in action on the beach.

Beach in Bad Condition.

"I'm going to go at the first opportunity," he said today. "The beach is in dreadful shape, but it can change overnight. The tractors and mule teams have done splendid work smoothing rough places and filling in gullies, but what we must have is a high tide and a storm from the northeast. Then we'll run for the record."

The slender, 50 year old English sportsman is more determined than ever that he won't leave here without a new record. He won't be satisfied until he has pressed an automobile to 300 miles an hour. If he doesn't make it this time he'll be back again.

More than a week ago, when Sir Malcolm made his first test run and reached 200 at his own estimate, the sands were rough. Three or four days' work was necessary to get the "bugs" out of Bluebird, never ridden before since rebuilding.

And Then It Gets Worse.

The speedometer broke at the start, the brakes were binding, the clutch seemed to slip a little as it worked in, and the motor stalled a couple of times. When these minor adjustments had been made the beach had gone from bad to worse.

DIVORCED WIFE SLAYS 2D MATE OF EX-HUSBAND

Shoots Woman in Lobby of Theater; Surrenders.

Monticello, Ky., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Shot four times by her husband's former wife, Mrs. Marie Dutton Wilson, 35, was fatally wounded here today in a theater lobby.

Mrs. Eva Wilson, who fired the shots, handed her revolver to Patrolman Herbert Norfleet, who had been standing in the back of the theater, and was arrested on a murder charge.

Norfleet said Mrs. Eva Wilson once before had shot and wounded the woman she killed today. That was in 1931, after Truesdale Wilson's separation from his first wife and before his marriage to his second wife, the woman who was killed.

Follows Couple to Lobby.

Wilson, after the shooting, said he and his wife had entered the theater today, but, seeing that it was crowded, decided to return later. Mrs. Eva Wilson, who was in the rear of the building, followed them to the lobby and opened fire.

Mrs. Wilson's first attack upon her former husband's mate occurred in Somerset, Ky., May 15, 1931. On that occasion Mrs. Wilson sat beside her intended victim at a funeral service in church, followed her for several blocks, and fired three shots at her.

Wounded Twice in Back.

Wounded twice in the back, the woman grappled with Mrs. Wilson for possession of the gun. A deputy sherif wrested the gun from Mrs. Wilson, who, he said, attempted to turn it on herself. The case never was prosecuted.

In a statement to police Wilson called the slaying the "intention of a disordered mind." An examining trial has been set for Thursday.

CAB DRIVER HELD AS GIRL'S SLAYER BY WINDOW SHOT

Theodore Prade, 36 years old, 1432 North La Salle street, a Checker cab driver, was identified yesterday as the man who fired three shots through the window of the home of Frank Junior at 2556 Iowa street early yesterday morning, killing Junior's daughter, Mrs. Ann Solan, 17 years old, an expectant mother. He will be charged with murder.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Junior, parents of the dead girl, and her twin sister, Pauline, made the identification. Mrs. Junior said Prade brought her husband home in his cab and demanded $11.95 cab fare, displaying a revolver. She told him to return the next day and he would be paid.

Witnesses said when Prade left the house he fired the shots through the front window and one struck Mrs. Solan in the head. She died two hours later at St. Mary hospital.

Both Prade and Junior were intoxicated, Mrs. Junior said. Junior told the police Prade and he had been drinking together at several taverns. After leaving one at 2004 West Chicago avenue Junior said he was attacked and beaten by three men. He is a laborer for a coal dealer.

Mrs. Solan, with her husband, Bruno Solan, a helper on a Butler Brothers truck, was visiting her parents when she was shot. Also in the home were her twin sister, Pauline, and a friend, William Nowroyta, 2540 Iowa street. The Solan home is at 939 North Winchester avenue.

BORAH REVEALS WASHINGTON NO HELP TO LEAGUE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho celebrated Washington's birthday by exposing a fraud perpetrated upon the memory of the first President.

The senator rose in the senate and called attention to a Washington Post editorial of Jan. 12, 1934, taking him to task for citing Washington's famous warning against foreign entanglements. The Post, quoting another alleged utterance, said Washington also foresaw a future "when, our institutions being firmly consolidated and working with complete success, we might safely and perhaps beneficially take part in the consultations held by foreign states for the advantage of the nations."

Senator Borah described a year's investigation of the authenticity of that quotation. He said he remembered no such utterance in Washington's writings. The legislative reference service maintained by congress could not find it in Washington's works, but did find the quotation in a book by Prof. George H. Blakeslee. Correspondence with Mr. Blakeslee disclosed that he took the quotation from Horace K. Kallen's article on the "League of Nations and American Foreign Policy." Prof. Kallen did not know where he got the quotation and could not remember his article. The secretary who assisted him was no longer in his employ.

Finally the American Historical association made an investigation as a result of which it reported that "Washington never said what he is therein assumed to have said."

EXPECT CHICAGO BONDHOLDERS' BID ON FOSHAY TOWER

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Foshay's "Folly"—the 32 story skyscraper designed after the Washington monument and completed here in 1929, only to go into the hands of a receiver two months later—will go on the market for the twenty-second time in federal court here tomorrow.

The prospects this time are favorable for a transfer of the property. Federal Judge Gunnar Nordbye, before whom the sale is to take place, said the sale will, in effect, be merely a transfer of title to the bondholders, most of whom are in Chicago, where the bonds were sold.

The property, he added, still was encumbered by mortgages, but other liens have been satisfied. Counsel for the Chicago bondholders was understood to be ready to bid for the skyscraper.

STRIKE THREAT FOR 1,193 CHAIN GROCERY STORES

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A store clerks' union today pushed its efforts to close the stores of two grocery chains with a total of 1,193 stores in the metropolitan area unless demands of higher wages and shorter hours are met.

The Retail Clerks' International Protective association called a strike in the 571 stores of the James Butler company on Saturday. Claims conflicted over its success.

Today employés of Daniel Reeves, Inc., with 622 stores, voted on whether they should strike to support demands for a 48 hour week with a 25 per cent salary incrase and vacations with pay for clerks and managers. The resutls of the vote will be announced Tuesday.

HARRY D. WARNER, PAYMASTER OF I.C. 35 YEARS, IS DEAD

Harry D. Warner, for thirty-five years paymaster of the Illinois Central railroad, died yesterday at the Illinois Central hospital. His death was due to heart trouble that followed an operation performed last Friday. He was 65 years old and had been employed by the Illinois Central for forty-two years, starting as an office boy. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. S. J. [Elizabeth] Doty, and two sons, Frederick R. and Addison W. Warner. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in Graceland cemetery chapel.

Bartender Shot in Row with Unidentified Patron

Mike Ciascio, bartender in the tavern of Michael Vito, 917 Larrabee street, was shot and slightly wounded last night during a quarrel in the saloon. After his wound was dressed Ciascio was taken to the West North avenue police station, where both he and Vito declared the shooting had come about in an altercation with a customer whose name, they said, they did not know and who fled immediately afterward.

Find Santa Fe Accountant Dead from Fumes of Auto

Burglars Get $750 Loot from Home of Engineer

Burglars entered the second floor apartment of Theodore Cohen, 2832 North Mozart street, an electrical engineer, late last night and carried away loot worth $750. It consisted of two rings, two wrist watches, a stickpin, four fraternity pins, and a sable neckpiece. The thieves gained entrance through a rear window.

FEARS 45 LOSE THEIR LIVES ON 2 SAILING SHIPS

Boston, Mass., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Boston Post says John S. Lopes, agent and owner of the packet Trenton, believes that 45 persons who sailed on two other packets for the Cape Verde Islands last November have lost their lives at sea.

The three packets—the Trenton, the Winnepesaukee, and the John R. Manta, all windjammers—left Providence, R. I., and New Bedford in November. Lopes, the Post says, received word from the Cape Verde Islands that the Trenton, which cleared New Bedford Nov. 23, was the only one of the three to arrive there.

The Manta, carrying 32 persons, sailed from Providence on Nov. 9, and the Winnepesaukee, carrying a crew of 13, left New Bedford Nov. 19. Both have been unaccounted for since, the newspaper says.

ASKED TO WILL PROPERTY TO PAY FOR RELIEF

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The 6,000 or more relief beneficiaries in King county will be asked to sign contracts leaving to the county upon their deaths any property they may possess, under a plan devised by Mrs. Hattie Patterson, welfare director.

Prosecutor Warren G. Magnuson said the contracts will be distributed during this week.

"Many of these people the county is aiding own their homes or perhaps some acreage," Magnuson said. "Because of age or other physical handicap they are unable to work and the county must care for them. The county doesn't require that they sell their homes or land in order to obtain relief, but it seems only fair that the county be eventually reimbursed to some extent from the estates."

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The special squads of federal and state agents and police surveying the liquor licensed premises in the city found 1,113 violations, arrested sixty and forced payment of $21,401 in taxes, a report of the United States internal revenue department disclosed today.

The report covered the period from Feb. 4, when the survey began, up to Feb. 20. During that period 4,535 of the city's 30,000 licensed premises were inspected. The squads found that in 470 places there were no federal retail liquor stamps. In 102 places the liquor licenses were not displayed and in thirty-three places whisky bottles were found to contain liquor different than the brand named on the labels.

Edward Esmonde, Actor, Dead in New York at 72

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Edward Esmonde, an actor for more than half a century, died last night at his apartment in the Hotel Flanders after a long illness. He was 72. Forty years ago he appeared in "Faust" with Louis Morrison, and about the same time with John F. Sheridan in "Louis XI." and "Richelieu." He was in vaudeville for 19 years with a sketch titled "The Soldier of Propville."

DUST BRINGS YEAR'S FIRST CROP SCARES

Grains Celebrate by Modest Flurry.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Out of the dust haze of the southwest last week came the first of the 1935 crop scares. On the Chicago Board of Trade a mild flurry ensued in new wheat crop futures. The advance was not spectacular, but the response of the market was clear cut. The two new crop deliveries in wheat were the only grain futures that closed the week at higher prices than the preceding Saturday.

What actual damage was done to winter wheat by the storms swept over the driest areas of the section is difficult to appraise. As an indication of the parched condition of the soil over a good share of the producing area the storms were significant.

Watch New Crop Closely.

It is still relatively early in the season for a real crop scare to develop. The crop, however, is now approaching the season when growing conditions will be watched with the utmost interest. The storms give point to repeated assertions of those crop experts who declared the crop is facing the same conditions that brought about the low yields of 1933 and 1934. As a herald of what may develop as the growing season progresses the reported damage last week has an important bearing on the market. Unless abnormally heavy rainfall is received from now on crop authorities agree the prospect of average production in the southwest is not promising.

The action of May wheat last week was in contrast with that of the new crop futures. At the end of the period it was selling a half cent a bushel lower although the "statistical position" is thought to favor higher prices.

Stocks Dwindle Rapidly.

Wheat stocks in Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis, and Duluth, the principal markets, have reached 33,000,000 bushels, compared with 69,000,000 in the same bins a year ago. Failure of commercial demand to revive following announcement of the gold decision upset calculations of the trade and found a reflection in the market's action.

In the face of shrinking supplies and a growing demand from live stock feeders the corn market encountered a distinct setback during the week. May corn was the principal selling target and lost approximately two cents a bushel. Gossop in the floor of the Board of Trade said some speculative holdings were being liquidated which may in part explain the particular weakness in the May future.

Argentine Prices Slump.

At the same time, however, corn prices in Argentina were in a slump which injected the factor of further competition from that country. The visible supply of corn in the leading markets is only 28,795,000 bushels, or less than half the 66,276,000 bushels on hand last year.

The following table shows the range of prices in all grain futures for the week:

CAN. NATIONAL RAIL FINANCES TO BE STUDIED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 24.—Recasting of the financial structure of the Canadian National railways, involving adjustments of major importance, such as writing off worthless assets acquired from the bankrupt Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern railways, will be considered by the railway committee of the house of commons. Recommendations proposing these adjustments are made by George A. Touche & Co., parliament's auditors of Canadian National railways accounts. They advise the following:

Cancellation in Canadian National accounts of $165,000,000 of old Grand Trunk stocks acquired by the Canadian government without direct cash consideration which arbitrators declared had no value. Transfer by the government to the Canadian National railways of the entire capital stock [$100,000,000] of the old Canadian Northern railway which cost the government only $10,000,000.

Cancellation of all interest accruals on Canadian National books on account of dominion government loans totaling $424,000,000. The auditors contend there is no justification for the government charging interest on amounts which it has found necessary to provide to meet deficits resulting from the operation of the property. Elimination of duplication of liabilities on railway and government books which is misleading and harmful to credit of Canada.

Abraham Lincoln Life Workers Meet Tomorrow

The third of a series of meetings for home office representatives and the sales force of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill., which was reinsured on Feb. 18 by the Illinois Bankers Life Assurance company of Monmouth, Ill., will be held in the Hotel La Salle tomorrow, it was announced yesterday.

C. of C. Reports New Suits Due on Gold Clause

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The New Deal may yet be forced by the Supreme court to pay for its unconstitutional abrogation of the gold clause in government bonds, the United States Chamber of Commerce predicted today.

Eight of the nine Supreme court court justices indicated that "changing circumstances" might open the way for government bondholders to sue the government for damages sustained through repudiation of the gold promise, according to the chamber's interpretation of the famous gold clause decisions.

Repay Borrowed Money.

"There were eight justices who were of the opinion that upon a later occasion there might be collection of damages from the government for its illegal attempt to violate the gold clause in its own contract for repayment of borrowed money," the chamber said in its regular weekly statement.

On the Liberty bond case, the chamber pointed out, the court was divided 4-4-1. Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Van Devanter, and Butler, dissenting in this case as in all others, held the government could not breach its contract. Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis, Cardozo, and Roberts held that the government could not break its contract, but added that no damage had been shown in the case before the court.

Only Justice Stone, in a separate opinion concurring with Chief Justice Hughes and the three associated with him, insisted that the court should not go into the question of breach of contract.

Opinions Are Interpreted.

There are eight justices, therefore, according to the chamber's interpretation of the opinions, who stand committed to the position that the government broke its contract and that damages might accrue.

"Changing conditions, the four justices [Hughes, Brandeis, Roberts, and Cardozo] who insisted upon going beyond their associate [Stone], might permit holders of Liberty bonds to have recovery of damages," the chamber said.

"The four justices who dissented throughout the cases, of course, would support recovery under changed conditions as well as under present conditions."

Eight justices, the chamber concludes, might support a recovery of damages on the government's gold bonds. Only the technicality that no damages were shown stands between the government and a court order to pay up.

"The ninth justice," the chamber went on to explain, "pointed to one set of circumstances in which the court was saying there could be recovery of damages. He construed the decision to mean that, if the government raised the content of the gold dollar to a point nearer to the old dollar, but still short of it, and allowed a free gold market in the United States, the conditions would make possible a successful suit against the government.

"By reason of that possibility, and the cost which would result for the government, this justice obviously interpreted the decision as decreeing practically that there can not again be a free gold market in the United States, and that our currency can not again be made convertible into gold, unless the content of the gold dollar is returned to the whole of the former standard.

Through More Devaluations.

"Changing conditions, very obviously, might have their cause in a turn of events in the other direction, through more devaluation of the gold dollar. There is the language in the prevailing opinion of the court which can reasonably be interpreted as meaning that the government might then be held responsible, too.

"There is another possibility. Continuing the dollar at its present decreased content in gold, the government might make the dollar convertible into gold on this basis and allow a free gold market. Under the decision of the court, by reason of five justices permitting only the technicality to protect the government from paying damages to holders of its gold clause bonds, the government could take this course without large cost only if it continue to take refuge behind the technicality."

VANDERLIP URGES U. S. TO ADOPT "INDEX DOLLAR"

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—An "index dollar" was championed today by Frank A. Vanderlip as the solution of the sound currency problem. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank of New York, stated his views in a letter to the senate banking and currency committee which now has before it the "banking act of 1935."

The retired banker contended congress should assume the responsibilities for regulating the value of money, and he pointed out that the proposed banking act gave congress that power. He added, however, that any body created by congress for the task should have its objectives defined.

"The measure before you in fact provides for the establishment of a managed currency system," said Vanderlip, "but it should not leave the determination of the policy in the hands of any regulatory body. Congress should itself determine what the policy is to be."

He said congress should determine the price level it desired to establish and maintain through open market operations and the variation of the legal percentage of reserves which banks must hold against deposits.

Illinois Central Income Drops as Gross Increases

Net operating income of the Illinois Central system for January amounted to $584,840 as compared with $893,070 in January, 1934. Gross revenues totaled $7,619,097 for January, 1935, as compared with $6,990,050 for the same month a year ago.

GOLD DECISION MUCH OF A DUD IN STOCK MART

Shares Lose Gains After Upturn.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 24.—Market-wise, the long awaited Supreme court "gold decision" proved pretty much of a dud. Stocks pushed up rather sharply while the text of the ruling was coming in and continued to make progress on a gradually diminishing scale for an hour or so afterwards and then turned abruptly downwards again as traders began to indulge in some "sober second thoughts" on the development.

Virtually all of the 2⅞ point rise in the market "averages" was wiped out in the two subsequent sessions and the list has been settling gradually lower on a steadily receding trading volume ever since. Many speculative favorites in the industrial list sold down to new lows for the year in yesterday's abbreviated week-end dealing, some going to new bottoms for 1934-'35. The "averages" lost nearly a point on the week.

Utilities Hit New Lows.

Public utility issues were hammered to new lows almost daily after the gold case flurry and many of them established new all time price bottoms. The group firmed up a bit yesterday following news of the decision of Judge W. I. Grubb in Alabama holding that the Tennessee Valley Authority is without authority to sell electric power to municipalities, but such buying as came into the group did not look any too convincing.

Some traders who have been contending for weeks that the utilities were a "buy" at their present levels, no matter what their immediate future, possibly had visions yesterday of a serious setback for the government's whole "yardstick" power and light program when the decision gets to the Supreme court as Washington dispatches indicated that it will as soon as the necessary intervening court procedure can be gone through with.

Rail Shares Decline.

The carrier group continued its monotonous jog into easier territory in apparent utter disregard of the assurance made by the head of the RFC to the managers of the roads early in the week that the period of emergency in American business was over.

Among the equipments, which went down as usual with the rails, Baldwin Locomotive stood out under a selling attack which carried both its common and preferred shares down to a level where tape watchers began to speculate on the possibility of approaching bankruptcy proceedings as the only way out of the company's growing financial difficulties. The low priced common shares lost more than half their listed value on the week's sales.

Pay Less Heed to Inflation.

So-called inflation issues, particularly the silver mining descriptions, paid less and less attention to inflationary talk as a stimulus, notwithstanding the radical nature of much legislation introduced into congress. Such stocks as U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound, Cerro de Pasco, and American Smelting gave way under pressure about as easily as any other section of the list.

Other groups offered little to set them apart from the general market. The automobiles found a little extra embarrassment in the knowledge that while plant production is holding up dealers are being stocked heavily with prospects of a slowing down in output until public response to the new models can be gauged. There were some further price structure disturbances here and there to disturb the petroleums and the steel group lost favor on poorer outlook for the industry. U. S. Steel common lost nearly $2.50 a share on the week.

SUN OIL REPORTS $6,650,464 PROFIT, OR $3.20 A SHARE

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The Sun Oil company and subsidiaries report for 1934 a consolidated net income of $6,650,464 after depreciation, depletion, taxes and minority interest, equal after preferred dividends to $3.20 a share earned on 1,893,982 common shares, comparing with $6,971,844, or $3.68 a share on 1,733,013 common shares, earned in 1933. The 1934 income was equal to $3.51 a share on the 1,725,772 common shares outstanding on Dec. 15, 1934, prior to the distribution of a 9 per cent stock dividend on that date.

The company invested $7,700,000 in expanding and improving plants and properties, meeting the requirements through current receipts.

Gross operating income was $82,667,367, compared with $66,223,753 in 1933, and operating income after expenses, taxes, depreciation, depletion and intangible development costs were $6,228,100, against $6,459,015. Other income was $1,028,972, compared with $1,310,403.

GASOLINE TAXES OVER 4½ BILLION IN SIXTEEN YEARS

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Since the first gasoline tax was imposed in the United States sixteen years ago, $4,620,044,133 has been collected in federal and state levies on motor fuel, and of this sum motorists of New York state have contributed more than $207,000,000, according to estimates made by William L. Kallman, chairman of the New York state petroleum industries committee.

The gasoline tax was first levied by Oregon on Feb. 25, 1919, to finance highways, Mr. Kallman recalled. Subsequently every state adopted the device, as did the federal government. The New York tax, first imposed in 1929, has yielded $207,750,813 through 1934, exclusive of federal taxes.

"In recent years part of the revenue has been diverted to general expenses," he said. "There is a real question of the justice of using the money for something else."

WESTERN PACIFIC R. R. IS UNABLE TO PAY MARCH 1 INTEREST

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Western Pacific Railroad company announced today it would be unable to pay the semi-annual interest due March 1 on its first mortgage bonds.

In a letter to stockholders signed by T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the executive committee, and Charles Elsey, president, it was stated:

"In the hope that within the ninety days of grace provided in the company's first mortgage it will be able to submit a plan for permanent readjustment of its capital structure which will provide necessary new money and which will be acceptable to its security holders and other creditors, the company has laid the situation before the committee representing the first mortgage bondholders under the 1934 extension plan, the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other junior creditors, and will promptly undertake and continue negotiations for such a readjustment plan."

It was further explained that the company could not earn in 1935 the $2,464,505 due in interest and that payment out of cash on hand would unduly impair working capital.

WILL PAY CASH, SCRIP ON GERMAN BONDS TODAY

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—The long awaited distribution of cash and scrip in satisfaction of the interest on approximately 116 issues of German dollar bonds for the period from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1934, will be offered to bondholders tomorrow. The bonds affected have a face value of between $700,000,000 and $800,000,000. The payment offered is at the rate of 30 per cent of the interest in dollars and 70 per cent in reichsmark scrip. The offer also applies to holders whose bonds have matured, so that the principal is to be paid at the same rate as the interest.

The nineteen banking institutions which are acting as special agents for the distribution of the cash and scrip make no recommendations to the bondholders in the matter of acceptance of the offer, stating that "this notice under no consideration is to be construed as an offering of the scrip, or as an offer to buy or a solicitation of an offer to surrender coupons."

Before payment is made, however, the bondholder must receive a copy of the prospectus and then forward his coupons or serially matured bonds to the proper paying agents accompanied by a letter of transmittal.

TOBACCO FUTURE TRADE WILL OPEN IN GOTHAM TODAY

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Trading in tobacco futures will be opened tomorrow on the New York Produce exchange. The first delivery month will be May in contracts for burley and flue cured tobacco. Each contract consists of 10,000 pounds of unstemmed, steam dried, or sweated tobacco of uniform grade and type, of one crop year, the output of one packer, and packed in hogshead of size and weight commercially used for the type of tobacco tendered.

Price changes will be in one one-hundredths of a cent, the fraction amounting to $1 a contract. Changes are to be limited to three cents a pound a day.

A. Stein & Co. Reports '34 Profit of $1.04 a Share

Net profit of A. Stein & Co. for the year ended Dec. 31, 1934, amounted to $337,610 after depreciation, reserves, and taxes. COMPANIES MAY CALL BONDS TO SAVE INTEREST

Gold Decree Paves Way for Refinancing.

One development which is expected in La Salle street to result from the Supreme court's gold decision is the calling of a number of bonds by corporations which had held up such action for fear that they might have to make settlements on a gold basis in the event the court ruled against the administration.

It is pointed out in the street that many of the stronger companies are in a position to effect considerable savings on interest charges because of the low interest rates now ruling in the money market. With the gold case decisions overhanging them, such companies as were able to call their bonds have been hesitant to do so.

Despite the possibility of a number of bonds being subject to call it was pointed out that a number of them are now selling above their call price. It is said that around 25 or 30 companies in good financial position have bonds which may be called within the next seven or eight months.

Examples of bonds which may be called in the nearby future are: Remington Rand 5½s; Swift & Co. 5s of 1940 and 5s of 1944; Cudahy 5s and 5½s; United Biscuit, 6s; American Smelting, 5s; Crane & Co., 5s; Firestone Tire, 5s, and Firestone Cotton, 5s, and Pillsbury Flour 6s.

Municipal Bonds Advance.

While there is nothing certain regarding the calling of any of the above obligations La Salle street observers point them out as possibilities for such action as a result of the Supreme court's decisions.

The municipal bond market was quick to respond to the end to the uncertainty. A large block of Illinois 4 per cent bonds which was available on Monday was all sold out the next day. Medium term Californias advanced from a 2.50 per cent yield basis to a 2.40 per cent basis; Omaha bonds due around 1946 advanced from 2.75 per cent to around 2.65 per cent. St. Louis 2¾s of 1951 advanced from a 2.85 per cent yield basis to a 2.70 per cent basis.

LOOSE-WILES EARNING IN 1934 IS $2.06 A SHARE

New York, Feb. 24.—[Special.]—Net earnings of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company in 1934 amounted to $1,324,388 after providing for depreciation, income, and various new federal taxes and all other expenses. After paying dividends of $7 a share on the preferred stock, $1,079,332 was applicable to common stock, equivalent to about $2.06 a share on 522,481 shares outstanding at the close of the year. For 1933 the company reported net earnings of $1,679,842, or $2.74 a share on the outstanding common stock.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1934, shows current assets of $8,177,104 and current liabilities of $1,185,774, compared with $7,703,140 and $1,144,309, respectively, at the close of the preceding year. Inventories of $4,035,160 compared with $3,421,315 and cash amounted to $1,394,649 against $1,744,160.

CHICAGO BUSINESS RIDES ON EVEN KEEL, TRADE GROUP REPORTS

Chicago business maintained an even keel last week, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. While retail trade continued at the same pace, recent weeks' fears which have hampered the field seemed to have disappeared following the Supreme court's decision, the association declared.

Wholesale inquiries for spring and summer apparel again showed a slight improvement. Mail order houses continued optimistic.

The only discouragement was found in a slowing up of collections, which was attributed to payments of taxes and other annual obligations.

Announcement of several impending industrial expansions gives rise to hopes for gains in employment, although no tangible results are yet evident, the trade body says.

NEW INTERESTS ENTER NOTED BANKING HOUSE

Changes in the personnel of the investment firm of Eastman, Dillon & Co., involving the retirement of Herbert Lowell Dillon, one of the concern's original founders, and assumption of senior interests by Lloyd S. Gilmour, formerly of Blyth & Co., Inc., James P. Magill of Philadelphia, and Frank F. Walker, formerly with the Blyth organization, were announced yesterday. The firm has been in the investment banking and brokerage business for more than 25 years.

The change will also mark the return to activity of Henry L. Bogert Jr., formerly Eastman-Dillon partner, who retired several years ago.

The following also will be partners in the new concern: Philip Brown, Arthur C. Boyce, Gilmer Siler, Thomas C. Eastman, Loring Dam, and H. Lawrence Jones. The partnerships include memberships on the New York Stock and Curb exchanges.

Mr. Gilmour said the policy of the firm would be to coördinate the municipal bond, general investment, and underwriting activities with the brokerage business, but that greater emphasis than heretofore would be placed on the bond and underwriting activities, which the partners expect to show greater activity in the next few years.

SEC HEAD GIVES HIS POSITION ON BANK SHARES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The securities and exchange commission made public a letter today by Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy stating it saw "no ground" for exempting bank stock issues from rules which would require registration with the commission of their listing on stock exchanges.

The bank stocks have been traded in on an unlisted basis—which has temporarily exempted them from registration—on the New York Produce exchange. The securities division of this exchange is to be eliminated Feb. 28, and bank stocks interests sought permanent exemption from registration for them.

Budd Asserts Rail Officials Favor Pooling

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Efforts of Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation coördinator, to bring about economies in railroad operation through consolidation and joint use of terminals and other facilities have the full approval of the nation's rail executives. However, the roads should not be asked to undertake those operations which will require an immediate outlay of large amounts of money.

This is the view of Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad in commenting on Eastman's recent report in which the coördinator reiterated his suggestions that the roads press their search for operating economies.

"Many operations where consolidations and joint use of facilities have been advantageous have been taken care of," Budd said. "The reason progress in this field has slowed down is not because of any lack of desire of the railroads to continue such efforts but because the cases that present themselves are much more difficult to solve. The easier ones have been arranged."

Idea Not New.

Consolidation and joint use of facilities is nothing new to railroad men who favor a continuation of these activities, he said, adding that in considering possibilities for such operations two important points must be considered. They are:

1. Arrangements for joint use of each other's properties must take into account the preservation of property rights and agreements must be reached with respect to compensation.

2. Determination whether there is sufficient saving in the aggregate to justify the venture.

Budd cited the experience of his own road in joint use of property, saying that on Aug. 2, 1933, there were 981 operations in which the Burlington had joint facility arrangements with other lines. In 492 of these the operations extended to other roads for which the Burlington received payment and in 489 cases the Burlington made payments. These included joint use of tracks, switching lines, passenger terminals, interlocking and freight houses.

Freight Coördination Hardest.

In effecting arrangements for joint use of properties, Budd said the passenger services could be handled more easily than freight because of complications with shippers.

He also said that in coördination of facilities those responsible must always have in mind the public interest, employes' interest and regard for owners. It is difficult to effect any coördination, he explained, in which one of these three groups will not be affected adversely.

Budd called attention to the emergency transportation act of 1933 which while saying that consolidations are desirable, contains a provision which prevents them because of labor's interest. He recalled moves in past years which were halted because the country did not have a system of control which it felt could handle the giant mergers.

ELECTRIC BOND AND SHARE HEADS RAP POWER BILL

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Electric Bond and Share company presented tonight additional arguments to arouse stockholders in the general battle of utilities against passage of the holding company and federal power bill now before congress.

In a letter to stockholders signed by G. E. Groesbeck, chairman, and S. R. Inch, president, it was declared the proposed legislation for regulation of holding companies is "grossly unfair and unjust," and, if enacted into law, may "render valueless the investment of millions of security holders who invested their savings in public utility securities."

STEEL OUTPUT DOWN 3 POINTS TO 50 PER CENT

Price Decree Ends Chief Uncertainty.

Demand for pipe iron and finished steel is strong despite a drop of 3 points in steel ingot production last week to 50 per cent of productive capacity, according to the magazine Steel.

One of the chief uncertainties that caused important consumers to withhold commitments was removed with the extension of prices on practically all iron and steel products for the second quarter, the journal says. A stabilizing influence was also attributed to the gold clause decision.

Automobile makers are completing the best February since 1929, with last week's assemblies amounting to 82,000 units, and look forward to an extremely strong retail market for the next four months, the review states. Considering mechanical operations on the new models, Ford production activity is probably at an all time peak, the article continues.

Farm Equipment Orders Heavy.

"Manufacturers of agricultural implements are second only to the automobile industry in crowding mills for delivery, and expect no slackening in their production for several months," the magazine says.

"Pay rolls in iron and steel and leading consuming plants are the highest in years, and despite sporadic disturbances at some metal working establishments serious labor difficulties are not anticipated. The President's proposed extension for two years of NRA evidently does not contemplate any notable change in the steel code."

Awards of reënforcing bars last week totaled 13,376 tons; structural shapes aggregated 10,343 tons. The former included 7,030 tons for the Los Angeles metropolitan water district. A little more private work is appearing in the shape market, the journal says, with General Motors' Diesel locomotive plant in Chicago already developing inquiry for 2,000 tons.

Track Accessories Lead.

Most railroad activity is in track accessories, the review continues, with the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy distributing 8,000 tons, the Southern Pacific 6,000 tons, and the Northern Pacific 8,000 tons.. Central of Georgia purchased 3,800 tons of rails, and the Northeastern of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, is inquiring for 718 freight cars.

Operations during the week gained 2 points to 79 per cent at Cleveland. Pittsburgh reported a loss of 2 points to 37 per cent, Chicago 10 to 53, and Wheeling 2 to 85. Detroit held at 100, Buffalo at 45, Birmingham 55½, eastern Pennsylvania 31, Youngstown 60, and New England 63.

The Carnegie Steel company purchased 12,500 tons of No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap at $13, delivered to Munhall, Pa., the review says. At Chicago and elsewhere the market is quiet and prices easier, with the magazine's scrap composite off 17 cents at $11.58 a ton. The iron and steel price composite is down 4 cents at $32.50 a ton and the finished steel index is unchanged at $54 a ton.

PLACE WISCONSIN DEFICIT AT 17½ MILLIONS JUNE 30

Expenses Met by Use of Highway Funds.

Wisconsin's appropriations against the general fund will exceed the fund's balance by about $17,500,000 on June 30, according to the state budget bureau..

This statement on the state's financial situation is included in a survey just made by the Wisconsin Taxpayers' alliance, which points out that on June 30, 1931, cash in the general fund exceeded appropriations in force by around $1,000,000.

The alliance says that since the Wisconsin constitution forbids the state to borrow except for purposes of defense, Wisconsin has been able to meet its pay rolls and pay its current bills only by using money which had been appropriated for highway uses.

Balance 24.6 Millions.

Appropriation balances on June 30, 1934, totaled $11,392,047 exclusive of highways. Highway appropriation balances amounted to $13,002, making a grand total of $24,642,466. Cash in the general fund was $11,639,684. Thus the excess of appropriations in force over cash and receivables on June 30 last was $13,002,782, or approximately the amount of the highway appropriation. There was cash on hand sufficient to cover all appropriations in force except the highway.

The alliance says the state has operated on not less than 2 and perhaps as high as 13 million dollars of highway money during the last four years. It adds that state authorities explain that these highway moneys still stand to the credit of the highway commission and may be expended by it for highway purposes if the cash becomes available. Commenting on the present methods the alliance says:

"Some authorities justify this procedure on the basis that the state does not need high cash reserves for operating purposes. It is claimed the cash should be left in the hands of the taxpayers for their use rather than in the banks, where the state is put to some trouble in guarding its deposits.

Suggest Statutory Relief.

"This argument does not justify the unbalanced budgets of the last four years. If it is necessary to balance the state budget by drawing upon the cash balance, which in Wisconsin has amounted to borrowing gas tax and motor vehicle revenues for general tax purposes, such procedure should be recognized by statute."

The alliance says the history of the state's budget since June 30, 1931, briefly, is as follows: The 1931 [La Follette] budget for the two fiscal years ended June 30, 1932, and June 30, 1933, provide for appropriations of almost $10,000,000 more than realized receipts. The 1933 [Schmedeman] budget provided for appropriations which exceeded available receipts by $5,100,000. In addition failure of receipts from the surtax on incomes to meet the requirements of the teachers' retirement fund has placed a statutory obligation of $1,700,000 on the general fund.

Western Maryland Railway.

Investors' Guide: Will you please furnish me the rating and data on Western Maryland 5½s, due 1977?—Mrs. L. W. F.

Answer: Western Maryland Railway company is predominantly a carrier of bituminous coal. This item alone accounted for 58 per cent of total freight revenues and 68 per cent of freight tonnage during 1933. More than half of the coal is shipped by connecting carriers.

The company operates over 932 miles of track, including mileage of trackage rights. The main line extends from Baltimore, Md., to Belington, W. Va., with branches.

Like its neighboring coal carriers, Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio, Western Maryland has kept operations above the profit line over a long period of years. Charges were covered 1.31 times in 1934, 1.29 times in 1933, 1.19 times in 1932, and 1.29 times in 1931.

Current position on Nov. 30, 1934, was satisfactory. Current assets were $4,402,000 and current liabilities were $2,857,000. Absence of RFC loans provides a source of untapped credit should credit become necessary.

The company is rather heavily capitalized on a mileage basis, but the high percentage of stock [55 per cent] in relation to total capitalization, the fact that about two-thirds of funded debt is represented by 4 per cent bonds and the consistent earnings record of the company lessen the importance of that factor.

The $12,000,000 first and refunding 5½s, due 1977, are secured by a first lien on 119½ miles of track, a second lien on 387¼ miles of track, and by miscellaneous junior liens. The bonds are a business man's investment. They are callable after July 1, 1937, at 105.

Inflation, Revalorization and Repudiation.

Investors' Guide: Kindly advise me if Kingdom of Hungary bonds are of any value. The bonds were issued in 1912 and matured in 1922. I had a certain amount of money on deposit in the government bank of the country. This was confiscated in 1915 and in return we were given these bonds. The Hungarian consul a few years ago told us to hold them until we were notified, but would not tell us the value.—F. J.

Answer: The bonds have only a remotely speculative value; the current quotation is approximately $10 per million kronen, the result of inflation, revalorization, and repudiation.

DROUTH FORCES U. S. TO BECOME FOOD IMPORTER

Nations Able to Scale High Tarif Wall.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Drouth and AAA crop restrictions transformed the United States—probably for the first time in its history—from a heavy exporter into an importer of feed and foodstuffs during 1934.

The crops in 1934 were the smallest since 1880. As a result prices increased to a point where other nations could ship to the United States, scale the high tarif walls, and still make a profit.

Quite a bit of food and feedstuffs, including wheat, were exported from the United States early in 1934. But with the drouth, came a sudden change in habits fixed over the generations when the rich middle western fields were the wheat and corn granaries of the world.

Expect Trend to Continue.

The trend, officials said, had continued into 1935 and probably would go on until the price of food and feed declines.

For the first time on record, wheat was imported from France in 1934. Total wheat imports from all countries during the latter half of 1934 totaled 1,231,000 bushels as compared with the 175,000,000 bushels which the United States normally exported to foreign nations only a few years ago.

The United States exported over 30,000,000 bushels of wheat last year. Virtually all of it, however, was shipped from the Pacific northwest where a surplus had accumulated and it was exported through what amounted to a government subsidy.

Officials said that the value of farm products exported in 1934 probably had shown a precipitate drop from 1933 when they amounted to only a little more than a half billion dollars. Back in 1929, farm exports totaled $1,495,790,000.

Figures Tell Story.

Since July 1, 1934, imports of cottonseed cake totaled 34,728,580 pounds compared with 4,174,775 pounds during the entire five years preceding.

Broom Corn Exports Drop.

Out of its average corn crop of more than 2 billion bushels the United States normally exports approximately 10,000,000 bushels of shelled corn.

Last year none was available for export. Instead American users imported 178,650,822 pounds of shelled corn from Mexico, Argentina, and Manchuria, quanantine restrictions being relaxed in some instances to permit this flow.

In past years sufficient broom corn is produced in the United States to supply practically all domestic needs. Since July 1, 1934, however, domestic manufacturers imported 27,171 bales and 35,620 pounds of broom corn in comparison with only 407 bales during the entire five years before.

Grain sorghum imports leaped up to 1,747,561 pounds during the period since July 1 compared with only 550,349 pounds shipped in during the five preceding years.

LETTERS

Letters addressed to the Financial Editor will be printed in these columns from time to time. Communications must be signed.

Building and the Depression.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—My firm has been designing, building and financing industrial plants for 20 years, and not at any time have we found a demand for new and modernized plants as we do today, if they could be financed. Many corporations are financially sound and can borrow from banks on a 30, 60 or 90 day plan.

What we need is a federal aid bank loan to run five to 20 years at 5 per cent interest and 5 to 10 per cent amortization yearly. At the end of the period the corporation would own its plant and interest charges would be reduced yearly, making it easier to amortize. There are thousands of sound corporations in need of financial assistance. Federal loans for new construction, remodeling, air conditioning and equipment will put so many people to work, directly or indirectly, that the depression will be over in short order. We must have work for the building trades or we will always have a depression.

HAROLD TEEN—PA TAUGHT THE "GELS" TOO WELL

Salesmen.

Our most active season has begun. Business is good.

We have an opening for a few neat appearing men, 25 years of age or over, to represent the largest retail Home Furnishing House in the middle west. Previous experience an advantage but not essential. We are laying a foundation for future purchasing among our numerous customers and are paying our representatives advanced commission weekly in full on a basis of average sales expectancy. Also allowing a daily drawing account privilege, if necessary, while getting started. An intensely interesting and dignified program for those capable of conducting enthusiastic conversation. Can earn $30 per week and upward consistently. No night calls. Apply from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. only. Can also use a few saleswomen.
STRAUS & SCHRAM.
Mr. Jacobs. Mr. Zuber.
838 W. 63d-st. 3320 Lincoln-av.

SALESMEN.
ROOM 615. 201 N. WELLS BLDG.

SALESMEN

STEADY EMPLOYMENT.
Good Opportunity for Advancement.
This is in all probability the most unusual opportunity you have ever had to make a lifetime connection. This offer unlimited opportunity to the sincere man who is ambitious and a worker.
FIRST—This corporation is making real money.
SECOND—Its men are sharing in the profits of the business and are making real money.
THIRD—This company enjoys the highest rating given any concern by R. G. Dun and Bradstreet.
FOURTH—YOU make absolutely no investment.
FIFTH—We prefer to back ambitious men who would like to be in business for themselves but have not had the money and opportunity.
SIXTH—This company spends a great deal of time and money preparing their chosen representatives to make a success of the business.
SEVENTH—Although we have a product that is brand new, it has passed the experimental stage and is giving 100% satisfaction.
EIGHTH—The product is being used extensively by the U. S. Government; tested and approved by the U. S. Bureau of Standards.
TENTH—The product has to do with health, sanitation, and hygiene.
ELEVENTH—The price is right to meet the time; the terms as low as 5c a day. We have a fine bunch of men representing us now in Chicago. They have come into our business which has to do with sanitary electrical units, air-conditioning, etc., from most every trade and profession—lawyers, engineers, ministers, doctors, mechanics, clerks, auditors, uniformed conductors, railroad men, musicians and salesmen.
In the first four weeks of this year, R. Hamilton, a new man, made $1,260. Harry Slovin made for four weeks' work, $1,284 cash. Rudy Becker made $1,260 for four weeks' pay. John Radder four weeks' pay totaled $1,171. F. Eberly's four weeks' pay was $767. H. O. Ritt's four weeks' pay was $910. K. Connor's four weeks' pay was $1,271. F. Drass' four weeks' pay was $961. J. Cardwell's four weeks' pay was $1,194. On Monday here in Chicago at our general sales meeting, a new man Bartlett showed his cash earning of $112 for his first day in the business. And J. Terry with us three weeks earned $336.
You can meet these men. These are not phoney numbers, but actual cash made by these men in commissions and bonus. You can meet them and verify same. This is hard for you to believe, I know, but remember this is a company rated in the millions and they wouldn't stand for us to publish untruths.
I will ask one of these boys, Harry Daunis, to come in here Monday so you can see and talk to him. He made in one month $2,406. He will personally show and tell you how it is done.
CALL MONDAY and see and hear the business explained. See the men who are doing the job, and if you feel that this is your future opportunity and if we feel you can do the job, we will talk business. Only men of permanent address and with good character and appearance will be considered. Ask for J. H. Welsh, Room 1047 Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr., MONDAY at 11 A. M. ONLY and 3 P. M. ONLY.

IF YOU NEED WORK
We have made places in our organization for 15 men, and we are particularly anxious to talk to those who have had some connection with the building or allied trades and who can readily grasp the operation of an electrical unit. The immediate opportunity is in the sales and promotion department with a percentage and bonus that will make a very livable income for the right men. Apply ready to give references and go to work today. See Mr. Pope in Room 618.
